WITH FARMERS AROUND THE STATE

Turkeys End Thistle Menace. SILVERTON—A unique but apparently effective method of eradicating Canada thistles has been developed here by Mrs. W. L. Dunagan who first plants corn over the thistles patch and then turns turkeys in it late in the summer. The thistles are cut off twice late in the summer, then when the turkeys go in they nip off every weed shoot as it emerges from the ground. The method was reported to G. R. Hyslop, head of farm crops at Oregon State college, who says it holds interesting possibilities as a variation of the clean cultivation method of eradication.

Irrigation Proves Big Boon. PHILOMATH—Three times the yield of tomatoes, more and better sweet corn, and green summer pasture are some of the beneficial results obtained this past year with irrigation water by G. R. Goin near here. Mr. Goin in reporting on his experiences to W. S. Averill, Benton county agent, says that all his garden crops made big increases in yield and showed greatly improved quality from the water. The sweet corn did not mature so rapidly, hence the marketing season lasted longer.

Needful families of The Dalles district will be supplied with 199 cords of wood, the work of 193 unemployed woodcutters. They cut 698 cords. For their work they received 499 cords. The 199 cords went to the county for distribution.

HOME DEMONSTRATION WORK SHOWS RESULTS.

GRANTS PASS—A vegetable-fish exchange between families in Josephine county and others in Curry county has proved effective, according to Mrs. Sara W. Wertz, home demonstration agent of Josephine.

Mrs. Wertz reports that 10,000 cans of beans, tomatoes, corn, apples, peaches, pears and pumpkin were traded for 10,000 cans of fish during the month of October. Another aid in these "cashless" times was the Josephine county portable community cannery.

A total of 656 families of the county took advantage of this cannery during July, August and September, according to Mrs. Wertz who kept the records of operations. During this three-month period more than 86,000 cans of fruit, vegetables and meats were canned. This is believed to represent a total saving of at least $16,000 worth of food in Josephine county.

CORVALLIS—Powdered skim milk purchased at ten cents a pound will supply fluid skim milk at approximately two cents a quart, according to Lucy A. Case, nutrition specialist in extension, who recommends its use by those persons who wish to maintain an adequate diet on a reduced food budget.

One pound of skim milk powder contains all the solids of whole milk except the butterfat, and it furnishes as much of them as is usually furnished by about 4 3/4 quarts of fresh skim milk.

Miss Case advises thrifty housewives to use powdered skim milk in dishes that have considerable flavor. She suggests its use in soups, sauces, gravies, cocoa, custards, ice creams, pie fillings, bread, muffins and cakes. Methods of reconstituting fluid skim milk from skim milk powder and twenty-two different recipes using such milk are contained in the leaflet HE 408, "The use of powdered skim milk in the home," which may be obtained at any extension office or by writing the home economics extension office, Corvallis.
