WHEAT CONTROL FAVORED DESPITE PRICE ADVANCE.

With preliminary county wheat meetings completed throughout the state, the next move in putting the wheat adjustment program into effect in Oregon will be to district each county into definite community units and build these into the permanent county wheat production associations, according to officials of the state college extension service in charge of "Triple A" educational work in this state.

Those who took part in the series of 29 educational meetings throughout the 22 leading wheat producing counties report keen and intelligent interest on the part of those to whom wheat is a principal source of livelihood.

Opinion prevails that present market booms, while highly beneficial for growers having wheat to sell this year, gives little promise for the future unless some form of acreage control is put into effect.

on the usual acreage, the surplus would mount to ruinous proportions with consequent effect on prices.

The wheat plan, it is pointed out, permits the grower signing the contract to reap all the benefits of present advanced prices on all wheat he has on hand or will harvest this year, while insuring him of a fair "parity" price on the allotment portion of his crop in the next two years.

Meanwhile enough cotton growers through the south have signed up with the government so that 10,000,000 acres of this year's crop will be destroyed so as to reduce production by more than 3,000,000 bales.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has accepted the contracts and proclaimed the processing tax of 4.2 cents per pound on cotton effective August 1.

"Truth" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 23. The Golden Text was, "The Lord is good; his mercy is everlasting; and his truth endureth to all generations" (Ps. 100:5).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets; I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill" (Matt. 5: 17).

CHICKEN CANNING METHOD DESCRIBED BY MISS CASE.

When chickens are culled from the flock as they become unprofitable for laying purposes, the home-maker can replenish her future meat supply at unusually low cost by canning the chicken meat by one of a number of excellent methods, says Luey A. Case, extension nutrition specialist at Oregon State college.

Killing the birds at least six weeks before canning, and avoidance of soaking the meat in water while washing are two early precautions in chicken canning, says Miss Case. Water extracts meat juices and tends to make the meat stringy. Once bled, washed and drawn, the birds are cut into pieces as for boiling, with the flesh removed from the breast. The remainder of the canning process is described as follows by Miss Case:

"Chicken may be canned raw, fried or roasted, but many homemakers prefer the flavor when canned raw, to be fried or roasted after taken from the jars. The use of flour or other starchy coating is not advised before canning. To pack raw chicken, first place a drumstick in a clean jar. Place the thigh next to the drumstick with the thicker part of the thigh next to the leaner part of the drumstick. Cut the tips from the wings, save for soup, and hook the elbows of the two wings together. Place next to the thigh. Place the neck portion in the center of the jar with the rib end down. Next tuck portions of the breast in to the remaining space. Pack some light meat and some dark meat into each jar.

"The giblets are usually canned separately. Avoid too tight a pack. Add one level teaspoon of salt to each pint jar. Add no liquid. Remove any grease or other particles from the sealing surface of the jar and partially seal. A properly regulated pressure cooker is the best equipment for canning chicken. Process pint jars at 15 pounds pressure for 70 minutes. Seal jars immediately and place two inches or more apart to cool.

"When chicken and other non-acid home canned foods are taken from the jar, it is safest to boil or in some way heat through and through to the boiling point for 15 minutes before tasting, to prevent any possibility of food poisoning."
