Stretch Out of the Shell.

This year, of all years, every individual needs to muster all the courage in his or her being to maintain a cheerful outlook. It is the individual that makes up the community, the state, and the nation and the mental attitude generally will make a success of enterprises that would otherwise be a miserable failure.

It is again time for the Umatilla Project Fair which is being staged in the face of opposition; not especially individual opposition, but the opposition of that tide called "depression" that is crowding our nation. That spark of courage has gone out for many people, but the fair board has been optimistic from the beginning in making plans for the fair and are counting on the continuation of the fair traditions.

For the first time in the history of the project fair, a permanent display building will be built. The expense of putting up the temporary building each year will be added to make improvements on the permanent exhibit room until it is satisfactory to every need.

The fair board will be calling for volunteer workmen to aid in putting up the new building. That is the time when every resident on the project who finds it possible will be needed to lend a hand. It is not the fair board's fair, but a Umatilla Project Fair which brings returns in many ways to Hermiston and surrounding community. Don't hatch up a feeble excuse when asked to assist in the erection of this building, but put a broad grin on your face and say, "Sure, I'll be on the job for a few hours."

It is not your town, or my town but with every person working to gether the majority are benefitted. Show the real community spirit and stretch out of your shell; race to the assistance of the Umatilla Project Fair.

Weed Them Out.

An editorial carried by the News Telegram during the American Legion national convention in Portland two weeks ago commenting on the bonus army question, just about voices the sentiment of this paper. Since that time the Legion has passed a resolution advocating full payment of the bonus.

The editorial is headed "How the Bonus Fight Stacks Up," and goes on to say: "The American Legion, meeting in Portland, favors payment of a cash bonus to ex-service men. Financial leaders call this 'looting the treasury' and 'racketeering,' they sneer at veterans as 'panhandlers.'"

"Well, if shoveling $3,400,000,000 out of the treasury and into banks, insurance companies, railroads and steamship lines wasn't pretty much the same thing, what was it? The Legion says payment of the bonus in cash is simply justice. It is. And a delayed justice, too. But, outside of the veterans and the financial world, there is another section of the population to consider: The great mass of hard pressed taxpayers."

"The great majority of these favor bonus payment—the great majority, too, wonders how in heck it can find the money. The heart is willing, but the bankbook is weak. And that's how it stands today. Meanwhile, the Legion should insist that racketeers who have attached themselves to veterans' relief funds should be pried loose. Millions of dollars a year are being paid to persons who have no shadow of claim for compensation."

Mahatma Gandhi.

Mahatma Gandhi, 90 pound Hindu patriot, has begun "a fast unto death" to express his disappointment in the efforts of the British government to revise the Indian electoral system and failure to represent, the lower classes. "Taxation without representation" was the cause of the Revolutionary War; American sympathy of the condition of the dark skinned liberty seekers rises from the same emotion that caused our forefathers to risk their lives in the venture which gave our nation its freedom. We hope this effort of Gandhi's will prove to be a "Yorktown."

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON OPENS 1932 FOOTBALL SCHEDULE.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Sept. 21—(Special) University of Oregon will open its 1932 football schedule Friday night against Pacific University. The game will be played here on Hayward field, under flood lights.

Despite the inexperience of the Webfoot machine, and especially the backs, Prink Callison, new coach, hopes to put out one of the finest teams in Oregon's history.

Callison, however, is going to be handicapped by the toughness of the schedule. Oregon, as no other team in the conference, plays three tough eleven in the first three weeks of the season. After the Pacific tilt Oregon takes Santa Clara here October 1. Then comes Washington in their traditional battle at Portland October 8. The California Bruins meet the Webfoots, also in Portland, October 15, in the annual Shrine game.

Methodist Episcopal Church. O. W. Payne, Minister. Sunday School at 10:00 A. M. Morning Worship at 11:00 A. M. Sermon subject, "The Abundant Life." Epworth League at 6:30 P. M. No evening preaching service Sunday.

The church and Epworth League will give a reception to all the teachers of the Hermiston schools, Friday from 8:00 to 10:00 P. M. Baptist Church Notes. E. J. Cain, Pastor. Because the pastor will be at the Baptist Association conferences at Athena, there will be no preaching services at the Baptist church Sunday, but a musical program is being arranged to fill the morning worship hour, at 11:00 o'clock.

The Umatilla Baptist association meets this week end at the Athena church. It will begin Friday evening at 6:30 and continue through Sunday evening. Delegates from our church are Donald Serell and Melvin Follett. Mr. Serell also represents the Young People's Society. The pastor and his wife will also be there. The pastor is one of the conference speakers. No services at Hermiston will be discontinued because of the conference.

Come to the Baptist Church next Sunday. You will hear the preaching of the Gospel of Jesus Christ just as it is revealed in God's Holy Word, the Bible. Remember, "We preach the whole Bible, not a Bible full of holes."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Matter" was the subject of the Lesson - Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 18.

The Golden Text was, "Every man is brutish in his knowledge; every founder is confounded by the graven image; for his molten image is falsehood, and there is no breath in them" (Jeremiah 10:14). Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "The day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat" (II Pet. 3:10).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures", by Mary Baker Eddy: "Spirit and matter can neither co-exist nor cooperate, and one can no more create the other than Truth can create error, or vice versa. In proportion as the belief disappears that life and intelligence are in or of matter, the immortal facts of being are seen, and their only idea or intelligence is in God." "Matter disappears under the microscope of Spirit" (pp.273, 264).

LOCAL WOMAN AWARDED FIRST PRIZE ON BABY GIRL STORY

(Continued from Page 1) "I heard her exclaim, then she called to us. We all rushed to see what was the matter. We found the prettiest, brown-eyed baby you ever saw."

"Well, to make a long story short my husband and I adopted the baby at once. She was just what I'd been wanting. She has grown up into a splendid child and a very talented one. My husband and I both adore her and she has brought much happiness to a childless home. "So who can doubt my faith in an Oregonian ad?" Here's Story of Cows.

"After living on a farm near Bridel Veil for nearly six years, we moved back to Portland. We sold all of our stock with the exception of three cows.

"An Oregonian want ad placed our cows in pasture near Beaverton and we rented a house in Portland. "We had the Oregonian delivered daily and I watched the ads each day. Finally, in the 'swap' column, I found an ad: "Wanted—Cows for city lot." In a few days the trade was made, the cows going to Parkrose. We took possession of the lot.

"Then the ads revealed an equity in a house for sale. The builder agreed to take the lot and some cash for equity.

"Eight months later a trade was made for a houseboat. "The houseboat was traded for six lots.

"Two of these lots were sold, two were traded as part payment on a new house. "The new house was sold through a two-line Oregonian ad and now we are living in our own home. I still own two lots and a contract, all due to Oregonian want ads."

The third prize story, submitted by Mrs. Bradford, was as follows: "An Oregonian ad, some years back brought me much happiness and satisfaction to a young man whose unmarried mother left him when a few weeks old in a baby home, immediately leaving for parts unknown herself.

"Being an unusually attractive child he was soon taken for adoption by a worthy couple, who reared him as their own. "In course of time the foster mother died. The foster father deciding to remarry did not want the boy longer—told him the real facts of his birth, urged him to search for his own mother, whose name he knew.

"This boy proceeded to do finally advertising for information regarding her whereabouts. This ad reached the eye of a relative of the mother who quickly answered and arranged a meeting for mother and son. She was living in a distant city but hurried to Portland to greet her boy. "The joy and gladness, the tears and laughter of that meeting could not be described. Two days later the boy left for France as a private in the United States army, being fully assured that when he returned a hearty welcome would be awaiting him in a real home that "mother" had established for herself."

HONEST!

Honesty of characterization and sincerity of speech and manner are the requirements of every James Dunn screen story. This was discovered with his sensational success in "living" the role of the inarticulate husband in "Bad Girl," and has been repeatedly emphasized in each of his later films, most recently called "Dance Team," in which he recreated a small time hooper with mirror like faithfulness.

"Society Girl," Dunn's latest Fox hit, playing at the Oasis theatre Friday and Saturday, was chosen specifically for him because of the opportunity for genuine characterization. His role is that of an uncutured prizefighter pitted against the wiles of a social play girl.

OLD MAN PORTER SAYS

19—That, concisely stated: The purpose of creation is to develop a Mass Consciousness to supplant individual consciousness.

20—That to state it more concisely: The purpose of creation is to develop "intelligence" which will bring into being Physical Immortality.

21—That all things presenting themselves either directly or indirectly to the five senses are products of the Unlike Electric Impulses; that in a physical sense these Electric Impulses are brought into being directly by the employment of Work or its two equivalents, and indirectly they are results of changes brought about by Nature's Chemical laboratory: To illustrate, in the case of man; man, by reason of work furnishes the raw material which is turned over to nature's chemical laboratory where it is processed and then the agreeing electric impulses are taken up by the circulating medium and delivered where needed. The above illustration holds good for any and all of man's endeavors in whatsoever direction they may be applied, to-wit: his household; his schools; his churches; his municipalities; his state government, and his federal government. All these and many are fitting expressions of the progressive development called into being by these creative impulses. Don't forget that in the economic of Nature, man's status is a very "impersonal" one; his is to work and to be worked on by the impulses which he furnishes the raw material to bring into being. (In the belief of the above the foundation for wisdom is laid.)

22—That when the elements of work aggregate at a point or points less than the whole number of points it is suicidal to advocate universal economy, for the reason, that the abridgment of the desires lessens the resistance to be overcome by work.

23—That the abridgment of desires would necessarily be automatically accumulative from year to year which would diminish the work required to overcome the lessened resistance to furnish the abridged desired.

24—That from the above the following natural law of progression may be deduced: That, choice, made to fulfill a natural desire, is directly proportional to the product of work performed, and is inversely proportional to the square of the resistance to be overcome by work.

25—That, while in nature there is no retrogression, yet, the law of progression reversely stated would make a condition not unlike what we are pleased to call, depression.

M. Plummer, General Manager of the Pacific International. The Exposition will be held in Portland, Oregon, October 15-22, inclusive. While the show is expected to be even more complete than in the past, eastern exhibitors will have smaller representations than usual. This will leave the awards open almost exclusively to western entrants. Besides the Dairy and Beef Cattle Shows which always occupy an important place in the Livestock Exposition, an unusually fine collection of pure bred animals in all other divisions, including sheep, goats, heavy draft horses, dogs, poultry, rabbits, fish and game will be exhibited. There will also be the usual Industrial Show, Dairy and Land Products Show, Wool and Mohair Show, the Boys' and Girls' 4-H Club exhibits and Smith-Hughes Vocational Education exhibits and activities. In addition to these, this year's Exposition offers as a new and thrilling entertainment feature the country's leading rodeo, McCarty-Elliott, with their complete string of bucking horses including the famous "Midnight", the mount that "has never been ridden". At least twenty-five championship buckaroos and women riders will compete for the $10,000 in prize awards. In the Exposition's big arena, the first indoor rodeo held in the Pacific Northwest, giving the public a close-up view of all events. The rodeo will show at eight matinee and seven evening performances. This is the twenty-second annual Pacific International Livestock Exposition, the Pacific-west's great educational event, and its way of drawing the spotlight of the world on it as a country outstanding in agricultural products. Reduced round trip fares to Portland for the Exposition, October 15-22, have been announced by all railroads.
