CIVIC BEAUTY

Civic beauty takes in too much territory for us to work on now, so we must beautify our own little patch, then the result will be easy to look at, at least. Much could be written about walks and borders, sundials, bird baths and pools, rustic arbors, and garden furniture, but I do not believe we need that just now. What we need is something to make our homes look nice with the least expense and labor. First of these would be paint.

In summer we can hide our buildings with vines, and the trees and other greenery can detract from the ugliness, but when winter comes our unpainted buildings look bad. So let's paint our buildings. It costs but little if you do the work yourself, and it surely is worth while. No matter how nice your yard and garden may be the unpainted buildings do not provide a good background. The next things to be considered are trees and lawns—by all means have a lawn. The biggest job in planting a lawn is providing the seed bed. It need not be rich, but should be very fine and free from trash and perfectly level. If you intend to irrigate it, it is better to flood the ground before seeding to make sure that all corners will be irrigated. Time spent here will be well spent. Three pounds of clover and two pounds of blue grass is a good mixture. Rake in well and irrigate every other day. We had good success with starting a new lawn under old apple trees, so don't think that you can't have a lawn because of trees.

Next comes the planting of trees. When we settled this project our first thought was shade and wind-breaks. We planted our trees without much thought of the effect on the scenery, and we do not like to cut them down now and replace with others at more artistic locations around our houses. One thing to consider though is—do they shade the lawn around the house? And do they provide too much shade on the house? And do they shut off the air? We should plant a few trees every year. Black walnuts do well here. Fancy varieties are seldom worth while. A lawn and green trees make a home look nice without much labor. But we all like flowers, so let us plant those that require the least work.

Shrubs would come first. Do not plant these in the lawn, but mass them for a background. Several planted at one place look better than those scattered over a large area. Varieties that grow well here are snowball, lilac, mock orange and several spireas. Rose of Sharon is a lovely shrub but must be wrapped in winter. The common elderberry is a nice shrub for background and it grows along the Umatilla river. Roses are not so nice around the lawn as they must be cultivated, so they are best for garden only. They require much care, too. Next to shrubs are perennials and these should be divided every three or four years as they will choke themselves out. Under this list I would put peony, lupine, iris, babybreath, hollyhock, shasta daisy, delphinium, hazy glox and many others. Phlox grow so well here that everyone should plant some.

Next in the list are annuals. This includes all plants that just live one season. They are too numerous to name, but some do better than others here. The dahlia is best to my notion, as they produce more blossoms for amount of labor than most others. Zinnias, marigolds, poppies, candytuft, asters, petunias, stocks, and many others. But these require a lot of cultivation and weeding as they cannot be planted close enough to choke out the weeds. Annuals may be planted on the spring flowering bulb bed.

Now this outline is more than one person can take care of, but you can choose your favorites from the list. However it is well to remember that a nice lawn and plenty of shade trees are nicer than unkempt flower beds, and they require less work.

As you know, every plant in the world that springs up naturally in any spot has selected that spot because it finds there the condition of light and air and moisture best adapted to its needs. In other words you will find that every square foot of soil all over the earth is covered by the vegetation that likes that particular kind of soil and location. And other things will not grow there without a struggle. All of which points to a moral. And that is: Always plan and plant your garden along the lines of least resistance. What with wind and irrigation difficulties, and hard winters and mildew, aphids and all other unpleasant things which lurk around determined to evade the wisest of those who plant either for pleasure or profit, gardening is very uncertain the best way we can fix it. Therefore we must make our heads save our hands by planting only those things best suited to our locality.

TESTING IT

The barber had evidently been out late the night before, for his hand was shaky and he cut his patron's cheek four times. After each offense he said, as he sponged off the blood, "Oh, dear me, how careless!" and let it go at that.

The patron said nothing but when the shave was over, he went to the water cooler and filled his mouth with water. Then, with tightly compressed lips, he shook his head from side to side, and tossed it up and down.

"What's the matter? Toothache?" asked the barber.
"Oh, no," replied the customer. "I just wanted to see if my face would still hold water."

Rhone's Rapid Current

Probably the most rapid river in the world, with the exception of some small streams which are merely torrents or cataracts, is the River Rhone, in France. At some seasons the current of this stream reaches a speed of 40 miles an hour. In the drier seasons, however, it drops to a rate of six miles an hour.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Invincibility Punishment" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, May 5.

The Golden Text was, "The Lord preserveth the strangers; he releaseth the fatherless and widow; but the way of the wicked he turneth upside down" (Psalms 146:9).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Many sorrows shall be to the wicked; but he that trusteth in the Lord, mercy shall compass him about. Be glad in the Lord, and rejoice, ye righteous: and shout for joy, all ye that are upright in heart" (Psalms 32:10,11).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures", by Mary Baker Eddy: "Let us remember that the eternal law of right, though it can never annul the law which makes sin its own executioner, exempts man from all penalties but those due for wrong-doing" (p.385).
