CORVALLIS - "Concentrated sweets often take away the appetite for plain foods which are necessary to growth and health," says Miss Lucy A. Case, nutrition specialist in extension. "The most wholesome kinds of candies are those which are combined with fruits, fruit juices, cereals, nuts, dairy products, and gelatine. Hard candies are less irritating than soft candies, because they become diluted by sucking."

Revised copies of the mimeographed leaflet HE 109, "Wholesome sweets for Christmas" are now available at the home economics office of the extension service, Corvallis. This leaflet contains 20 different tested, tasted and approved candy recipes using Oregon products.

These girls are enthusiastic and want to know right cookery methods and the reasons for them, says Mrs. Case.

OREGON STATE LEGISLATIVE NEWS

Brief Resume of the Week's Happenings in Both the Senate and House

The special session of the Oregon state legislature, called by Governor Meier, opened Tuesday, January 3, 1933, for a week's deliberation to try and balance the state's budget. Many of the members of both houses were on the job early and before convening the legislature was fairly well organized.

Departing from their first intention of announcing only those committees having to do with routine organization and revenue legislation matters, both Speaker Earl Snell of the house and President Fred Kiddle of the senate named their full committee lists.

These committees will stand for the regular as well as the special session, though it will be necessary to renege them when the regular session opens, just as it will be necessary, under the law, for the two houses to reorganize with the same formalities and in the same manner as though no special session had been held.

Seven vetoed bills of the 1931 session were thrown into the senate hopper early in the session by Secretary of State Hoss and referred to committees. These include:

S. B. 8-Prohibiting the use of butter substitutes at state institutions.

S. B. 143-Amending the statute regulating barbers.

S. B. 219-Appropriating $5000 for a forest type map.

S. B. 223 - Authorizing county courts to fill vacancies in the legislature with ratification by the body in which the vacancy exists.

S. B. 215-Providing for the appropriation of surplus waters of the Klamath river below Keno.

S. B. 334-To cure defective and irregular deeds and conveyances.

S. B. 359-Creating additional circuit judgeship in Multnomah county.

No Overtime Pay

Senator Joe Dunne of Multnomah proposed to fix a charge of five cents for each calendar and bill, plus postage if the documents are to be mailed out. No charge accounts will be opened, all deals being strictly cash in hand, responsibility for the printing and distributing of the bills and calendars being imposed on the secretary of state. The measure is a concurrent resolution.

The senate did not even hesitate this morning before placing its "ok" on a resolution barring overtime pay for officials, clerks, stenographers and other employees of the special session. Pay of the chief clerk was fixed at $8 a day, that of the assistant chief clerk, calendar clerk and reading clerk at $6, the sergeant-at-arms, $5; the doorkeeper, and mailing clerk, $4.

Former Speaker Eulogized

A resolution eulogizing the memory of the late E. B. Carter of Ashland, former speaker of the house and a member of the senate in the session of 1921, was introduced and passed by unanimous vote.

Session Lasts 10 Minutes

The senate was in session less than 10 minutes Wednesday afternoon, adjourning at 2:45 o'clock until 11:09 o'clock Thursday morning. Two resolutions constituted the sum total of that afternoon's gestic from the senate mill. One of these authorized the employment of a chief clerk for the committee on engrossed bills at a salary of $8 per day and the other authorized the appointment of a chief clerk for the bill room at a salary of $5 per day.

Visitors will be barred from within the senate railing 30 minutes before convening time from now on, Senator Francovich calling up the old rule on this point and asking that employees of the senate be instructed to enforce it to the letter.

Representative James H. E. Scott of Umatilla introduced in the house a joint resolution providing for the reference to the people of a constitutional amendment which would eliminate the real property tax for state purposes.

Tobacco Tax Proposed

As long as tax levies seemed to be the vogue at the special session, Representative Frank Hilton of Multnomah introduced one too. He drafted a tobacco tax bill which would place a 10 per cent tax on all tobacco products, payment to be made by the wholesaler.

Lobbying by State Aides Hit

A resolution forbidding the state employees from lobbying to prevent any additional reductions of their salaries while the matter is under consideration was introduced in the house Thursday by Representative Hilton. It went to the resolutions committee.

To Slash Municipal Levies

Declaring that the press and public of the state was trying to make the legislature the goat in the demand for cuts in public expenditures, Senator Joe Dunne, Multnomah, introduced a resolution calling for an investigation into ways and means of reducing tax levies in counties, cities and other municipal subdivisions of the state. Dunne's proposal calls for a report of this committee to the regular session.

How and What to Do

How to reduce the budget, how to reduce the deficit and how to eliminate the state property tax levy and still find enough money to keep the ship of state on an even keel has engrossed the legislators. While the senate was debating whether a charge of a nickel should be made for every bill and calendar mailed out and prohibiting overtime for its employees, the house was preparing to receive new tax solutions and stage a public hearing on the general sales tax and its companion measure, the revised income tax.

The house committee on taxation and revenue had a heart-to-heart talk with Henry M. Hanson, budget director; with Rufus C. Holman, state treasurer; with Hal Hoss, secretary of state, and the three members of the state tax commission.

The state deficit is now embarrassing. It amounts to about $4,000,000. Cash is short and the state has nothing to use for money. The budget has been reduced as far as possible by the state budget commissioner, but there is nothing to prevent the legislature from making deeper cuts. It is impossible to reduce the budget to the point where a property tax or some other sustaining tax can be avoided. The deficit has gone beyond the bookkeeping stage.

A suggestion by Treasurer Holman is that the state go on a warrant basis. It will require authority from the legislature to permit interest being paid on warrants. The interest burden is getting so large that it amounts to $5 for every man, woman and child in Oregon, the interest charge approximating $5,250,000 per year.

$4,500,000 Needed for Relief

At least $4,500,000 will be required to prevent suffering and distress in Oregon during 1933, of which amount not less than $250,000 should be made available by state appropriation.

Raymond Wilcox of Portland, chairman of Governor Meier's state-wide relief commission, told members of the unemployment relief committees of the senate and house at a public hearing.

He urged a state appropriation of $500,000 for the biennium. The remainder of the total amount required would be borrowed from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Wilcox said that figures gathered by the state-wide relief committee indicated that there were more than 60,000 families and single men now unemployed. "This is a serious condition," he said, "and is a problem which demands the most careful attention of this legislature. He suggested that relief funds be handled by the counties.

He explained that repayments would be made out of federal aid highway funds.

Representative Lynch declared that he understood that the state already had exhausted its available resources, and probably would go on a warrant basis early this week.

Aaron Frank of Portland said he represented more than 70,000 hungry mouths in Multnomah county.

"We are faced with state-wide destitution," Frank declared, "and the time has arrived when the state should take some action. Politics, commercialism and personal interests should be forgotten. There are more than 22,000 persons registered for employment in multnomah county at this time, and 99 per cent of them are willing to work. We must act fearlessly and fight this battle through. I believe in a work program rather than a dole."

Highway Operations Explained

Operations of the state highway commission during the past 11 months were reviewed by Leslie M. Scott, chairman, before the unemployment relief committee. He declared that there were men within his hearing who had criticized the highway department because it had attempted to keep its expenditures within its income and had demanded an honest return for all funds expended.

"When the present state highway commission assumed office it inherited a program of hand labor," Scott said. "This has since been eliminated, and virtually all work is now being done under contract. We have found this an economic measure and in accordance with the demands of the federal government."

Senate Defeats Sales Tax

After passing the house with ease, the sales tax was defeated in the senate Saturday at 11:49 p. m.

The action of the senate undid all that had been accomplished toward following the suggestion of Governor Meier in calling the legislature into extraordinary session, which was to repeal the state levy on real property and study a sales tax as a substitute.

The sales tax was estimated to yield $1,750,000 for the balance of the current year and $3,000,000 for the full year of 1934.

The plan was to divert 40 per cent to the counties to relieve the property burden in those subdivisions.

Both houses adjourned sine die at midnight Saturday.

Veto of Bill Sustained

The senate sustained Governor Meier's veto of a bill approved at the 1931 legislative session providing further regulation of barber shops and beauty parlors. Governor Meier, in his veto message, declared that full regulatory powers were vested in the state board of barber examiners, and there was no demand for additional legislation.

The committee seeking a voluntary cut in fixed salaries of Jackson county reports that all new and old officials have refused to subscribe to the movement.

For reasons of economy, tax statements will not be mailed by the sheriff of Deschutes county except at the request of the taxpayer, who will furnish the required postage with his application.

R. E. Nelson of the Central Point-Table Rock district has been chosen county commissioner of Jackson county by the county court to succeed John A. Barneburg, who resigned on account of ill-health.

Value of buildings constructed or reconstructed in Bend during 1932 aggregated $135,820, less than $100,000 under the preceding year. The Great Northern terminal ground outside the city is not included.

The tax on property in Bend will be $8.4 mills next year. This is an increase of 2.9 mills over 1932. A reduction of 4.3 mills was made in the city levy but this was more than offset by an increase of 2 mills for the school district and 3.8 mills for the state and county.

John Brinker, rancher living west of Freewater, who recently was injured by being run over by his tractor, was chopping wood when the accident slipped last week, cutting the same leg broken before. Five stitches were necessary to close the wound.

George Swan, 55, of Vancouver, Wash., a railroad brakeman, was fatally injured at Wishram last week when struck by a box car and knocked under the wheels of a train. His right arm and right leg were severed and he received internal injuries.

Oscar Bowman of Pendleton was severely injured last week when a tree limb, blown off by a high wind, struck him in the back as he was hauling wood in the Meacham district.

The Coos Bay Lumbar company mill which opened last Tuesday with 225 hands and 75 employees at its Eden Ridge camp, will continue throughout January, and probably longer. Officials, however, placed no definite arrangements on a period longer than January.

A skull of a broad-faced ox, one of the many peculiar mammals which ranged over the Oregon country in the past, has been placed on display in the Bend Chamber of Commerce office. The skull was found in the Ocoee country of Crook county.

Purchase of the First National bank of Newberg was announced recently by the United States National bank. S. L. Parrott is president of the purchasing bank, and W. H. Woodworth of the First National.

Marion county's budget for 1933 as finally adopted calls for an expenditure of $600,000, as compared with the 1932 budget of $541,836. This is a reduction of 28 per cent.

A balancing of the Umatilla county tax rolls shows that 47.4 per cent of the 1931 county taxes are delinquent. On the delinquent rolls next year will be over $1,000,000.

Drastic salary reductions for city employees have been ordered by the city council of Springfield. This action was to balance the budget, which is short $500, due to a 25 per cent reduction in road district funds apportioned the city.

Moss in the pipes of the Seaside water system has given unusual trouble. The long freezing spell, followed by heavy rains, filled the south fork of the Necanicum with silt bearing; minute particles of moss, which found its way into the water pipes.

Though a bullet has been lodged in his brain for 29 days, Irvin Weyand, of Ashland, 79-year-old farmer, continues to cling precariously to life. Stranger still, he may partly recover.

CABBAGE PRESERVED AS SAUER KRAUT ADVISED

Have you ever chanted or heard chanted these words: "Sauerkraut is bully. I told you it was fine-I think I ought to know, for I eat it all the time."

Then you know already that sauerkraut is a good food, in spite of the fact that nutrition specialists say that cabbage loses some of its food value when made into sauer kraut. Miss Lucy A. Case, extension specialist in nutrition, recommends storing as much cabbage as possible to be eaten raw, but she states, too, that kraut making is a desirable means of preserving early cabbage and cracked or otherwise imperfect heads of late cabbage.

The procedure for making kraut is described by Miss Case, as follows:

For every 100 pounds of cabbage use 2 1/2 to 3 pounds of salt. Remove the hard core if desired and cut cabbage into fine shreds. Pack in layers 3 to 6 inches deep. Stone crocks and hard wood kegs make desirable containers. Sprinkle each layer with salt and divide the amount of salt as evenly as possible for each layer. If some of the salt is left, add it to the top layer. Pack moderately tight. Fill container about three-fourths full.

Spread a cloth on top and tuck it in at the sides. Add board and weight. The weight should be heavy enough to extract the cabbage juice to form a brine which will cover the top in a day or so. Cover the container and allow it to stand in a moderately warm room to ferment. This requires from 4 to 8 weeks in winter. When the bubbling stops, fermentation is complete. The container should then be removed to a cool place, the cloth removed and the sauerkraut sealed between board and keg with hot paraffin or by acum should be prevented as it destroys the acid and causes spoilage.
