Now for a big crowd at the Dairy & Hog show.

Winter approaches—J. W. Clark has announced that he will consider trading his B. V. Ds. for something heavier.

There's a lively interest that extends far beyond the confines of this project in the success that has attended the efforts of farmers here to raise turkeys on a big scale. Mrs. Brink of Boise who was here when the local body decided to affiliate with the Idaho co-operative for marketing purposes made the statement that never in her experience had she known such a large pool sign up from an equal number of growers in so short a time after the proposal had been made. One reason for such action, of course, is the fact that the growers here have been watching Idaho's organization for several seasons.

HERMISTON LOCALS

Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Shelton left Tuesday for their home in Seattle after a visit with their son, George Shelton.

Edward Gould and son James of Bend are here to be with Mrs. Gould who is ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. A. Paul.

Vernon Gould and Mrs. Frank Hoffman of Seattle were here over the week end to be with their mother Mrs. Edward Gould.

Miss Alta Lillie of La Grande was here over the week end as a guest of Mrs. W. L. Hamm. The two used to teach together in their old home in Iowa. Miss Lillie is teaching her second year in the La Grande schools.

Mrs. C. S. McNaught and Mrs. F. V. Prime were hostesses at an afternoon bridge party Tuesday to which guests to make eight tables had been invited. Highest score was made by Mrs. A. H. Norton, second by Mrs. G. E. Briggs and consolation was won by Mr. Ralph Richards.

Two of the Union Pacific busses will handle local mail between Pendleton and Boardman. Mail pouches for the 10:47 morning bus going west will be closed at 10:35, and mail for the 3:13 afternoon stage going to Pendleton must be ready for the pouches before 2:55 in the afternoon.

"I never realized before just what an advantage we have in the west because of our general freedom from muddy roads," said H. J. Stillings the other day. The remark was prompted by his observation of the roads in Missouri where he recently visited. Those are very muddy now, and chains on car wheels are not a great deal of help, he found. His younger sons, Presley and Junior, returned home with him and are in school in Columbia district.

The farming communities in the northwest, particularly the wheat belts, are in much better financial condition right now than at any time since the war, according to the opinion of E. P. Dodd, who returned this week from Washington where he spent about three weeks. Wheat farmers have money and are optimistic and confident of the future, he said. At a sale on a big wheat ranch which he attended, top horses and mules brought $350 per team, and the cheapest horse of the sale sold for $90. Poultry production over the state of Washington as a whole is either stagnant, or losing ground, he found. Communities better suited to some other specialties, such as wheat or fruit, are forgetting poultry as the other commodity come back in pride. He expressed the idea that this trend will result in better egg and poultry prices in such districts as Hermiston.

She Paid the Postage

A woman bought a birthday gift in one of Cincinnati's department stores. She asked the saleslady to have it mailed out from the store to Berkeley, Calif.

"We will be glad to do so," said the obliging young clerk, "but if that place is over 200 miles away, you will have to pay the postage."

Lawyer Left Opening for Verbal Brickbat

A good story is told of the late Chief Justice White of the United States Supreme court, who was famous for his wit. A few months before his death the chief justice was approached one morning by Judge Timothy T. Ansberry, former member of congress from Ohio and a practicing lawyer in Washington.

"Good morning, Mr. Chief Justice," said Judge Ansberry. "I hope you are quite well."

"Good morning," was the response; but not recognizing Ansberry, the chief justice added cautiously, "Is it possible that I have forgotten your name?"

"It's Ansberry," was the answer. "Oh, yes, my dear Ansberry," the jurist hastily put in. "How are you? But you must excuse me for not recognizing you instantly. You know the catarracts are forming over my eyes and I do not see as well as I did!"

"But," said Ansberry. "I noticed that the catarracts do not prevent you seeing the deficiencies in my arguments before your court."

Smiling broadly, the distinguished jurist laid a hand on Ansberry's shoulders, saying:

"No, my dear Ansberry, a blind man could see them."

Then turning to a friend who happened to be in the group, the chief justice laughingly said:

"He gave me a chance to throw a brick, didn't he?"—Kansas City Star.

Ancients Used Bells for Various Purposes

The use of small bells to summon attendants goes back over 3,000 years. Assyrian tombs, uncovered from the ruins and dust of ages, show that hand bells not unlike our conventional shapes, were used in old-time Nineveh. Egyptian sculptured work in more than one inscription also shows that remote antiquity in this as in many another respect had the same ideas of comfort, and sought to gratify them in much the same manner that we do. We find bells mentioned very early in the history of Israel. The high priest was directed to wear them on the fringes of his official vestments, alternating them with purple, blue and scarlet artificial pomegranates, so that he might be heard when he went in and out of the holy place to sacrifice, as the Book of Exodus has it, "that he be heard." Then, as now, all the accessories of divine worship were symbolical, the tinkling golden bells probably typifying the lips that ought ever to be open for prayer, and the tone that ought ever to be crying mercy when concerned about the sacrifices and other services of the sanctuary.

Old Confession of Faith

The Apostle's Creed is a confession of faith dating from the Fourth century, which has been incorporated either in part or as a whole by practically every Christian church. A legend was to the effect that the Apostle's Creed was formed by the apostles themselves, but there is slight documentary proof of this. It is by many supposed to have been taken from the confession of Peter, see Mark 16:16, and from the baptismal invocation which determined the trinitarian order and arrangement. The earliest authentic mention is found in a passage in the works of St. Irenaeus, who died in 202 A. D., when about eighty years old.

Qualifications

The young miss was filling out an application for a position in one of the city offices.

One of the questions was: "What is the length of your residence in the city?" She answered thus: "About 140 feet."

Another question was this: "Any physical defects?" She answered: "Only fleckles."

Habits Weave Chains

Habits are to life what rails are to a railroad train. A train runs where it has run before. So do most people, their habits directing them and guiding them. Only good habits are likely to carry one in the direction he should go, the route that is worth while to travel.—Grit.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

The high school party last Saturday night proved very enjoyable. It was the first social event of the year, and a large number was present.

The sophomores initiated the freshmen at the party by making them wear green ties and ribbons and by putting them through the electric chair. Other pranks were played on them and enjoyed by all.

The Briggs orchestra furnished the music for the evening.

Coach Walenta and a few of the football players saw the Heppner-Umatilla game at Umatilla last Saturday. Not until the last three minutes of play was the game decided. Heppner got the ball on Umatilla's 30 yard line after a weak punt and pushed over a touchdown. The final score was 7 to 0. Heppner will play the locals here Saturday.

J. S. West, Logan Todd, H. T. Matott and H. A. Pankow made the trip to Kennewick with the team last Friday. Others present from Hermiston included Pete Lass, Bob Woodward, Glenn Newell and Les Blakely of Umatilla.

FREE POULTRY CLINIC WILL BE HELD DURING DAIRY SHOW

Dr. E. L. Grubb, a member of the research and clinic department of the George H. Lee company, Omaha, Nebraska, will hold one of those interesting and helpful poultry and pig clinics at the Dairy & Hog show, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The clinic is sponsored by the Hermiston Drug Co.

The object of the clinic is to assist farmers and poultry raisers in reducing the tremendous loss among poultry and pigs that occurs on the farm every year. The clinics conducted by Lee specialists have frequently been called short course schools, teaching how to recognize, correctly diagnose, treat, and prevent disease and other troubles that are the common cause of much loss to poultry and swine raisers.

Farmers who have unthrifty chickens or pigs are invited to bring in specimens for post mortem examination and receive free instruction on the cause, treatment and prevention of the trouble. Plenty of specimens are needed to bring out the full value of this free demonstration.

HELLO, FOLKS:

Allow Us to introduce these two little gentlemen—happy in their pledge of honor and service. They are queer little fellows whose heads harbor many fine ideas in regard to the oiling and greasing of your car, and, while they are small, they are older than they look and have had many years of experience, so take heed, you motorists who are particular as to your wants—you can't go wrong if you follow the advice of these two little fellows. Watch for their words of wisdom—they'll appear from time to time in this newspaper. You won't be sorry if you do as they advise.

Turkeys, Turkeys

I want them, now, or next week, or any time. Will buy whole flocks, part flocks, young or old. Figure with me before you sell.
