Land Laws Big Issue With Mexico. Washington, D. C.—The major question of dispute between the United States and Mexico is alleged confiscation of American property under the alien land laws, President Coolidge's spokesman stated. If an adjustment can be reached on that question, the other issues, incidental and collateral, will adjust themselves, in the president's opinion. The White House statement followed the hurried departure for Mexico City of Mexican Ambassador Telles, and apparently reliable reports state that this government has objected to alleged Mexican propaganda activities in this country.

O. A. C. Will Levy Tuition. Corvallis.—Beginning next fall, tuition will be charged to students attending Oregon Agricultural college, the board of regents, in session here decided, the money raised to form a building fund. Each student will be charged $12 a term. The financial condition of the state, which prevented acquisition of needed funds through the recent legislature, left the college without money for essential buildings.

Strictly Business

A celebrated Welsh basso profundo after years of fame, returned to his native village in the wilds of Cardiganshire. A charity concert was arranged, and the world-famous virtuoso was billed to sing "The Village Blacksmith." Just before the concert a local supporter came around to the artist's dressing room.

The visitor approached the artist and said: "I understand that you are going to sing a song, 'The Village Blacksmith.' Well, I'm telling you now that I am the village blacksmith and I want to say that if by any chance you get an encore, will you shove in an extra verse to say that I also let out bikes on 'Ire at sixpence an hour'?"—"Taffy Tales From Welsh Wales."

Good Reading

Good literature has a charm incomparable, but it has also a power immeasurable in the forming or transforming of a nation as of an individual character. The people that have the cleanest, healthiest literature will become the cleanest and healthiest people. A good thought wisely expressed and thoughtfully applied is priceless for its endurance. Throw it on the winds and it will find its bourn; sink it in the deepest water and it will reach its haven, for the noblest thoughts are the breath of Almightyness, and remain imperishable to the end of time and beyond.—Exchange.

The Crucible

The passing over from one year to the next offers opportunity for stock taking or inventory-making in life. What interest in service has my life yielded? Life has been considered by some one as doing business under the firm name of "Soul & Company." Soul is the senior partner. Body is the associate. January first is the time to set down the income and the outgo of the character, to consider how life's business prospers; to determine whether "Soul & Company" are rich in the coin of heaven or are facing mortal insolvency.—Cheesman A. Herriek.

Party-Line Incident

"Whenever my sister called up my mother, as she did every morning at a certain hour, the people downstairs listened in. That led to installing a private line," writes M. G. "A short time afterward a member of the family met one of the eavesdroppers. She said, 'You're not on our party line any more, are you?' The answer was, 'No. 'I'm so ;,' said the eavesdropper, 'because we don't get the latest news any more.' . . . That sort of evening it up.—Capper's Weekly

Celebration Passed Up

Fourth of July in Vicksburg, Miss., is much the same as any other day. It is the only city in the United States which does not celebrate the Fourth, as it was on that day that the city fell to the Union troops during the Civil war.—Detroit News.

Feminine Philosophy

It is Mmme. de Stael who loves to quote that inimitable definition of Schelling, "architecture is frozen music." It is she, the most famous woman of her century, who finds that "for women glory is only a brilliant mourning worn for happiness," and that "everything which does not touch one's heart leaves one's life free." On a profounder subject she says: "The mystery of existence is the connection between our sins and our sorrows. I have never done a wrong which has not been the cause of a misfortune;" and, "One must take care. If one can, that the decline of this life be the youth of the next. To forget self without ceasing to be interested in others gives the soul something of the divine."—From "The Women of the Salons," by S. G. Tallentyre.

Her Version

A child, who is in the first grade at school, returned home one evening and, at the dinner table, repeated a riddle that she had heard at school that day. "If a man were locked up in a house for two weeks, and there was no food in the house, what would he eat?" After a few minutes of unsuccessful attempts to guess the answer the members of the family "gave up" and requested the solution. "Why, he would eat the raisins on the calendar and drink the milk from the bed," replied the child. The answer had been: "The dates on the calendar and water from the springs in the bed."

Taken at His Word

One day while riding on a crowded street car I noticed a woman standing in the throng struggling with many bundles and a baby. Thinking of being of some assistance, I inquired "Can't I relieve you of some of your bundles?" To my surprise, she handed me the baby. My bachelor dignity was already at the zero point, but when I noticed a group of giggling girls who were students in my class at the city high school my mortification was complete. I assure you my embarrassment did not end with the incident.—E. N. A. B., in Chicago Tribune.

Not the Curate's Fault

A clergyman, called away suddenly and unable to officiate at the services in his church, entrusted his new curate with the duty. On his return home he asked his wife what she thought of the curate's sermon. "The poorest I ever heard," she declared; "nothing in it at all." Later in the day the clergyman, meeting his curate, asked him how he had got on. "Splendidly, sir," replied the curate. "I didn't have time to prepare anything myself, so I preached one of your sermons."—London Answers.
