OREGON STATE LEGISLATIVE NEWS

Brief Resume of Happenings of the Week Collected for Our Readers

Highlights of Monday's session in Oregon Legislature: Measures to place revenue of several self-sustaining departments in general fund proposed.

Bills legalizing beer, regulating distribution, yielding revenue appear. Special message on reduction of motor license fees.

Senate approves legislation curtailing new road construction and highway bonds. Classification of state insane provided in senate bill.

Sixth Message from Governor: Although public development of hydroelectric power has been halted by the economic depression, it continues to be a major issue with the Columbia river—the greatest power resource in America—as the chief objective.

Recently President-elect Roosevelt has also been quoted as being favorable to the development of the Columbia river as the next major federal power project.

Project Vital to Future: Its development is now vital to the future industrial expansion and prosperity of the whole Pacific northwest empire. Water power is the magic key to industry and with cheap power the future of the Columbia, Oregon's future greatness and prosperity would be assured.

Consequently it is recommended that this legislature memorialize congress urging the immediate development of the Columbia river, particularly impressing upon that body that Oregon and its municipalities stand ready to enter into contracts for the purchase of power, once a feasible project is authorized.

It is further recommended that you urge the legislators of Washington and Idaho to adopt similar memorials. It is further recommended that you give consideration to the advisability of the appointment of an interim committee to co-operate with similar committees from Idaho and Washington.

In the Columbia river there is enough potential cheap power to grind all the grain, spin all the wool, turn the wheels of all the industries, tunnel all the mines, electrify the transportation systems, reclaim hundreds of thousands of acres of land and provide heat and light for all the communities and cities in the Columbia basin.

All of this power is now rolling in waste to the sea. Let us do everything within our power to speed the early development of the Columbia and industrialize Oregon and the Pacific Northwest.

22 Revenue Bills Up: Twenty-two bills intended to produce more revenue for the state, were introduced in the house of representatives Tuesday. The ways and means committee sponsored 12, the remaining ten coming from the committee on insurance. The latter measures are the recommendations of the insurance department.

To aid home industry, the house adopted a memorial that state institutions purchase American made goods. A bill levying a tax of 4 cents a pound on oleomargarine, and another bill regulating testing of milk came from the committee on food and dairy products.

Wednesday's highlights of legislation: Quarterly payment of taxes proposed. Grand power bill introduced. Board of arbitration proposed in disputes with industrial accident commission.

New game code appears. Fee of $5 for motor license proposed. Recall amendment held up. The "grand power bill," as distinguished from the "Lewis power bill" made its appearance in the senate Wednesday, sponsored by Senators Brown, Wheeler, Burke, Hazlett and Zimmerman, and Representatives Olen and Hinton.

Highlights of Friday in Oregon legislature: House receives 46 new bills and adjourns to Monday. Unemployment relief legislation blocked until Monday. Arrangement made for public hearing on beer.

Bill gives governor power to pardon life-term prisoners. A new game code, sponsored by the game commission and introduced by Representative Myers of Hood River found its way to the house Wednesday. It revises the entire code, passed at the 1921 session.

Bill 74, a law for request of the Reconstruction Finance corporation for loans to carry on relief work in the state, the 50th senate and house unemployment committee Wednesday introduced in the house a bill setting up the machinery for operation of the fund in the next two years.

Preparation are being made by Cobbs & Mitchell company to reopen their plant at Valsetz. The planing mill will be ready for operation March 1. It has been idle for a year and a half. Final decision depends on the lumber market. The company has 28,000,000 feet of lumber in the Valsetz yards and storage buildings, and the purpose is to market as much of it as possible as soon as the market will warrant.

H. H. Hixson, who has gained a great deal of local fame as a turkey grower in the Merlin section, has demonstrated that he can grow big hogs with the ordinary turkey feed. He recently butchered for his own use one hog which dressed 510 pounds. He has several others which he is fattening under the same process. Hixson this year raised some 2000 turkeys for the market.

A bottle containing a card of the hydrographic department of Japan was found on the beach about a mile south of Tillamook bay recently by C. L. Johnson and Arthur Kendorf of Barview. The bottle was sealed with wax. From inscriptions on the card it appears to have been cast into the water, June 6, 1911.

Reductions in the total tax levy for every major district in Coos county have been announced by Assessor Beyers. The budget was also cut from $503,000 to $592,000. The state and county levy will be 18.5 mills as against 22.3 last year, when no levy was made for state purposes.

Very little fall-sown grain and vetch is left in the fields of Lane county, as a result of the freezing weather in December, when the ground was unprotected by snow, according to the report of County Agent Fletcher. The fields will have to be resown, he said.

Glenna Zurlueh, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Zurlueh, died in the hospital at Tillamook last week of injuries received in front of her home when she was caught between the bumper of an automobile and the steps of the school bus on which she was standing.

Mrs. E. A. Bussett of Powell Butte near Redmond reports the largest egg of any yet. The egg measured 8 inches around and another one was 7 1/2 inches around. All of her hens are Rhode Island pullets with the exception of five last-year-hens.

Henry Schortgen, sanitary inspector for Klamath Falls, is calling upon property owners and tenants in the business district of the city to clean up the garbage and trash in the alleys. If it is done the alleys will be kept clear hereafter, he says.

W. H. Gore has resigned as president of the Medford National bank after a connection of 20 years. He has been made chairman of the board of directors. As president, he is succeeded by J. A. Perry.

The Bandon Chamber of Commerce is endeavoring to get the federal government to continue the harbor work now in progress and which is to be discontinued this month unless other arrangements are made.

A petition to transfer the Multnomah county part of the Tualatin View school district to that of Sylvan district has been denied by the county boundary board of Washington county.

The Yamhill county mole and gopher bounty fund of $5 for 1933 did not last long. It has been split among three claimants, who presented more traps than could be paid for. Last year the fund amounted to $3000. It was exhausted in six months.

Crossing frozen Upper Klamath lake in a car for 25 miles is the way Gus Lings and Art Pleas, Klamath sportsmen, got to their favorite fishing grounds in a hurry.

PASTURES GIVE CHEAPEST GAINS IN LAMB FEEDING

When lamb prices are at such a low point as they have been the past year or so, making the top grade in marketing is exceptionally important in getting returns that will approach cost of production. Investigation of the grade of Oregon lamb actually marketed at Portland, made by the animal husbandry department of the Oregon state college experiment station, revealed that only 34.5 per cent of those coming from western Oregon were fat enough to class as top lambs.

Of those falling in lower grades 47 per cent were too thin, 8 1/2 per cent were too heavy and 10 per cent were of inferior breeding or were not castrated or docked.

"Unquestionably the proper feeding of lambs from birth to marketing could make a large part of the 47 per cent of thin lambs fit enough to bring the top prices," says O. M. Nelson, specialist in sheep at the station. "Pasture is the cheapest feed available, and while extensive feeding of grain will produce ideal market lambs it materially increases the cost of production."

"Lambs sucking ewes on good pasture will often make an average daily gain of a half pound a day without grain, in fact college flocks have gained as much as three-fourths pound per day on rape pasture. Clover pasture is ideal for finishing lambs. A comparison made of clover with native pasture by the college showed that lambs being finished gained 39 per cent more on clover than those on native sod.

"Another test made by the experiment station was with a bunch of thin lambs fed during the summer. Some were fed in the dry lot, some were fed grain and sown-sod pasture, and some were run on rape and received no grain. The lambs running on the rape with no grain far outgained and were ready for market long before the other lambs. Those fed grain in the dry lot made the poorest gains," Nelson explained.
