KEEPING UP WITH INVENTION

"Riding the brakes" and traveling "a la side door pullman," one-time popular modes of transportation for gentlemen of leisure, have been superseded by more up-to-date methods. On one of the west bound motor stages going thru Hermiston the other day, two fellows were comfortably ensconced on the back. When the stage stopped here, they wandered over to the sidewalk nonchalantly and waited until the bus started pulling out before they made a dash for their first-class seats in the rear. Stowing away on an airplane or zeppelin or stealing a ride on the back of a motor bus—it's all the same to these blasé descendants of the "side door pullman" era.

In not one of the lists of Portland's seven wonders did we find mention of the far-famed "Oregon mist."

Mrs. Willebrandt with her prohibition articles seems to have stolen the front page from the endurance fliers, murderers and divorcees.

If you are raising anything bigger and better than ever before, save it for the Umatilla Project Fair, October 4 and 5.

The little chorus girl kissed her sweetie and said, "So long, I'll see you later."

BANKERS DEVELOP NOVEL INSTITUTE

The Georgia Bankers Association in cooperation with the State College of Agriculture has sponsored a series of farmers' institutes in various parts of the State of an entirely new character. The principle feature is a large and comprehensive exhibit transported in four large trucks and set up at each stop. When set up it fills a space 40 by 60 feet and consists of panels, charts, and models on practically every phase of agriculture, including agronomy, horticulture, agricultural engineering, poultry, animal husbandry, soils and fertilizers, home economics and marketing. A large electrified farm model, showing the uses of electricity on the farm, model farm buildings and the ideal layout and landscaping of the farmstead, is one of the most elaborate and attractive exhibits.

Local bankers in each locality visited gave the money to cover expenses for the transportation and installation of the exhibit in their territory and assisted in the preliminary advertising and publicity. The College of Agriculture assembled the exhibit and conducted the tour through its various extension specialists.
