GET WHAT THEY'RE WORTH

During the past week or so outside interests are reported to have purchased about three carloads of fine dairy stock from dairymen on the project. Prices paid are reported to run from $100 to $125 per head, and that sounds like a lot of money.

But one buyer is quoted as having said of one herd for which he paid $100 per head straight that the herd was worth $150 a head to him. Dairy stock can not be more valuable to any country than they are on this project. The Herald hates to see these good cows shipped out, but common sense would dictate that if a dairy man wants to cash in at a profit on the herd he has spent years in building he should sell right. California dairy men have been playing Oregon breeders for a bunch of suckers for a long time, particularly in the Willamette valley. The Eastern Oregon dairy men apparently are following in the valley breeders' footsteps.

If we sell cows to outside buyers they should be sold at such a price that the buyer won't make $50 per head.

Hal G. Hoss of Oregon City, until recently private secretary to Governor Patterson, for several years secretary of the state editorial association, an energetic and capable native Oregonian, is a candidate for the republican nomination as secretary of state. Mr. Hoss' record is an enviable one, and the information the Herald has been able to secure about him leads to the belief that the people of Oregon are to be congratulated that a man of his capacity is willing to forsake a private career for the vicissitudes of public service.

"I'll be home as soon as possible," is the word that was received this week from Tom B. Gurdane, now in Los Angeles, where he went with C. L. Buck Lieuallen, to claim the reward money offered for the capture of William Edward Hickman. Mr. Gurdane recently announced his candidacy for the republican nomination for sheriff. He is probably as poor a politician as ever went after an office in this county, at least in recent years, but people who know Tom Gurdane swear by him as to honesty, integrity and straight dealing. He has lived in Umatilla county nearly all his life, has given satisfaction as chief of police in Pendleton for years and is a seasoned, experienced officer. Tom is short when it comes to putting out flowery hooey and won't promise to do the impossible, but his execution of his duty in the past has always been such that he has not been compelled to resort to alibis. He may be expected to let his work speak for itself. The Herald welcomes the entrance of a man of Tom Gurdane's calibre in the race and is unreservedly and enthusiastically for him.

For the benefit of those critics of young people who think that the new generation is composed about 100 per cent of featherweights, Umatilla county can point with pride to Buck Lieuallen. Just back from California where he was feted and praised for his part in the capture of William Edward Hickman, Buck is still the same quiet, unaffected, unspoiled, likeable chap.
