

MAKING THE MOST OF IT

We should all make the most of our TIME, our OPPORTUNITIES, our ADVANTAGES. That is real thrift.

The railroad succeeded the stage coach in order to save time. Today it is possible to cross the continent in less than two days, by airplane. More time saved. It is just as important to save money as it is to save time. In fact, saving time means saving money.

"STUDENT PRINCE"

RAMON NOVARRO and NORMA SHEARER

The story of a boy, 8 years old heir to the throne of Heidelberg. According to the customs of royalty his future wife is selected from the royal class. But his early childhood education and associates were not confined exclusively to the upper class. During these early days Fate made one little playmate friendship so strong it could not be broken by the higher courts.

-This picture is played through the Auspices of the American Legion and is well worth everyone's support

Saturday and Sunday "THE GIRL FROM CHICAGO" October 27 and 28

Ancients Stored Wine in Earthenware Jars

The vessels chiefly used in the early days for holding wine were invariably the skins of animals. These skins were formed into crude bags and the seams were cemented with pitch or resin. Such were the wineskins successfully employed by the wily Gibeonites in their negotiations with Joshua. These were succeeded by the earthenware jars known as amphorae, the size and shape of which are obviously modeled on the primitive wineskin. The amphorae was glazed inside and not outside, the glazing being a resinous composition evidently copied from that used for wineskins. Its capacity was about three gallons, and its aperture was at the thick end or top, unlike the wineskin, which was filled and emptied at the thin end or bottom. This simple but thoroughly practical vessel for containing wine remained in use without change for many centuries in Egypt, Greece and Rome. It was stored by thrusting the small end into the cellar floor of dry sand. When the first tier was completed it was covered up deeply with more dry sand, another tier of amphorae was placed above it, also smothered in sand, and there it was left for years to mature at an even temperature.

Time Has Swallowed Up Ancient Marvels

Of the seven wonders of the ancient world the only satisfactory survival is the first group, the pyramids and the great sphinx. The foundation and many fragments of the mausoleum have been disclosed by modern excavation; the structure was destroyed by an earthquake. Mounds indicating the position of the walls and gardens of Babylon have also been identified.

The Colossus, composed of brass cast in pieces, was overturned by an earthquake in 224 B. C. The pieces lay there for many centuries, until the Turks took Rhodes. They sold the brass to a merchant, who is said to have employed 900 camels to carry it away.

The temple of Diana was burned in 356 B. C. by Erostartus, an obscure individual who thought thus to make himself famous. It was rebuilt in a less pretentious manner, and survived until the coming of the Goths in A. D. 256. Barbarian invaders are thought to have destroyed also the Olympian Jove and the pharos of Alexandria.

Red Flood Lighting

That effective flood lighting of buildings need not be necessarily of white or light color, and that the use of lights is not restricted to white lights has been demonstrated by the use of red lights exclusively on a large manufacturing plant located on the principal railroad between Philadelphia and New York. This building is of brick and built on simple lines. When the white lights were tried the lines of mortar between the bricks seemed to be offensively accentuated. The white were replaced by red lamps and the effect was more than satisfactory.

Earthworm Its Own Rebuilder of "Parts"

If any of us have been wasting tears of sympathy over the lowly earthworm we may as well employ them to better purpose, over our own hard luck, for example, for the fisherman's friend doesn't need 'em.

These unlovely dwellers of the underground, the combined bulk of which is five times that of the whole human race, clothes and all, apparently drew what was left when nature was handing out her gifts.

While we share the sunshine with the house flies, the beasts of the field and the birds of the air, these down-trodden individuals pass a lack-luster existence moving dirt from one place to another. Yet without eyes, without ears and without lungs, for they breathe through their skins, and with a string of nerve ganglia instead of a brain, they are independent of repair shops.

Whether they started that way, as science insists, or learned the stunt later to better cope with accidental encounters with the farmer's spade, the earthworms have a most admirable system of regenerating or growing brand new parts for those they may happen to lose. Cut one of them in two and ordinarily the front half will grow a new rear elevation as good as ever. And if conditions are fairly good, as apt as not, the old rear remnant will get busy on its own account and grow itself a new front portion, thus making two complete worms out of the fragments of the original individual.—Kansas City Star.

Poet's "Silvery Moon"

Set Down as Illusion

Another illusion has been swept away by the observant scientist. Most of us have heard so frequently of the "silvery moon" that we have taken its silverness for granted. Now an astronomer declares our satellite is not "silver," but yellow.

It appears he once had the good fortune to observe a white star come very close to the crescent moon, when, as he described it to the British Astronomical association, "the star looked like a globe of mercury on a dull brass ball."

The poets, however, will doubtless continue to sing of the "silvery moon." One of the greatest of our poets, Tennyson, sang of the white stars coming up one by one, whereas to the astronomer the stars show a wonderful variety of shades of color. Some very brilliant ones are red, others blue or bluish, and others a beautiful orange. And how many people have ever seen a green moon? The writer is one who has.—London, Tit-Bits.
