SUMMER HEAT ON WINTER'S HIGHWAYS

"A far cry from the old foot warmers to the modern heating and ventilating system of the Union Pacific Stages," says General Agent McCredie.

Some of us remember the old soapstone foot warmers and the hot flatirons that mothers used to wrap up in an old quilt to keep our feet warm as we drove off to town in the now extinct buggy. No matter how warm one dressed it was always a wonderful comfort to take a little heat along on winter trips.

General Agent W. L. "Mac" McCredie of the Union Pacific Stages remembers the old foot warmer so well that he has a real appreciation of warm motor coaches. He has just returned to Portland from a trip over the Union Pacific Stages' lines, spent in inspecting the modern hot water heaters which keep the motor coaches as comfortable as home. Each of the de luxe transcontinental motor coaches has a new type heater in the front and the rear utilizing hot water from the water jacket of the engine. The heat is circulated by means of electric fans.

"Warm winter travel is our motto," said Mr. McCredie, "and we have instructed our drivers to watch the car temperatures, carefully maintaining summer heat. As our coaches are now equipped this is easily accomplished but, of course, requires careful attention.

"We will give unfailing service this winter regardless of snow, blizzards or 'silver thaws' for if the roads become impassable at any point our main line passengers are immediately transferred to the Union Pacific trains whose lines we parallel. This interchange between our stages and the trains of the Union Pacific, is a feature of added reliability which any one making a trip should consider. Many transcontinental travelers were transferred to the trains crossing the Continental Divide last winter when the weather was severe and arrived at their destination on time. A high way blockade in the Columbia Gorge or in Wyoming merely means that we send stage passengers without additional cost on our trains to points beyond the blocked road where they are transferred back to the Union Pacific Stages."

THEATRE NOTES

Edward Everett Horton tops his clowning career with "Wide Open," latest Warner Bros. and Vitaphone picture showing Friday and Saturday at the Oasis theatre. His support includes Patsy Ruth Miller, Louise Fazenda, Vera Lewis, T. Roy Barnes, E. J. Ratcliffe, Louise Beaver, Edna Murphy, Vincent Barnett, Lloyd Ingraham, Bobby Gordon and B.B.B. The play is based on the novel "The Narrow Street" by Edmund Bateman Morris. The adaptation is by James A. Starr and Arthur Caesar. Archie Mayo directed.

The hilarious comedy recounts the circumstances attending the transformation of the office boob into the office boss. It is another adventure in fear and is made extremely amusing, but at the same time human, by the work of Mr. Horton and his colleagues.

"Wide Open" is a worthy successor of Horton's other laughing successes, "The Hotentot," "The Sap" and "The Aviator."

Elinor Glyn, generally accepted as the world's widest road authoress who created her first sensation with "Three Weeks" and later with "It" wrote the story for "Such Men are Dangerous," Fox Movietone all talking drama, coming to the Oasis Theatre Sunday.

Miss Glyn is the younger daughter of the late Douglass Sutherland of Toronto, Canada, and is the wife of Clayton Glyn, M. P., of Durrington House and Sheering, Harlow, Essex, England. She has written many daring stories.

"Such Men Are Dangerous" concerns the fat of a multi-millionaire of repulsive appearance who disappears from his airplane while crossing the English Channel, but who, after being made over by a famous plastic surgeon, again makes love to his wife who had deserted him.

Warner Baxter and Catherine Dale Owen head the cast which includes Hedda Hopper, Albert Conti, Claud Allister and Bela Lugosi.

"Swift & Company Pays Me Cash For My Produce"

"When I take my butterfat, eggs and poultry to the nearest Swift & Company produce plant, I get the going market price for the best I can deliver. And I'm only one of the 200,000 producers taking supplies to the 80 odd Swift plants.

"That will give you some idea of the huge quantities which Swift & Company must buy each day in order to keep supplies of Brookfield Butter, Brookfield Eggs and Premium Milkfed Chickens moving along 600 car routes and 400 branch houses to every community in the country. This nation-wide distribution makes a Swift producer independent of local glut or shortages.

"Imagine how efficient this organization must be in order to pay cash to its 200,000 producers; to give its 45,000 shareholders a return on their investment—and, by the way, I'm one of those shareholders. And, finally, so that it can expand and thrive on a margin of less than 2 cents on each dollar of sales.

"Part of this organization of 58,000 people, who receive just wages, are home folks of ours. They live right here, build their homes with us, patronize our local merchants, pay taxes like you and me. You bet I'm glad to be in this family."
