UNIVERSITY OFFERS WIDE

VARIETY OF STUDY WORK

Greater Oregon Association to Aid Students in Planning University Courses.

To those who are interested in going to college next year the University of Oregon offers a wide variety of courses in the schools of medicine, music, physical education, law, sociology, journalism, business administration, education, literature, science and arts, architecture and allied arts.

The university offers a splendid liberal arts course which is centered around the following departments: Botany and bacteriology, chemistry, economics, and public service, English and drama, geology and geography, Germanic languages and literature, Greek, history, household arts, Latin, mathematics, mechanics and astronomy, military science, philosophy, physics, political science, psychology, romance language and zoology.

Each of the above departments furnish a broad solid foundation that is of great benefit in any occupation.

The law school offers a three year course and has one of the strongest law libraries in the west. Two or more years of university work is a pre-requisite to entrance.

The school of music affords skilled instructions on the piano, violin, pipe organ and flute, or vocal and technical training.

The University of Oregon medical school at Portland is one of the outstanding medical schools in the United States. Only seventy students are admitted each year.

The school of business, administration trains men for responsibility, of leadership in business. Business today requires young men and women who can enter the office or factory with competent preparation.

To aid the high school graduate in selecting his college and course, the Greater Oregon committee has been established with chairmen in each district. James Raley, Pendleton chairman, is guiding students in selecting their courses.

STATE MARKET AGENT DEPARTMENT

Wheat Market Excited
The eastern wheat market became very much excited Monday when freezing weather was reported over a large area in Canada, and there was a raise of six cents a bushel through the day. The Portland market did not go quite so high but there was an advance of one to three cents over Saturday. Portland quotations were $1.27 to $1.32. Much of the wheat in the northwest this year is lacking in protein and not up to the standard for milling purposes, but will be sold for export.

The grain inspection department under this office at Portland handled some 300 carloads of wheat Monday and expects an average of 200 carloads a day during the next three months.

Hope For Good Prunes
W. F. Drager, a prominent fruit grower and packer, with interest at Salem and in Douglas county, says the prune market has reached the bottom on prices and that the grower who harvests only first class prunes will be able to obtain good prices for them, but he advises against harvesting scabby or inferior fruit, as it will not pay the grower and will also destroy the reputation of the Oregon prune. Mr. Drager blames the short selling packers for the depressed condition of the prune market.

Selling Summer Apples
By pooling their supplies, apple dealers of the Milton-Fresewater district recently shipped out the first carload of apples of the season, says the Oregon Farmer. The price was $2 a box, the highest yet received there for summer apples. Shipment was to Calgary. The district apple crop is short, but growers are anticipating good returns, due to the short crop throughout the United States.

Organize For Next Year.
All efforts to perfect a prune marketing organization for the 1927 crop having failed, Henry Crawford, chairman of the committee of nine appointed at the prune convention at Corvallis, to outline a plan for marketing of prunes through co-operation of growers and packers, has called a meeting of the committee in Portland on Thursday of this week to discuss plans for marketing the crop of 1928.

Oldest and Youngest C. C. Borland, aged 78, and Maurice Stauffer, aged 13, were the extremes in age of those attending the Oregon State Grange at Corvallis some weeks ago. Mr. Borland, who joined the order in Nebraska, was the first 70's, belongs to Oswego grange and is gatekeeper of the state grange.
Stauffer belongs to Four Oaks grange in Lane county.

Making Woman's Weapons
The town of St. Helens, 30 miles down the Columbia from Portland, has a handle factory which is becoming an important hive of industry. It shipped 600,000 handles during July, reports the Sentinel.

Pears Selling Well
Cannery men and warehouse men started some rivalry in the buying of pears in the Yakima section in Washington recently, with the result that a large quantity was purchased on a basis of $60 to $65 a ton.

Profitable Berries
A 7-acre tract of strawberries at Hood River yielded 1900 crates of packed berries and 700 crates of berries for cannery purposes, says the Portland Journal. The revenue from the seven acres exceeds $7,000.
The berries were Clark seedlings.

Vare Election Ballots Held Up.
Washington, D. C.—County judge in Pennsylvania are to be asked to impound the ballots in the Vare-Wilson senatorial election last November until such a time as the senate sergeant-at-arms has funds available to transport them to Washington, it was decided at a meeting here of interested persons.

Kellogg Forbids Mexican Flight.
Houston, Texas—A "good will" flight to Mexico City sponsored by the Houston chamber of commerce has been forbidden by Secretary of State, Kellogg as contrary to the "best interests of this country and Mexico."

Wood Buried in Arlington Cemetery.
Washington, D. C.—Military and official Washington paid a "last salute" to one of the nation's outstanding soldiers, Major General Leonard Wood, who died in Boston. The body arrived Tuesday morning accompanied by his widow and a military escort. The burial in Arlington cemetery was at the request of Mrs. Wood, who asked that the body be placed in a little plot reserved for members of the "Rough Riders" regiment which he commanded during the war with Spain.
