The Time for Summing Up.

Three years of depression have ended and we can begin to sum up. Hard times have brought ill winds—but they have also brought healthful breezes.

Business and individuals have been forced to "write down" fictitious valuations and standards. This has naturally caused a great deal of hardship and a long black list of bankruptcies.

Those who expanded and operated on the principle that which goes up need never come down, and boom prosperity would continue unabated forever, had to be deflated.

The individual has found that it is possible to live happily and comfortably on a pre-war basis. He has found that the arbiter of wages is what the dollar will buy. He's come down to the earth.

These are the "healthful breezes" of depression. The decks have been cleared for action, and the way to recovery is open.

As for the problems of depression, they are still vital and intense. Writing in the Yale Review, Sir Arthur Salter observed that 1933 will be one of the most crucial years in modern history.

The pressing and increasing weight of taxation stifles the capital (industry) of the world, creating unemployment and preventing industrial expansion and the further investment of money.

The burden of armaments, with their drain on national incomes and their constant threat to world peace, grows greater. In every important country the cost of wars, past, present and future, is the major item in the national budget.

Our greatest single problem is unemployment. Ten million of our working population is at present out of a job, and its buying has come to a stop. Much of this unemployment is temporary—part of it is the result of machine displacement of labor.

This is America at the opening of 1933—a vast and incalculably rich land, which is gradually emerging from depression and entering a new era. It is still a land of promise, as it was in the days of the Argonauts. It has lost nothing that it really possessed. Its earth is still fruitful, its mines are still filled with metals, its factories are ready to make the necessities and luxuries its people want. Its people are courageous, and they still have faith. Its leaders regard those vital qualities—intelligence and vision. America will pull out of the depression as she has pulled out of the depression she has taught. It may find a means of preventing both extreme rises and extreme drops in the economic and social cycle, and of creating genuine, permanent and sound prosperity.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"God" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, January 1.

The Golden Text was, "Praise waiteth for thee, O God, in Zion: and unto thee shall the vow be performed. O thou that hearest prayer, unto thee shall all flesh come" (Ps. 65:1, 2).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "And after these things I heard a great voice of much people in heaven, saying, Alleluia; Salvation, and glory, and honour, and power, unto the Lord our God" (Rev. 19:1).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures", by Mary Baker Eddy: "Spirit, Life, Truth, Love, combine as one, — and are the Scriptural names for God. All substance, intelligence, wisdom, being, immortality, cause and effect belong to God. These are His attributes, the eternal manifestations of the infinite divine Principle, Love" (p. 273).

IN OREGON HOMES

PHOENIX—A 20 minute skit, "ATCs of Homey Living Room Arrangement," presented recently by two women of the Phoenix grange proved highly entertaining as well as educational, according to the grange members who saw it. This dramatization of "accessibility," "balance" and "convenience" was written by Mrs. Zelta Rodenwald, director of the home economics programs at KOAC, Corvallis, and may be obtained from her.

CORVALLIS — Homemakers of Oregon will be greeted by five new radio voices when they tune in for the Homemakers' Hour on KOAC this year. They will find also, that each lecturer has adapted her subject matter to present day needs of homemakers.

Mrs. Vera H. Brandon, instructor in household administration will lead out on Tuesday, January 3, with a lecture which fits into the radio club programs. Enrollments are still coming in for these clubs. During the three-month period just ended, 26 clubs with more than 235 members were registered. The theme of this new series by Mrs. Brandon is "Your home and your child."

Miss Ava B. Milam, dean of the school of home economics, and members of the Cosmopolitan club of the state college, contribute the Wednesday afternoon series on "Home life in foreign lands." Dean Milam's first travel talk is scheduled for Wednesday, January 4.

"The cheered-up house" is the theme of the house furnishings series to be conducted by Miss Mildred Chamberlain, acting head of clothing, textiles and related arts. She will greet the radio audience on Thursday, January 5, when she discusses the topic, "Out of a can of paint."

Mrs. Lillian Jeffreys Petri, professor of piano and music theory, will make a unique contribution to the enjoyment of KOAC homemakers in her series of 12 demonstrated lectures on "Enjoying music at home." Her first presentation is arranged for Friday, January 6.

Mrs. Azelea Sager, extension specialist in clothing, textiles and related arts, has divided her clothing clinic into two parts. One deals with economy clothing and the other with economy buying. "Making a 1929 garment into a 1933 model" is the title of her first talk to be given Monday, January 9.
