UMATILLA PROJECT FAIR DIRECTORS OUTLINE PROGRAM

PREMIUM LISTS WILL BE READY IN TWO WEEKS.

Sheep and Rabbit Divisions Eliminated, and Money Placed in 4-H Club Division.

Members of the board of directors for the Umatilla Project Fair have been burning the midnight oil in order to lay plans for the approaching fair which will be shown Friday and Saturday, October 6 and 7.

Approximately $2000 in prize money will be awarded as premiums. Added to the women's division in a hooked rug class and made-over dress and coat class. A few prizes have been added to the 4-H club demonstration work. These additions are allowed for by the elimination of the sheep and rabbit divisions.

The first award in the dairy cattle division has been cut from $5.00 to $4.00 but the others remain the same. No additions have been made in that division, says C. A. Lynch, superintendent.

The main prizes in the farm produce division this year will be awarded to those making individual displays, according to Superintendent, J. Jendrzewski. Awards have been set at $12, $10, $8, $6, and $4. Last year the farm display showed the main products grown on individual farms. Mrs. Kopycz of Stanfield was awarded first prize. She showed a miniature of her dairy farm with poultry, sheep, hay, vegetable garden illustrated. It is thought that this division will be rich with displays this year due to the bountiful year for produce.

So far all other divisions have been left the same as last year with the exception of one or two changes. Prize money formerly used in the sheep and rabbit division will be shifted to the 4-H club division, which division is one of the primary reasons for maintaining the Umatilla Project Fair.

At the fair board meeting Tuesday night, directors voted to add a horseshoe tournament as a new feature for the fair this year. The tournament will be in session both days of the fair and entries will be taken at any time. Besides the tournament, an airplane will be on the grounds as well as concessions similar to those engaged last year. There will (Continued from Page 1)

OLD MAN PORTER SAYS

6. That he wishes to differentiate between the meaning of an equality where all of its terms are known, and an equality where one or more of its terms are unknown. The former he desires to call a concrete or positive equality and the latter an abstract or negative equality.

7. That life is an electric force having like signs and, therefore, unable to make choice because of sameness, and unable to reproduce itself for the same reason.

8. That conscious life is an electric force having unlike signs and is, therefore, able to make choice because of unlikeness, and is able to reproduce itself for the same reason.

9. That life because of its sameness is a repelling force, having no means in itself to measure inequality nor equality, hence, without the means of making choice, progress cannot be measured by inequality nor equality, "when taken by themselves."

10. That conscious life because of its unlikeness is an attracting force, having the means in itself to measure equality or inequality, therefore, it is able to make choice, and its progress can be measured by gain in its intelligence.

11. That conscious life is the product growing out of the union of the positive and negative electric impulses, and the origin of its consciousness is in the choice made of the positive and negative electric impulses with which it is in agreement. This is an innate trait of character belonging to all created things.

12. That ignorance is the "2 zero" in the ascending scale of progress, and choice equals zero plus one equals one equals the first step in the ascending scale of progress.

ALONG THE CONCRETE

Everything is coming down these days. Especially at the fair board meeting.

"Vienna claims to be the birthplace of the hot-dog," but give us the hot-dog stands. We could not have a county fair without them. The editor stood at the nearby gate, his face was worn and old.

He meekly asked the man of fate admission to the fold.

"What have you done?" St. Peter asked, "to seek admission here?"

"Oh, I ran a country printing shop on earth for many a year."

The gate swung open sharply as Peter touched the bell.

"Come in," he said, "and take a harp. You've had enough of—trouble."
