A Big Step.

A big step was taken by wheat growers in this section of the state toward an attempt to solve the problem of increasing wheat acreage when a delegation from Washington and Oregon presented the Walla Walla wheat control plan to the Federal Farm Board at Washington, D. C. recently.

The East Oregonian carried the letter rejecting the Walla Walla wheat control plan.

"The plan as presented by you contemplates that wheat growers throughout the United States would be given an option, expiring July 1, 1932, by The Grain Stabilization Corporation, to purchase wheat, and that producers should be induced to curtail their acreage of wheat plantings for the 1932 harvest in an amount which, with normal yields, would equal in bushels the amount optioned to them.

"The Federal Farm Board cannot approve this plan. We do not believe it is likely to work to the advantage of the wheat producers of the country, or that we are justified, under the terms of the Agricultural Marketing Act, in authorizing the Stabilization Corporation to make the contracts suggested."

Members of the northwest delegation have a theory that the board rejected the plan because it has borrowed money on its wheat and there fore could not contract to sell the wheat to the farmers. The board has been shouting that the present low price of wheat is due to excessive acreage, but they make the statement that the plan to curtail acreage of wheat planting for 1932 would not work out advantageously to producers.

Would any plan presented to the Farm Board for the betterment of agriculture be accepted wholeheartedly? Nevertheless, they should be aware of the fact that producers are on the alert.

Newspaper Advertising.

There is this to be said for newspaper advertising: It doesn't shout at you when you are trying to concentrate on something else, it doesn't obscure the view and mar the landscape, it doesn't interrupt your enjoyment of a good grand opera program, it doesn't clutter up your mail and your waste basket, it doesn't make you turn to page 37 and then shuffle through eighteen more pages to finish your story, it doesn't clutter up your front yard or obtrude itself onto the seat of your motor car on Saturday afternoons. It is like a well trained servant—never intruding or making itself obnoxious, but always quietly at hand ready to give service when called upon.
