

BEES NOT BUILDING UP ON ACCOUNT WINTER

Beekeepers are complaining that the bees are not building up to their usual strength; the cold winds we have been blessed with for the past month having caused large losses of field bees and also destroying the flowers on which the bees should have been working. The cold weather has been particularly disastrous to queen bee rearing which now has been well under way.

LONGER SEASON FOR ASPARAGUS PREDICTED

Asparagus shipments are continuing and prospects seem to be for a longer season than usual. Also prices seem to be holding well as advices last week stated that shipments had been going out at a $1.15 and $1.25 a box. The time for delivery of asparagus in bulk to the cannery at Sunnyside has not been set as yet.

but according to the letter from the secretary at Kennewick, notice will be given to the growers. Last year Hermiston growers did not join in these shipments and no arrangement have so far been made for such shipments. It is said that asparagus can be trucked from here for considerable less than a cent a pound which would mean a fair price at the Sunnyside cannery.
