FOOTBALL HERO MURDERED BEFORE 70,000 WITNESSES

"70,000 Witnesses," playing at the Oasis Sunday and Monday, really is two pictures in one. The first is all football and the second a murder mystery. This unusual combination is woven into a plot which is filled with everything to make good entertainment—romance, mystery, comedy and breath-taking moments.

The theme of the picture has to do with the attempt of a gambling ring to fix a big football game by eliminating the star player at the favorite team. They do such a good job of fixing that the player dies and a coroner proves it is a case of murder. There is no mark on the body to explain how he was killed and in order to get all available clues the detective in charge of the case insists that the game be played over exactly as it happened. Up to the final moment the picture is filled with suspense and the way the crime is finally solved is a big surprise to all.

Philip Holmes, Dorothy Jordan, Charles Ruggles, and Johnny Mack Brown all play prominent parts. A comedy-short "Courtin' Trouble" and Fox News completes the program.

SCREEN'S NEWEST LOVE BIRDS COMING TO HERMISTON

Slim Summerville and Zasu Pitts, who are co-featured in "They Just Had To Get Married," showing on the Oasis screen Friday and Saturday make a romantic pair that couldn't help being funny. Even in the most pathetic situation tall, solemn Slim, and Zasu, with her fluttering hands and quavering voice, win more laughs than sympathy. They just can't get seriously serious.

The story itself deals with the heart problems of two domestic servants, a maid, Molly, and a butler, Sam, who, upon the death of their wealthy employer, are left his fortune. All this wealth greatly complicates their lives and they have a great time trying to adjust themselves to this new social order. Before things begin to run smoothly for them one is nearly worn out with laughter.

Slim, in the role of butler, and Zasu, as the maid, are the principal fun-makers but the capable supporting cast in which Fifi Dorsay, Roland Young and Verne Teeddale appear, do some very good work.

The short subjects on this bill include a good comedy "Marriage Vow" and a cartoon.

MINNEHAHA NEWS NOTES

Eber D. Mossie of Pilot Rock was here Saturday after a truck load of cattle. While here he called at the W. G. Rodda home. Mr. Mossie had just been in Ukiah, and reported three below zero there on Thursday morning.

At the time of the earthquake he was visiting at the Price ranch about 180 miles from Long Beach and says they certainly could feel the shock. While in California Mr. Rogers visited the Shelton turkey farm at Romona.

Ashland Herd Leads Again.

ASHLAND—For the second consecutive month J. R. McCracken, local dairyman, had the high producing herd among all cow testing associations in the state during January. His herd of 12 cows averaged 52.6 pounds of butterfat each for the month, exceeding their December record by more than five pounds. This is the highest average made by any herd since last July, past test reports show.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Moore and son John and Mrs. Clarence Neill were in Beho Saturday.

Mrs. Jim Farley, Mrs. Buckman, Mrs. Bill Buckman and the Misses Margaret and Rosanna Farley and Katherine Bealy visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Healy and family Sunday.
