NATIONAL PROGRAM FOR AMERICAN LEGION RECEIVED.

The American Legion program for 1934, beginning at once, has just been compiled by National Headquarters and a copy received by the Hermiston Post No. 37 of the Legion here.

It is described by G. D. Best, Commander, as the most constructive and conservative in the history of the Legion. "No one can object to this," he said, "and every citizen of the United States can support it. The American Legion will have no difficulty this year. Every veteran of the World War still living will this work at once, because his help is needed. Our national commander, who is called the 'Abraham Lincoln of the Legion' in his home town, declares half of the men and women of the World War still living will join the Legion this year, and that it is up to each Legionnaire to see that they do. Then we must have a unity of thought in each of these activities, unity of expression and unity of action. We can have such team-work under our national commander's leadership and cannot fail. Our first job is to thoroughly understand our program."

The major points of the program, in a nutshell, as outlined by National Headquarters to the post officials here, follow:

Restore those disabled in line of duty in the war to their status prior to March 20, 1933; hospitalize in government institutions all needy veterans requiring it; restore veteran if his case was so stated prior to March 20, 1933; and provide government protection for dependent widows and orphans of veterans.

Increase Legion aid to needy children of veterans which has been necessitated by economy reductions of benefits to veterans; ratify child labor amendment in states where this has not yet been done; promote legislation, state and national, to provide public health facilities, and conduct educational campaigns concerning child welfare conditions, facilities, mothers' aid and legal adoption of minors.

Protect our schools from undue economy slashes, advance patriotism, character and health among students. Conduct youth activities including junior baseball, Boy Scouting, C.M.T.C., R.O.T.C., National Boys' Week, junior rifle clubs and 4-H clubs. Participate in community service work. Sponsor reduction of immigration quotas by 50 per cent allowed under 1924 laws. Urge federal laws excluding alien communists, and expulsion of aliens who would overthrow our government or who are beholden to the Third National. Continue principle that nationalized citizens must bear arms in defense of this country in an emergency. Oppose recognition of communist soviet Russia.

A law and order committee will be appointed by the national organization to study the problem of crime, and devise plans for state and national Legion organizations to participate in curbing crime. Urge laws to end sale of machine guns and similar weapons except to military and law enforcement authorities.

Build up the navy from third place, and the army from 17th place to provisions of the London Treaty. Oppose cancellation of any or all war debts. Oppose the United States entering into the League of Nations or to adherence to the World Court, either with or without reservations.

Urge Boards of Review to make complete and conscientious consideration of all facts and circumstances pertaining to every claim of disabled veterans.

Support the NRA in the present emergency and favor a sound American dollar.

Advocate a careful study by our government of the dangers of inflation.

Demand an equitable distribution of the tax burden and the elimination of injustices brought about by tax exempt securities.

Dissolving Indebtedness

THE subject of debt looms large on the mental horizon of today. Quite apart from the manifold questions bound up with the consideration of war debts, those sad legacies of strife which so greatly concern the nations at this time, there remains the fact that many individuals are facing a situation in which their assets seem inadequate to meet the liabilities they have incurred. Often, as a result of depreciated currencies, they see the value of their possessions continually diminishing, and begin to question the stability they once accepted as a fixed standard.

It is helpful to examine Jesus' utterances on debt in the light which Christian Science throws upon them. The first mention occurs in the prayer which he gave to his disciples in response to their request that he should teach them to pray. The Master's words, "Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors," are wonderfully illuminated by the spiritual interpretation which Mary Baker Eddy has given them in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 17): "And Love is reflected in love."

Love, then, is the primary solution of this question of debt—the love of God for His children reflected by them to one another. Jesus indicated that he saw the need of amplifying this subject in a way that would be easily understood by his hearers, for he later expounded it by means of a parable. He told them of a servant who owed a vast sum which he was apparently unable to pay. At his earnest request, however, his lord forgave him this debt. We read that this servant then went out, and finding a fellow servant who owed him a comparatively small amount "took him by the throat, saying, Pay me that thou owest." And disregarding the debtor's plea for patience, he cast him into prison. Their lord, however, became cognizant of the situation and withdrew his pardon, requiring the creditor to pay his own debt.

It is interesting to notice that neither of these debtors protested his inability to pay or asked for the amount to be reduced. They both prayed the creditor for patience, promising to pay the full amount owing. In the first case it is recorded that his lord had compassion on the servant and forgave him his debt; while in the second the creditor took his fellow servant by the throat, or, metaphorically speaking, established such "a strangle hold" upon him as to render it impossible for him to free himself. It is clear that the mental qualities of patience and compassion extended to one who is in difficulties reassure and help him to win his freedom, while a cruel and unmerciful attitude of thought only tightens his bonds.

When we realize that all the love and devotion of which we are capable we owe to God, who is Love and the very source of all being, the meaning of the parable becomes apparent. Our obligations to God can be fulfilled only in the measure of our love and compassion for our fellow men. The mental "strangle hold" of hate, misunderstanding, envy, or pride expressed in our thought of our brother will hinder him from giving us the appreciation which we deserve to be due from him, and from restoring that which he owes. If we fail to reflect the love of God to all about us, the channels of our own capacity to give will become blocked with selfishness and self-seeking. Paul writes, "Owe no man any thing, but to love one another," and Christian Science teaches its students that this debt of love must be paid by each and all who would find the un-failing stream of spiritual supply.

Primarily, then, what is needed both by nations and by individuals today is the compassionate understanding which refuses to accept an erroneous viewpoint of either a debtor or a creditor. We are all debtors to God. And as we begin to lay down our sense of personal possession, the tight grip which fastens on matter and material possessions will become less stringent; and in the proportion that we entertain divine ideas the proper means of liquidating our material obligations will become apparent.

There is great need of clarifying our thinking, and refusing to accept a meager suggestion of annoyance or fear which would distort our viewpoint of one another. Thought must be lifted to perceive the infinitude of spiritual ideas, which are always at hand to supply the human requirement. To Jesus the demand of the tax collector or the need of the multitude presented no difficulty, because he knew so well the all-embracing nature of his Father's love. He obtained what was necessary, so conscious was he of what Mrs. Eddy has called "the defile law that supply invariably meets demand" (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 45). But would this have been the case had he allowed his thought to become clouded with resentment toward any of those with whom he was associated?

The patience and compassion so continually manifested by Christ Jesus are needed today in full measure; and in addition to these the quality of steadfast trust and assurance that our Father will open to us the way to meet our human obligations. Mrs. Eddy has made the inspired statement that "the right way wins the right of way, even the way of Truth and Love whereby all our debts are paid, mankind blessed, and God glorified" (The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany, p. 232).—The Christian Science Monitor.
