

Be An Optomist

An optomist, you know, is the fellow who doesn't kick because there is a hole in the doughnut. The farmer was an optomist when declaring that crops had nearly all failed but rejoiced that broomcorn was selling at $180 a ton. Asked how much broomcorn he had out, he said: "Not a blamed bit—but I am going to put out 60 acres next year." That is the way to act. Never admit defeat.

What Else Was There for Millicent to Do?

When Mrs. Gray came home Mill cent met her at the door; she seemed bursting with news. "Mother!" "Well, dear?" "What do you think Robert and that Jones boy did this afternoon?" "Why, nothing bad, I hope—" "Mother!" Millicent paused impressively. "They went and they built a fire! Yes'm! With kerosene! Out behind the chicken coop where you told 'em they never must!" "Millicent! Your little brother! Why, he might have—but why didn't you stop him?" "Mother, told him, and I told him, and he said he would, and I took him by the shoulder and shook—" But Mrs. Gray was seized with a sudden suspicion. "Millicent, you know I keep the kerosene locked in the storeroom, and Robert doesn't know where I keep the key. Look me in the eye, Millicent. How did he get that kerosene?" Millicent's eyelids flickered. "Well, you see, mother—er—when I saw that Robert and that Jones boy were determined to build a fire, why—er—I had to get the things for 'em, didn't I, and superintend 'em, didn't I?" His Gratitude Greater Than His Knowledge

A Filipino boy who had studied English in a Hawaiian night school sent the following letter to a white man who had befriended him and who had made him a present of some pictures and a shirt: "I received your kind and welcome letter from you, so, I in it, I was very, very glad to hear from you that you so stated at present in good health and fiscal condition. At the second how glad I am and your sister that you were received of our picture in that brilliant afternoon, and so, by this time we were very pleasant that you will keep it so well the same as our bodies always talking and caring for you here. And so, even that picture is not very personally playing of your spirit so, be carefully like so as you body. About the shirt is coming to in my hand, I fell of joy and a merry heart so that you did not forget of your promised to me, and now, it is very thanking at the heaven and of your truly remember and present of this your brother did not know how to forget asking of God at the heaven that he always caring and protecting to you here day and night and of badly misfortune."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Names for Nautical Fare

The sailor resembles the quick order restaurant waiter in that he invariably has a pet name for articles of diet. Salt beef, that standby of the menu at sea, was known during the Nineteenth century as "junk," "old horse," "salt horse" or "salt junk." It was responsible, held one writer of sea stories, for the mignon complexion of sailors, which was commonly attributed to a combination of rum and the weather. A stew answered to the name of "lobscouse," and was made of salt beef, biscuits and potatoes, seasoned highly with pepper. A dish of cold fish and potatoes was labeled "twice-laid," while a pudding of dried peas boiled in a cloth was welcomed by the sailors under the name of "dog's body." Ship biscuits were even then called "hardtack," while soft, white bread was christened "soft tack" or "soft tommy."

The Telephone

Elizabeth was three years old and, what is more, Elizabeth, like most small girls, was very fond of games of "make believe." Her latest delight in the realm of fancy was "playing telephones," a game of which she never grew tired.

Her grandmother was well aware of Elizabeth's fancy and one night, when the little girl was proving obstinate about going to her bath, the old lady thought she would try a little strategy.

Grandmother (holding one end of the toy telephone)—Hello! Is that Elizabeth?

Elizabeth (very delighted)—Yes, grandma!

Grandmother—Well, come along, Elizabeth, it's time for your bath.

Elizabeth (dropping receiver)—Wrong number!

Made Lonely Journey

A woman farmer in a lonely part of South Africa, Mrs. Ida Francis, has just shown that in luck and endurance British women settlers are not behind the men.

About two months ago a cyclone devastated her farm, which lies beyond the western fringe of the desolate Kalahari desert; and then came floods which destroyed the food and shelter for her cattle. The only way to save her animals was to drive them 400 miles across the desert to her son's farm, and this she did, unaided.

She found that many of the water holes in the desert had dried up, and sometimes she had to ward off attacks by lions with her rifle; but she kept steadily on, and in the end brought nearly all her charges through safely. —Family Herald.

Only Real Growth

Some men grow, others just swell up. It most frequently happens that the latter swell in the head, rather than elsewhere, and a little money largely contributes to this. True growth is marked by development of mind, heart, and soul.—Gill.

Method of "Starting at Bottom" Given Up

For many generations the only way one could learn to be a business man was through apprenticeship. We called it "starting at the bottom." Most of us were reared with a conception of a business career derived from the Alger books—"from train boy to president," writes Richard J. Walsh in Century Magazine.

That this idea still persists is apparent when we look at the stories of success in some of the popular magazines. Steadily, however, formal methods of education have gained ground, replacing the apprenticeship or "watch me, my boy," system.

Commercial education first appeared in our public schools about 1895. It grew naturally out of the multiplication of industrial occupations. At least one-fourth of the jobs today are utterly unlike any that our grandparents had to do, and many of them such that the boys could not teach them, because he never mastered them himself. F. V. Thompson says: "Commercial education was perhaps the first subject to be adopted by the high school as a concession to the public desire that the school should furnish preparation for vocations."

By 1915 we were spending more for the commercial course than for any other in our city high schools, and at least one-third of all pupils in the high schools of large cities were enrolling in commercial courses, while business training for adults was being offered in evening and continuation classes.

The Glove in History

The use of gloves dates back to remote times. Xenophon sneered at the Persians for wearing gloves to keep their hands warm. The Greeks and Romans also scorned the use of gloves. The glove appears to have become a well-known article of dress in England about the fourteenth century. The materials used for making leather gloves are principally the skin of deer, sheep and lambs, goats and kids, the latter being the most important, though far more kid gloves are made of sheep than of kid leather.

Natural Steam Harnessed

At Healdsburg, Cal., 75 miles from San Francisco, is a power-generating plant operated by natural steam from underground. The steam comes from a depth of 300 feet and engineers say that there is enough of it beneath some 4,000 acres of volcanic land to light and heat San Francisco and run all nearby factories once it had been completely harnessed.
