1929 MERRY CHRISTMAS 1929

Tooth-Print Identification
Teeth prints have been added to finger prints and foot prints as means of identifying criminals. When inquiring into a burglary at a priest's house at Odense, Denmark, the police found teeth marks in candy in the form of a marzipan pig. A suspect's teeth were examined and found to tally with the marks on the candy.

Careless
In making a plea for the better care and upkeep of cars a mechanic said: "A car will last in proportion to the way it is treated. In this respect it is very human. Anything suffers from neglect. There are some men who take good care of an automobile; others treat it like one of the family."

Sharpest Vision
The distance that the human eye can see over the surface of the earth has never been definitely measured. The longest feats of unaided vision on record approach 200 miles. Observers on the Mediterranean coast of France are said to have sighted lights on Corsican mountains 183 miles away, and mirrors on Mount Shasta, Calif., were recently sighted from Mount Helena, a distance of 192 miles.

Renovating Engravings
Yellow stains on the margins of engravings can often be removed by using a solution of hydrochloride of soda, which is also known as Labarraque's solution.

The high school play, "Watch Your Step, Wilton," which was presented by the students Saturday evening was a decided success. A good crowd was present. Local talent furnished the music for a few hours of dancing after the play, making it a very enjoyable evening for all.

The H. E. club had the final drawing for the lovely slumber robe that had been exhibited at the fair. The lucky winner was Mrs. W. T. Bray of Umatilla. Mrs. W. C. Isom, chairman of the H. E. C., accompanied by Mrs. J. Smith, resented the robe to Mrs. Bray at her home Sunday.

Mrs. W. C. Isom and daughter visited the school Wednesday for the purpose of organizing 4-H clubs for the coming year. Sewing clubs, divisions one, two and three, were organized with Mrs. Harry Smith, Dorothy Isom and Mrs. Frank Brace

Shirley Frederickson is to be the leader of cooking division two, and Mrs. E. Lamoreaux will be the leader of the Bachelor club. With such efficient leaders, the clubs during the coming year should be successful.

ODD BUILDINGS

On Route of Union Pacific Stages
Alice in Wonderland no doubt saw some odd buildings. She would feel right at home if she would ride a Union Pacific stage out Sandy Boulevard, Portland, and see people looking from the windows of a milk bottle, a jug and a mushroom.
This route also has a building called the Icicle and one named the Big Pump. Sandy Boulevard, which is a part of the Columbia River Highway, perhaps has as many odd shaped structures as any other highway. The milk bottle and the jug advertise the business of the people who own the buildings. The "milk bottle" is the home of a dairy company. It is also a station and agency of the Union Pacific Stages which run from Portland to Salt Lake City and Chicago via the Columbia River Highway.
The "Orange Blossom Jug" is a little restaurant and the jug, suggesting refreshment, is a very good advertisement for the business.
The mushroom-shaped service station has no special business significance but is a striking departure from commonplace architecture.
The large number of peculiar and fantastic buildings along this route just happened to intrigue the imagination of Tom Jennings, Traffic Manager of the Union Pacific Stages, and the result was a trip for the photographer who brought back the interesting photographs shown above.
The Union Pacific Stages operate five schedules daily between Portland and The Dalles, three to Pendleton, two to Spokane and two transcontinental schedules daily to Chicago.
The stages now give service to Denver, Kansas City and St. Louis and all eastern points and also run via Salt Lake City to Los Angeles.
