WAR PICTURE FRIDAY AND SATURDAY AT OASIS

"The Broken Lullaby," filmed and originally released under the title, "The Man I Killed," is the next attraction at the Oasis.

For several reasons this photoplay comes heralded as one of the outstanding pictures of this or any other recent season. Its reputation is based upon a great story, written by the French playwright, Maurice Rostand; upon the acting of its three principal players, Lionel Barrymore, Nancy Carroll and Phillips Holmes; and upon the work of its director, one of Hollywood's accepted geniuses, Ernst Lubitsch.

"The Broken Lullaby" is said to be a gripping story of drama and romance, the story of events in the life of a youthful soldier of France's war-time army during the days following closely upon the armistice.

Particularly has the work of Barrymore been hailed as one of the great performances of recent days. As the German father who finds his heart entwined in hatred for the French, only to be won over by the youngful Frenchman, his portrayal is said to be superb. Only slightly less enthusiastic has been the praise for Holmes and Miss Carroll in their difficult roles.

The remainder of the cast contains several well-known screen players, including Louise Carter, ZaSu Pitts, Lucien Littlefield, Tully Marshall, and Emma Dunn.

WITH FARMERS AROUND THE STATE

CANYON CITY—A pool of nearly 4000 pounds of Grimm alfalfa seed was made up and ordered for 34 Grant county farmers during the past month by County Agent R. G. Johnson. The amounts ordered by individuals ranged from 10 to 300 pounds. An order was also included for 174 pounds of South Dakota No. 12 alfalfa for T. Kennedy and L. V. Stewart.

DALLAS—Here is a case where determination and perseverance were not regarded as virtues. When W. Frank Crawford of Zena plowed under his strawberry planting and set out gooseberries in their place, the strawberry root weevils, deprived of their natural feed, promptly attacked the gooseberries. The pest was identified by J. R. Beck, county agent, and a spray of lead arsenate and the standard apple poison bait were recommended for its control.
