Politics in America Got Napoleon's "Goat"

Napoleon had an unusually deep interest in world politics, extending even to the internal politics of a remote section of the United States. It was revealed when Col. Duncan K. MacRae of North Carolina went to Paris as consul general more than a century ago. Napoleon was puzzled as to why the people in one part of a country embraced one party, while their neighbors held opposing views. In some manner he had learned that Edgecombe county, in North Carolina, was Democratic, while Pitt county embraced the Whig faith. Informed that Colonel MacRae was from that state, he said to his courtiers: "Now, I will find out the riddle of North Carolina politics." So he gave Colonel MacRae an extraordinary welcome and said to him: "I understand that the same river flows through the counties of Edgecombe and Pitt in North Carolina, that the people of both counties till the soil and own slaves. I am told that practically all the people in Edgecombe county belong to the Democratic party, while most of the people of Pitt are Whigs. Why is it?" Any other person than Colonel MacRae would have been flabbergasted, but the Raleigh News and Observer, but not so the eloquent colonel, known as North Carolina's first orator. Nobody knows the answer he made, but he was quick to give a reason that satisfied the monarch.

Asbestos Long Known but Little Employed

People of modern time engaged in a ceaseless search for ways to improve living conditions. Safety, comfort and reduction of expense rank among the principal things to be considered. Asbestos, a material known for centuries but put to use only a comparatively short time ago, has done as much or more toward the realization of these three fundamentals than any other thing in its class. Traces of its use have been found in ancient China, in Persia, by the early Greeks and Romans, and later, in about the sixteenth century, in the island of Guam, now a possession of the United States. The sudden emergence of asbestos, from the long period in which it was almost entirely the subject of myths and legends, or treated merely as a costly curio, into one of the world's most important minerals and industry's most important aids, is remarkable. Even electricity did not have quite so sudden a transformation.

Great Name survives. Of all the possessions of this life fame is the noblest; when the body has sunk into the dust the great name still lives.—Schiller
