A Safeguard of Public Funds.

(Astorian-Budget) Recently an Oregon newspaper made a reader-interest survey, using what is known as the "Gallup system"...

The law requires each county clerk to publish a statement of all claims authorized by the county court and ordered paid each month.

Just why the county courts should be singled out for such monthly accountings is difficult to explain.

A newspaper is handicapped in advocating an extension of this policy to all tax spending bodies for the reason that it is a beneficiary of the policy.

O.S.C. HOPES TO RECEIVE CWA FUNDS FOR STUDENTS. Oregon State college, along with other institutions in the state, has applied for its share of the proposed allotment of CWA funds to provide work for students who otherwise would not be able to attend college or would have to drop out before the end of the year.

having an early provision requiring waiving of fees eliminated, reports Dr. W. A. Schoenfeld, dean of agriculture at the state college, who was in Washington at the time.

OREGON PAPERS PRINTING MUCH PUBLIC SCHOOL NEWS.

Oregon weekly and daily newspapers carried an average of 26 columns, or more than a full column, of public school news in each issue over a period of a month. It was revealed in a recent survey made by students in a class in public information methods conducted by C. J. McIntosh, professor of industrial editing at Oregon State college.

Four issues each of 76 representative newspapers of the state were clipped during one month and the results tabulated, classified and compared with a similar survey made at Columbia university, New York. Subjects given the most space in the two sections of the country tallied fairly closely, with extra-curricular activities such as sports, dramatics, musical events and the like leading with 47 per cent in the east and 59 per cent in Oregon.

Next in order in this state were P.T.A. activities and management and finance, while in the east news of teachers and school officers was second with P.T.A. activities third. The Columbia survey also included the order of preference as to school news as expressed by parents in a questionnaire circulated widely.

Replies from parents indicated they were interested first in news of pupils' progress and achievement, second in methods of instruction and third in news of pupils' health, while extra-curricular activity news was placed in thirteenth or last place.

"It is not at all certain that parents mean precisely what they think they mean about the kind of news they want," says Professor McIntosh in commenting on the results of the two surveys. "Naturally they are interested in progress and achievement, particularly of their own children, but the element of the unusual is essential to news, which is found most largely in sports, plays and other so-called frills theoretically frowned upon but widely read."

"Beyond this, however, editors are faced with running what they can get or none at all, and to the extent school organizations will make it possible for the papers to get well prepared news on other school activities apparently desired by parents, the editors will doubtless be most happy to run it."

O.S.C. ELECTRIC SCREENS MAY GUIDE SALMON AT DAM.

CORVALLIS—Columbia river fish will probably be guided from danger points at the Bonneville dam and into the fishways prepared for them by means of electrical fish screens developed in the school of engineering at Oregon State college. Several years ago Professor F. O. McMillan at O.S.C. developed such an electrical device, plans for which were widely distributed by the United States bureau of fisheries.

Professor McMillan, assisted by a graduate student in electrical engineering, is now making further tests at the request of the government engineers to develop if possible a practical application of his screen to the situation at Bonneville.

Somewhat related is other research work in the O.S.C. civil engineering laboratories on the size and design of the fishways that will be necessary to get the enormous salmon run over the dam. Studies in Alaskan streams indicate that as many as 10,000 salmon an hour will have to be passed at the peak of the runs. Dr. Harlan B. Holmes of the U. S. Fish commission has enlisted the aid of the engineering school in these studies.

COURAGE and CHARACTER

GEORGE WASHINGTON

To George Washington the nation pays tribute once again. It is fitting that we recall the sterling qualities of this man of destiny who so ably led a badly equipped and poorly trained army to victory. No crisis ever demanded more versatile ability and knowledge than that of 1776. And it is to the courage and the true character of Washington that the United States owes its very existence. Aggressive in the very face of defeat, Washington's courage carried on. Today in the nation's need of courage we add our tribute to Washington and the character for which he stands.
