Pennsylvania's Contribution to the Sesqui

Here is the Keystone State's building at the great Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition at Philadelphia, celebrating 150 years of American Independence. In this huge structure Pennsylvania is displaying her progress from the arrival of Penn to the present day. The building is one of the handsomest on the big exposition grounds and has proved a rendezvous for hundreds of thousands of people who have come from near and far to see the magnificent exhibits established by forty-three of the leading nations of the world. The Exposition continues until December 1.

FIND REMAINS OF ANCIENT AMERICAN

Believed to Be Ancestor of Indian.

Galena, Ill.—The skeleton of a prehistoric American, an ancestor of the Indians, has been uncovered in a mound near here, by a University of Chicago anthropological expedition.

The bones, those of a man about thirty, were in a flexed position, the arms folded across the breast and the knees drawn up in closest approximation to the chin. The find was made about three feet below the surface, along a 1,100-foot ridge of mound on a farm, where operations have been carried on for two weeks. The scientists are under the direction of Prof. Fay Cooper Cole. Near by were portions of two other skeletons, while bundles of bones also have been found, those of a woman, a child and a dog.

It was thought at first that the ridge might have been a fortification, after the forts of ancient type, but investigation revealed it as a burial place. Below the ridge, in a little oak-shaded plateau, was believed to have been the site of the primitive community.

Illinois, according to Prof. Cole, is the key State, anthropologically speaking, in the picture of prehistoric America which science is trying to depict. Efforts are being made to find out what sort of people produced the Indian tribes that the white man found in this locality, and whether the civilization is linked with the great mounds of Ohio and lower Mississippi.

A large collection of relics already had been gathered in the Galena area by amateurs, and now it is planned to survey the district and open the mounds thoroughly. In one locality alone there are 142 mounds, all untouched. Others have been looted. Articles found included arrow heads, hammer heads, pottery, copper beads, bear-tooth necklaces, pipes and copper ornaments.

Skeletons uncovered will be inclosed in plaster and sent to the university laboratory for measuring, and then will go to the Field museum and other institutions. The type of civilization revealed is not high in the opinion of Professor Cole, who said that no writing has been uncovered in mounds in any part of the United States.

Acoustics Expert Tells What Makes Good Hall

Urbana, Ill.—The ideal concert hall, to assure the greatest comfort to hearers and players, should have sound-absorbing walls around the audience, but should be left bare and reverberant at the musicians' end.

Prof. F. R. Watson of the University of Illinois, an authority on acoustics, has sought to explain by scientific experiment why no one can really enjoy music in the rooms where the musicians find conditions best for playing. In a forthcoming issue of Science he states that the circumstances in the same room must be quite different for playing and listening. By shifting the sound-absorbing materials that take up the excess reverberations, from one part of a room to the other, he was able to produce the acoustically perfect chamber that satisfied both audience and performers.

A clear space around the stage allows easy generation of sounds while the deadened walls in the other end reduced their intensity and reverberation to the greater comfort and pleasure of the listeners.
