When you build, we are ready to serve you

WHEN you build it is always a comforting thing to know that the building materials you buy are going to be up to specifications. Cheap, flimsy construction usually goes hand in hand with poor quality materials. Safeguard your building by letting us know what you require and we will work with you to see that your interests are well protected. We are headquarters for all dependable building materials and can also help you select a good, reliable contractor. Tell us what you plan to do—we can and will give you helpful advice.

Rare Book Secured by Library of Congress

One of the rarest of books on science, the first edition of Sir Isaac Newton's "Principia," was obtained by the Library of Congress, after years of search. Though only an inch and a half thick and ten inches high by seven and a half inches wide, with 510 pages, it has been termed "the most important printed work on exact science ever published." It was published in 1687 in London, and in it Newton first gave to the world the results of his fundamental study of the laws of gravitation. Two issues of the first edition were made in the year of its publication, one being intended for sale in England, and the other on the Continent. The Library of Congress copy is of the first issue. However, the entire edition was small and it is related by contemporary writers that as early as 1691 it was very difficult to obtain. At present it is almost completely unobtainable. The library's copy was bought for Watson Davis, managing editor of Science Service, but upon learning of the library's desire for a copy, he relinquished it. The full title of the book, in Latin, is "Philosophiæ Naturalis Principia Mathematica." An interesting feature of the title page is that it bears the imprimatur, or approval, of Samuel Pepys, famous for his diary, who was at that time president of the Royal Society.

If you are not now taking the Hermiston Herald because you think you can't afford it and depend on borrowing a copy from a friend to read the home news, just stop and figure the savings you can make in course of a year by having the paper regularly and taking advantage of the bargains that merchants are offering every week. The price of a subscription is $2.00 a year. The returns to you in savings made by directed buying of advertised bargains may be only $10.00, or they may be $50.00 a year. In either case, a subscription is a dandy investment.
