1200 Celebrate Armistice Here

(Continued from Page One) local seven piece orchestra, which has won recognition for itself within the past few months. Cooperative Tradition Maintained. It was only through the wholehearted cooperation of every organization in the community that the celebration was a success. Every committee functioned perfectly and each individual responded readily when called upon to serve on a committee. Henry Sommerer headed the barbecue committee and directed the building of the pit that will be a permanent fixture on the fair grounds for use on future occasions. H. A. Pankow, Tom Lenhart and Earl Bessel worked night and day in preparing the barbecued steer and pork. Floyd Kner very generously donated the cover for the pit, and assisted in installing it. The American Legion Auxiliary and Farm Bureau Auxiliary played no little part in the success of the barbecue. Mrs. Sommerer headed the committee for the former and made the coffee and cabbage salad, and Mrs. G. D. Best acted as chairman for the latter group in arranging for the remainder of the menu. The fuel for use in barbecuing the meat was furnished by Enos Martin and the Grange Cooperative. F. B. Penneck and son, Norman, furnished cider which added to the menu. Everything used for this feed was donated by the two Pendleton bakeries, and local merchants, who furnished buns, bacon, sugar, cabbage, beans, coffee, cream, and butter. Lloyd Moore of the Oasis theatre may be credited with obtaining all donations for this occasion. Mr. Moore also acted as publicity man and furnished the Mooretone Sound Service loudspeaker used to broadcast the plays during the football game. O. K. Mudge, commander of the local Legion post, and James Todd had charge of the dance and managed the large crowd efficiently. Small Clover Patch Pays Well. GRANDE RONDE—How even a small patch of irrigated Ladino clover can make a great difference on the ordinary farm was demonstrated this summer by Eben Ray of Valley Junction near here. A patch of clover not quite two acres in extent
