BEND—Spartan barley, a new variety for Central Oregon, is being tried out on the Herman Ranch ranch at Terrence from this year, using seed obtained from Michigan through the office of County Agent Gus Hanglund. This barley is said to be of special value as a nurse crop for clover. It has exceptionally stiff straw, thus reducing the amount of lodging, and yields well.

ZANE GREY PICTURE AT OASIS SUNDAY AND MONDAY.

Zane Grey's "The Rainbow Trail" will come to the Oasis theatre screen for Sunday and Monday as the third of this most famous author's books to be offered in picture form during the past year. In the leading role will be George O'Brien, who also starred in "Last of the Duanes" and "Riders of the Purple Sage."

The entire film was photographed in the lonely regions of the Grand canyon of the Colorado, bringing to the screen many scenes of awe-inspiring grandeur as well as a fast-paced and action-filled story. "The Rainbow Trail" is the sequel to "Riders of the Purple Sage" and another typical Zane Grey picture of the west. Playing opposite O'Brien is Cecelia Parker. The supporting cast includes Roscoe Ates, the stut-ting comedian; Minna Gombell, recently of Broadway; J. M. Kerrigan and James Kirkwood. Romance, drama and comedy are said to be equally blended throughout the film.

Slim Summerville in "First to Fight" is the supporting feature of something new in the movies—a four-reel featurette. When Universal shot the first of the Slim Summerville Marine Corps comedies, it found it had such laughable and entertaining footage in four reels that it was a shame to put a knife to it. Consequently, Slim Summerville enjoys the distinction to be the first comedian whose comedies are released in four reels. The Fox news shows pictures of assassinated French President.

A few farmers in Columbia are cutting their first crop of alfalfa. There is a shortage of cured hay and the fresh hay will help the demand. The warm weather is bringing the crops up in fine shape and most of the first hay crop will be over by the last of May.

WITH FARMERS AROUND THE STATE

OREGON CITY—The effectiveness of planting grass seed in the spring, as well as the ability of certain grasses to survive on land that is very wet in winter and spring, and very dry in summer, will be determined in a new trial planting on the farm of Charles Grassick at Estacada. The trial arranged by County Agent J. J. Inskip, with seed supplied by the Oregon Experiment station. Grasses included are English ryegrass, velvet grass, harding grass, red top, Astoria ladino grass, white clover, timothy, ladino clover and Reed canary grass.

McMINNVILLE—Several Yamhill county poultrymen are adopting a green feed program recommended by County Agent S. T. White to reduce feed costs this year. The program calls for the establishment of small plots of alfalfa, supplemented with

BULK HANDLING OF GRAIN IS COMING IN OREGON.

"An ultimate shift to bulk handling of grain over much of the Pacific Northwest is desirable and may be expected, but the change should be made cautiously."

This is the conclusion reached in a study of "Farm-management Problems in Shifting from Sack to Bulk Handling of Grain in the Pacific Northwest," and just reported on in a technical bulletin by that name issued by the United States department of agriculture. The study was made as a cooperative project between the federal department and state experiment stations of Oregon, Washington and Idaho, with G. W. Kuhlman, assistant economist in farm management, representing Oregon.

Though grain is now shipped in bulk from terminal points in Oregon and Washington, more than 60 per cent of the crop received at Columbia River and Puget Sound terminals has still arrived in sacks in recent years, the bulletin shows. The study sought by actually visiting and assembling data on 316 farms to determine the relative economy of bulk and sack handling methods under present conditions.

Combining with bulk handling required less labor than with sack handling, and the labor used is less strenuous so that younger or older men of the farm families are used, thus cutting cash expense, the study showed. Hauling grain in bulk is also easier but not cheaper than hauling sacked grain. Four times as much labor is needed to load a 40-ton car with sacked grain as is needed to load bulk grain.

Cost of converting sack-harvesting equipment to bulk handling ranged upward from $150, the survey showed. Many ingenious means of surmounting local difficulties were found and some of these are reported on in the well-illustrated bulletin.

Lack of adequate storage and handling facilities for bulk grain at the county shipping points has been the greatest single factor in retarding more general adoption of bulk handling methods on the farm. Care is needed, the investigators say, to coordinate the movement toward bulk handling so that facilities at county shipping points and terminal markets will keep pace with the ever increasing volume of bulk grain from the farms.

RACING THRILLS IN "DEVIL'S LOTTERY" AT OASIS THEATRE.

In addition to the actual running of the English Derby, the most famous event in the world of racing, "Devil's Lottery," Fox production, starring Elisha Landi, which plays Friday and Saturday at the Oasis theatre, is said to contain many scenes of equal interest to racing fans.

One of these scenes show the various groups of fortune telling gypsies, so characteristic of Derby Day, in sharp contrast to the members of royalty and the "smart people" arriving in coaches and drags. Another shows the bookies at work and the tipsters plying their trade.

And still another shows the drawing of the lucky tickets of the Calcutta sweepstakes, which plays an important part in the theme of the picture. This event is attended with much pomp and ceremony, with the two large glass barrels containing the numbered tickets and the tickets bearing the names of the Derby entrants, being turned by British soldiers, while bank tellers tally the results as two blind children draw the lucky tickets.

Victor McLaglen, Alexander Kirkland, Paul Cavanaugh and Byrl Mercer also featured in "Devil's Lottery" which Sam Taylor directed.

Two good short features are on this bill, "The Cannonball," a two reel comedy and another Mickey Mouse cartoon, "Mickey Cuts Up."
