Higher Rail Rates Held in Abeyance.
Washington, D. C.—Increased rates which railroads proposed to make effective in Pacific northwest territory on canned goods were temporarily suspended by the interstate commerce commission to await investigation.

E. L. Crowe of Helix comes to Hermiston to buy from the local farm bureau co-operative. He was here Wednesday for that purpose.

Angelos Xedes and W. H. Tuttle were in the first of the week from the Holdman country, for trading.

Claude Finley was a business visitor here this week.

BUFFALO STAMPEDE ONE OF FEATURES OF "TRAIL DUST"

Gordon Hines, director of the new 101 Ranch picture "Trail Dust" which comes to the Columbia theatre, Hermiston, on Saturday, Dec. 3, tells us he knows of a great many scenes he would rather direct than a buffalo stampede.

One of the scenes in "Trail Dust" which is a pioneer story of the early seventies with its covered wagon trains, etc., called for an Indian attack and the escape of the hero and heroine who are passing through a narrow ravine when they hear the thundering of many hoofs nearing them. They of course make their escape.

INSURANCE PLAN TALKED AT JOINT MEETING HERE

A joint meeting of committees from the Farm Bureau and the granges of Stanfield, Irrigon and Boardman was held in the library Monday evening. The meeting was held for the discussion of economic and legislative problems. Some time was given to talking over plans for community insurance for these organizations, and a committee appointed to inquire into the possibilities of work along that line. A request was made for more data following along the economic conference held in Hermiston last year.

PEARSONS ACHIEVE SUCCESS

dairy barn, and some of these days when a lot of other improvements have been made and paid for by the Parsons expect to harness the water from the spring and generate their own electricity.

Mr. Parsons doesn't claim that he is a successful farmer, but when an outsider calls attention to what he and his wife have accomplished in the short time they have been residents of the project he will admit that they have worked hard at the job. The place itself is the best proof that they have planned with a lot of thought.

A combination like that brings results, and I'm quite confident that it won't be long until this new resident will have plenty of opportunity to answer that question that is asked so often: How is a man to make a success of this farming business. Recalling the many hard licks he and his wife have put in on the place, the enthusiasms they have displayed, their persistent plugging away and their caution, he will be able to say that success did not come by accident or overnight.

WHATZWHAT In the Seventh Grade

(Written by Marguerite Sunstrup.)
The seventh grade has established a league to make our grade the best we can. We not only aim to help ourselves but to be of help to others. In this league we are also trying to be a benefit to the school.

We are giving a little program in connection with our business meeting on Friday afternoon at 2:30 in the seventh grade room to which all parents are invited. The little playlet is composed by a seventh grader. It was taken from a story in our literature books. The best plays were written by Dick Hutchison, Eddie Bensen, Iva Duane, Marguerite Sunstrup, Howard Cherry and Bernice Stork.

A great man, Professor Shirlatt from Germany has consented to come and play a few numbers on his pump harpsicord—the pump harpsicord is an invention of the professor's.

Eddie Bensen will give a reading, "Towser Shall be Tied Tonight." A talk will be given about our civic league by one of the seventh graders. Do you like to work by contract work? We are having con-language and arithmetic. We shall start spelling and reading presently.
