“OLD GLORY”

Saturday, June 14, will be Flag Day. All over the United States the “Gridiron Flag,” as foreigners contemptuously called it when our nation was young, will float in the pride of its 153 years.

We may not have reached—indeed, we have not fully reached, as we must admit—the perfection of this ideal. But we have come closer to it than any other considerable body of human beings has ever succeeded in doing.

Every government in the world, except ours, has undergone radical if not revolutionary changes since that 14th of June, 1777, when the Continental Congress officially adopted the Stars and Stripes, designed by Betsy Ross.

Nations that were old when we set out upon our great experiment have undergone revolution after revolution. Most of them have completely altered their governmental forms.

Denmark's flag, dating from the 12th century, and Switzerland's, nearly as old, are the only flags flying today which are older than our own Stars and Stripes.

A statistician would say if all the cars in the world were placed end to end in a single line they would extend to and so—

California has some good points, likewise fruit. We received from Bentley T. Mathews Growers of Arbuckle, a luscious crate of apricots typical of the Golden State.

We were wondering what was meant by “air-minded” until some of these high pressure salesmen called on us—the term should be hot-air minded.

India seems to have too many people—one too many, England should say—Mahatma Gandhi.

People who are too busy to enjoy a vacation are usually too busy to know the meaning of the word “failure.”
