

Somebody Is Saving

Did you know what last year the savings of the people of this country amounted to 6,933 million dollars? This is 334 million more than a year ago, and 500 million more than two years ago.

So SOMEBODY is saving, that's sure. Are YOU? That's the question. The huge advance in savings may be due to prohibition or many other causes, but it shows that our people are beginning to "salt down" more money than in really prosperous times. We invite you to open an account at our bank and join the WISE crowd.

Never "Out" Is Man Who Keeps His Head

Take it from the pastor: Some great things may have been accomplished by excitement or desperation, or wild impulse, but you needn't be particularly wise or observing to know that most is accomplished by the man who retains his mental poise; "keeps his head." I once saw a weak swimmer become exhausted while beyond his depths, and saw a strong swimmer go readily to his rescue. The drowning man forgot what he knew, that it is easy to carry another in water, if the one carried submits willingly and intelligently. Therefore a struggle followed when the two met, in which a double tragedy was averted only by the fact that the strong swimmer kept his head, fought better and knocked out his opponent, after which he carried him to shore. Had both been cool, it would have been easy and had both become excited, it would have been impossible. And the rule applies as well to the other than physical trouble. The fate which seems to have you down and out can be thwarted if you "keep your head." If you do the best you know, instead of merely wasting time in useless worry and anger. And this trait or habit will stand cultivation which will bring it within the range of possibilities even for impulsive, nervous or weak-kneed persons.—Arkansas Thomas Cat.

Evolution of Horse Proved by Skeleton?

Scientists of a recent geological expedition sent to Texas by the American Museum of Natural History (New York) have discovered in rocks more than 1,000,000 years old the fossil skeleton of a horse in one of its ancestral stages of evolution. In the evolution of the horse the newly found specimen represents an intermediate stage between the type called Pliohippus and the early Ice-age horse called Eohippus. It is smaller than the modern horse. While the fossil horse discovered is almost the earliest one-toed horse, long before the day of Pliohippus there had existed quite a number of more primitive or less evolved forms of the horse. For example, if we go back to the Eocene epoch, when the ancestor of the horse was no larger than a cat, we discover that he had four toes on his fore feet and three on his hind feet. The subsequent evolution of the horse is most clearly marked by the gradual loss of all of these toes, except the single toe on which our modern horses walk.

American Colony

American Samoa, comprising the islands of Tutuila, Aunu'u and others, has an area of 57.9 square miles; population of 8,324, including 206 Americans. The capital is Pago Pago on the island of Tutuila. This town is the most valuable harbor in the South Pacific. It was ceded in 1872 by the native king to the United States as a naval and coaling station. American Samoa is 4,100 miles from San Francisco. The natives are Christians and are regarded as the highest type of the Polynesian race. All of the land of the islands is privately owned. The chief product is coconuts. Fruits are also grown, but not exported.

Fable Worth Remembering

A crow, half-dead with thirst, came upon a pitcher which had once been full of water; but when the crow put its beak into the mouth of the pitcher he found that only very little water was left in it, and that he could not reach far enough down to get at it. He tried, and he tried, but at last had to give up in despair. Then a thought came to him, and he started dropping pebbles, one by one, into the pitcher. At last, he saw the water mount up near him; and after casting in a few more pebbles he was able to quench his thirst and save his life. Little by little gets results.—Aesop's Fables.

The Windmill

Windmills were in use in the remote ages and their discovery and first use is not known, but Titus Livius says when Hannibal crossed the Alps in 180 B. C. the Carthaginians saw windmills in the valley below and there is legendary information that they were brought from the Orient by the Crusaders. They were well established in the country around Paris in the twelfth century and shortly after that time were put in use in the Netherlands. They were known in the days of Cervantes, who gave them a place of some distinction in his writings.

Effect of Altitude

The geological survey says that according to science there is an altitude at which water would not boil; however, no one has ever reached that point, as it is about twenty miles above sea level. While it is not impossible to boil an egg hard at the top of Pike's peak, it takes longer to do it. Water boils at 212 degrees Fahrenheit at sea level, but on Pike's peak it boils at about 180 degrees Fahrenheit.

Times Had Changed

The salesman who had been turned away several times remarked to the office boy with fine sarcasm: "Well, I suppose the boss is in conference again this morning?" The office boy flipped a paper wad at the stenographer before he replied: "No, sir; not in conference. He's even off golf."

WHAT IS ADVERTISING?

"Advertising is the education of the public as to what you are, where you are, and what you have to offer in the way of skill, talent or commodity. The only man who should not advertise is the man who has nothing to offer the world in the way of commodity or service."
—Elbert Hubbard.
