O. S. C. BULLETIN ISSUED ON ANIMAL AND SQUIRREL PESTS.

Oregon has the reputation of being first in a great many notable achievements but one of her "firsts" is a doubtful honor. The United States bureau of biological survey is authority for the statement that no state has a greater variety of small animal pests than Oregon and that in consequence it suffers crop losses unless constant effort at control of these pests is carried out.

To help the farmers in this battle the Oregon Extension service has just published a revision of a former bulletin which is entitled, "Controlling Rodent and Other Small Animal Pests in Oregon." This bulletin, by Ira N. Gabrielson, assistant federal biologist, gives concise information regarding methods of combatting the various small animal pests in this state.

For many years the biological survey, one of the bureaus of the U. S. department of agriculture, has been perfecting practical methods of exterminating wild animal pests and has applied such methods successfully over a wide area. Here in Oregon the county agents work in close cooperation with the survey staff and organize community campaigns using the methods of control worked out by the federal experimenters.

Sixteen small animal pests are considered in the revised bulletin just issued. These are ground-squirrels (Douglas, Oregon, Columbian, Piute and Townsend), black-tailed rabbits, pocket gophers (Willamette valley and White-toothed), woodchuck, mountain beaver, field mice, house mice, brown rat, kangaroo rat, porcupine and Oregon mole.

U. OF O. STUDENT FORCES JOIN TO FIGHT CONSOLIDATION.

University of Oregon, June 22. (Special)—In a determined effort to bring to all corners of the state the true facts bearing on the question of consolidating the two major institutions of higher education of the state, University of Oregon students, under the direction of Arthur Potwin, Albany, are girding themselves for an intensive canvass of the state this summer, in an attempt to show the fallacious nature of the claims to economy being made by the consolidation bill's proponents.

In this district, under the direction of Robert Miller of Pendleton, who will act as chairman of the Eastern Oregon district, are six county chairmen. James Ferguson of Pendleton will direct the students' fight against the claims of the Marion County Tax League in Umatilla county. Marian Henderson of Hermiston, Robert Wagner of Helix, Henry Hayden of Echo, Kathleen Radke of Athena, Gilbert Olinger of Milton, Wallace Baker of Stanfield, and Theresa Nelson of Pilot Rock have been named city chairmen in Umatilla county. John King of Freewater will serve as assistant district chairman.

At a meeting of the entire state committee held just prior to the closing of the University for the summer vacation, Potwin, the state chairman who will maintain offices in Eugene, explained to the group the lines on which the fight will be conducted. Briefly the arguments against the proposed measure, as outlined by Potwin, are: 1. The proposed bill would cost the state from two million to six million dollars in new buildings alone were the 2,500 students of the University to be transferred to Corvallis. 2. That figures of the U. S. Office of Education reveal that the cost per student in states where the university and the state college are on one campus is $61 more annually than in states where the institutions are operated separately as in Oregon, and that the state of Oregon, at present spending $351 per student, would, if it were to rank up to the average of consolidated institutions, have to spend approximately $60 more per student a year, or an increased cost of $282,000 annually.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON SUMMER SCHOOL IN SESSION.

University of Oregon, Eugene, June 21.—(Special) Summer session of the University of Oregon at Eugene and Portland opened Monday, June 20, and indications at Eugene are that attendance there will equal that of last summer, it was stated here today by Dr. Dan E. Clark, director for the Eugene campus. Last summer the enrollment was nearly 800.

Unusual interest is being shown in the clinical school for atypical children, to be conducted in connection with the school of education, and in art courses to be offered here. The law school is also offering for the first time this year an unusually complete schedule of courses.

The clinical school will be in charge of Dr. Grace M. Fernald, specialist from Los Angeles, and Dr. E. W. DeBusk and Miss Lillian Raynor of the university staff. Diagnostic examinations will be given at the outset, as the school is designed for children who are hampered by certain psychological or achievement difficulties. Credit will be given for teachers taking observation work in this course.

Interest in art is centering on courses to be given by Eugen G. Steinhoff, architect from Zentral Verelengung, Austria, who will teach "The Psychology of Art Teaching." Enrollment in the school of art will be swelled this summer by a number of educators who have been granted scholarships by the Carnegie Corporation. These scholarships provide the students with funds for tuition and materials while here. The University is the only school in the West to be selected for this work, which in the East centers at Harvard.

Other noted faculty members on the Eugene and Portland staffs include M. Ellwood Smith, newly chosen director of the lower division system of the state board of higher education; Jessie Gay Van Cleve, specialist in Children's Literature, American Library Association, Chicago; Ernest Sutherland Bates, writer and lecturer of New York; Willie Nelson Collins, writer and world traveler; Sadie Orr-Dunbar, executive secretary of the Oregon Tuberculosis Association; Alexander Goldwiser, professor of thought and culture; Bernard Hinshaw, artist of Chicago; C. R. Holloway, assistant superintendent of schools, Portland; and Charles N. Reynolds, associate professor of sociology, Stanfield.

Courses in practically all schools and departments will be given here and in Portland, and with post session which begins August 1 and lasts for four weeks, a student may take a full term's work during the summer, making in fact a year's round schedule available.

Would the Drink Habit Help Me to Become a Good Lawyer?

A lawyer is very important in this age. Men use to settle their arguments by duels, fights, etc., but now they hire intelligent men to prove who is right, hence a lawyer must not be subject to strong drink. He needs a clear, active brain. Alcohol makes you dull and careless; it makes your memory poor, and a good-lawyer needs an active memory to store away knowledge. Also a drinker's brain is soon weakened, and he cannot comprehend what he reads. An ignorant lawyer may think a few drinks cannot hurt him. Does not the foolish appearance he makes while under its influence injure his reputation? A stifling headache always dulls one's brain, and there are few drinkers who awake feeling fresh and strong. Does not the habit which gradually grows upon him injure his practice—suppose your life was at stake, would you not want a clear-headed, intelligent lawyer? Some say liquor makes you talk more fluently, but suppose it should affect you that way or suppose you should say something you shouldn't. Ah! For strong drink makes you do and say many a thing you regret. A lawyer is supposed to represent the law, when he indulges in alcohol he is breaking it. And why should I drink? No normal person likes the taste of alcohol until they create an appetite for it and who on this earth likes to be made a fool of? "Wine is a mocker," it's subtlety is unequalled. If I am to be an able lawyer, my motto should be "Look not upon the wine when it is red for at the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder."

ROMANTIC TEAM MAKES FILM BOW AT OASIS THEATRE.

Romantic love teams are again the rage on the screen. The latest pair, which is said to rival the famous Gwynn-Farrell and Dunn-Elers combinations, is now making its bow to local fans in "After Tomorrow." Fox emotional drama, current feature at the Oasis theatre Sunday and Monday.

The team is composed of Charles Farrell and Marion Nixon, whose unshatterable faith in each other in this tensely human drama of the present day American home makers for one of the most beautiful screen romances of the present season.

Farrell again reverts to the workaday role that first won him stardom and in which he is at his best. Miss Nixon is seen as his wistful, trusting sweetheart whose belief in his eventual success transcends all opposition.

Minna Gombell and Mrs. Josephine Hull portray the youngsters—unsympathetic mothers, whose sentimental and selfish objections to their marriage constitute the chief dramatic conflict to the story. William Collier, Sr., as Miss Nixon's weak but understanding father, William Parson, as Miss Gombell's clandestine lover, Ferdinand Munder, Nora Lane, Greta Granstedt and many others are to be seen in the large supporting cast.

It was Frank Borzage, Fox director, who first brought Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor before the spot light of fame in the memorable silent picture, "7th Heaven," and again it was Mr. Borzage who introduced James Dunn and Sally Eilers to movie fans as a starring team in "Bad Girl." To this same team this new team of romantics owes its birth, for it was Borzage who chose Farrell for the leading role in the screen drama and then selected Miss Nixon from a host of leading screen artists as Farrell's co-star.

"After Tomorrow" is the screen version of the successful John Golden-Hugh Stange stage success and was adapted for the silver sheet by Sonya Levien.

LINSLAW—Among the 200 Lane county cooperators in the year "round gardening project is one here who expects to improve upon her record of 1930-31. Last year her garden produced vegetables and fruits valued at $336.76. Of these she canned $56.40 worth of vegetables and $118 worth of fruit. In addition this homemaker stored or used fresh vegetables amounting to $70.08 and fruits valued at $92.28. The state wide trend toward living-at-home or "homemade living" is gaining impetus. The garden project is supervised by Gertrude Skow, home demonstration agent and O. S. Fletcher, agricultural agent.

NEW COMEDY TEAM IN 'UNEXPECTED FATHER'

Slim Summerville and Zasu Pitts. That is the star-spangled combination of laugh experts that Universal has placed together for the first time in "Unexpected Father," the attraction Friday and Saturday at the Oasis theatre.

It was popular demand that elevated the tall, lanky Tjaden of "All Quiet on the Western Front" and the playful Marine whom virtually every theatre-goer promptly recognizes to feature picture stardom, and it, probably, was a happy thought to team him with the girl who has been called the screen's greatest comedienne, wistful-eyed Miss Pitts.

Slim plays the part of a gawky fellow of the rural districts who suddenly discovers enough oil in his back yard to transform him, overnight, from overalls to a house full of servants and riches. Zasu enters the scene as a nurse from the local dog hospital who comes to the millionaire's house by mistake to care for a sick puppy, but finds that Slim has just been adopted by a little waif of the streets who needs both care and love.

There is a new "kid" sensation in the film, Cora Sue Collins, who boasts of four years of existence and a great deal of natural acting ability and beauty. It is reported.

Dorothy Christy, the blond, willow "vamp" of many a devastating screen affair, Claude Allister, the popular English comedian, Allison Skipworth, Grace Hampton, and Tyrell Davis are also prominent among the cast.

Thornton Freeland, the man who filmed "Whoopie" and "Alibi," directed "The Unexpected Father," and Max Lief and Robert Kief wrote the screen story.
