Stay With the Farm.

the land, and where there is enough to eat and a roof over their heads. The farmer replies that he has enough to eat but that profits are not such as to meet the payments on the mortgage.

C. L. Goodling, dean of the National Farm school at Doylestown, Pa., speaking the other day at the school's commencement exercise, sided with the farm as the best place to live. He said:

"In 1931, the foreclosure sales in Philadelphia numbered one sale for every 108 people living in the city, compared to one sale for every 394 people living on farms in the state of Pennsylvania."

Dean Goodling states that the decline in the prices of farm products since the hard times had not been so great as the decline in other commodities and, contrary to popular opinion, the trend is not away from agriculture but toward it.

CHURCH NOTES

BAPTIST CHURCH

The attendance at the Baptist church is so steadily increasing that we must take it as a sign that here is something going on there. It tells you what it is. The pastor is preaching the pure, unadulterated Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Another good reason is this: that souls are finding peace at the foot of the cross. One man who was regenerated as he knelt before God in the dirt of his own back yard last week, came to church Sunday and reported that although he had feared he could not have victory over sin, he had found it so easy that he had not sworn since he accepted Christ as his Savior.

Next Sunday the morning subject will be, "The Temple of the Holy Spirit," and in the evening the pastor will speak on, "The Sign of the Fish."

The children's meeting will be held every Tuesday at 3:45 p. m. instead of Friday. The high school is entering on a schedule of baseball games on Friday and many of the children want to go to both events.

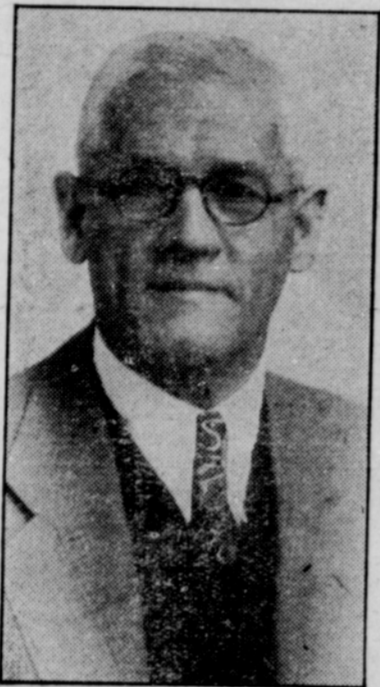

Don't forget the Bible study period Wednesday evenings, beginning at 7:30.
