

HOME POINTERS

(From School of Home Economics O. S. A. C.)

A delicious icing for a layer cake consists of one pound of confectioners sugar creamed with one-half cup of butter, three tablespoonsful of cold coffee, two teaspoonfuls of cocoa and one teaspoonful of vanilla extract. These are mixed thoroughly and spread on the cake.

When baking doughnuts a small piece of raw potato dropped into the hot fat will prevent the doughnuts from burning.

It is well to have a definite recipe for meringue, then it will seldom fail. Two egg whites, half teaspoonful of vanilla extract, four teaspoonful of pulverized sugar and a pinch of salt has been found a good recipe for this purpose.

Syrups from canned fruits may be kept and blended for making jell desserts. They give an unusual flavor and often a nice color.

Investment in Pearls Brought Rich Return

Some years ago a woman received as one of her Christmas presents a pearl necklace from her husband. Not being in opulent circumstances, he was unable to spend more than $25 for them, but their luster pleased his wife, however, and for some years she wore them many, many times until recently the string broke and she carried them to the same jeweler to be restrung.

She had hardly reached her home when she received a telephone call from the senior partner of the firm who asked her to call the next morning. To her amazement, she found that what she thought were excellent imitations were the real thing and valued at about $5,000. They had been sold by an inexperienced salesman, it appeared.

Leaving the jewels she returned home and several days later was the recipient of a letter from the jeweler containing a check for $1,000 and a box containing another string of pearls worth three or four times as much as the original price paid for her first necklace.—Springfield Union.

First English Bible

John Wycliffe, first man to translate the Bible into English, was sixty years old when he finished his task. The work belongs to the final period of his life, that time during which he was greatly persecuted by both the church and state. The Wycliffe version was addressed to the entire English people, high and low, rich and poor. This is proved by the character of the copies that have survived. About thirty of these remain and some are large folio volumes, hand-somely written and illustrated in the best style of the period. Others are plain copies of ordinary size for private persons or monastic libraries.—Detroit News.

Beryllium

The bureau of mines says that beryllium is a rare metal and is found in considerable quantity only in one mineral—beryl, which contains only at the most about 5 per cent of beryllium. The process of extracting the metal is expensive and difficult. At present it is quoted at about $200 per pound. There is no market except for experimental purposes. If there were a definite market it is possible that it could be made for $15 or less per pound. It is not magnetic. It is a fair conductor of electricity, and is not stronger than good steel. As it is easily oxidized by heat, it would be difficult to cast.

Modern Methods

Muddlecombe was one of the very latest model villages, and all the houses were brand new.

A prospective resident was being shown over a small "Old-world cottage" she hoped to buy by a very enthusiastic estate agent.

"But where is the kitchen?" asked the woman, after making a tour of the place.

The estate agent consulted his plan of the first floor. Then he looked up quickly.

"Oh, you provide that yourself!" he answered blandly. "Any really good shop will sell you a combination kitchenette and dining table."

Ambergris Loses in Value

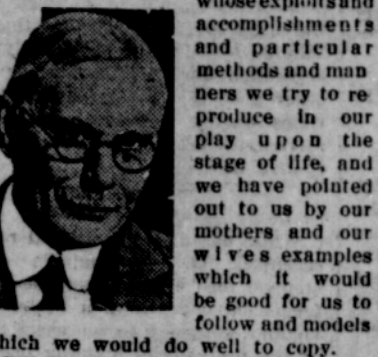

While ambergris is still quite valuable, it does not possess the value it did years ago. There is not the demand now for it that there used to be. Ambergris was chiefly used in the perfume-making industry, some of the most fragrant odors being produced from the evil-smelling stuff; but the advances of synthetic chemistry in recent years have not only made it possible for chemists to imitate exactly the composition of the compound, but also to produce artificially other and better aromas at the one hundredth part of the cost of ambergris.

A pinch of soda in the milk when making cream of tomato soup usually prevents curdling.

BEING YOURSELF

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

I suppose we are all more or less imitators. We have our secret heroes whose exploits and accomplishments and particular methods and manners we try to reproduce in our play upon the stage of life, and we have pointed out to us by our mothers and our wives examples which it would be good for us to follow and models which we would do well to copy.

Bill Thompson was the model which mother selected for my ideal of conduct and accomplishment. If I could only be as good a boy as Bill was all would be well with me in this world and the next. If I could do my work as carefully and conscientiously as he did success would reward my efforts, and the way in which he helped his mother about the house was gratifying to all the neighbors. Bill and I never got on well together. I disliked him from the start and profited very little, I am afraid, from his noble example.

Nancy has pointed out to me often what wonderful manners Seth Taylor has—how careful he is with his teeth and his finger nails. They simply glitter with the high polish which constant attention gives them. And he is one of the most thoughtful and tactful men she has ever met. He doesn't make much of a hit with me in spite of his slick appearance.

I ran onto Chester when I was out West a few weeks ago, and we got talking about his uncle who is a professor in one of the eastern colleges now—psychology or sociology or psychiatry he professes. The uncle has been abroad some and studied for a while in New England. He was born in Ludlow or Fisher or some near-by Illinois village and ran across the prairie bare-footed like the rest of us. He used as much slang and bad grammar as any other native born and fattened his a's beautifully; but he picked up a wonderful manner and exaggerated New England pronunciation somewhere and is now no more like himself than Lindbergh is like Charlie Chaplin. He's a joke to any one who knew him when he was a boy, for his manner and his pronunciation and his assumed erudition are a disguise which tends to hide his real self.

It's a mistake to try to be anyone else or to imitate anyone else. The great men of the world, no matter how little the world is in which they do their work, have been individual. They have gone at things in their own particular way. They have not tried to stifle their own personality or to camouflage it by pretending to be something that they are not.

I met Jimmy Dawson last May. Irish Jimmy is, with a sense of humor. He's been everywhere in the world since I last saw him thirty years ago. He's met great men in all countries; he's a great man himself—rich and influential, but he's still at heart the same hearty, natural, unaffected Irishman I knew when he was a lad. He's himself.

From 8,000 to 10,000 telephone calls are handled in two hours every working day at the Fordson offices of the Ford Motor company. The peak telephone loads are between 9 and 10 A. M. and 2 to 3 P. M.

FACTS ABOUT THE TELEPHONE

There are now five private telephone companies operating in Italy.

Great Britain now has telephone communication with eighteen foreign countries.

More than 1,000,000 telephone calls are made in the city of San Francisco every twenty-four hours.

Eighteen telephone cables have been placed in the Pennsylvania tube under the North River, New York City, since January, 1914.

An average of 920,000 telephone calls including over 9000 toll and long distance calls, are made every twenty-four hours in the city of Pittsburgh.

The 600,000th telephone was recently installed in the London telephone area which has more than one-third of the total telephones in Great Britain and Ireland.

A total of 99,000 miles of telephone wire were added to the Bell system in the state of Wisconsin during 1928. This brings the total mileage within the state up to 1,225,000 miles.

J. W. Turton of Miles, Mich., has driven the three Ford automobiles he has owned a distance equal to nine times around the world, has never been out of gas, oil or water and has never had an accident. He purchased his first Ford, a touring car, in 1915, drove it 103,200 miles and then sold it for $125 cash.

Father Sage Says

A philosopher says that one has to be in business with a man or in love with a woman in order to know that he doesn't know them.

Presents of Mind

The small son of the house had just informed his parents that he had been dreaming during the night. "Well, and what did you dream about?" asked his father. "I dreamt that you gave me a pedaling motor car, daddy," began the small boy, "and mother gave me a box of soldiers." "But you know, dear, that dreams always mean the opposite," "Oh, yes!" The youngster was undismayed. "But, then, I shall get the soldiers from you, an' mummy'll give me the motor."
