tee shall constitute the board of directors.

Seventh, the congress shall meet at least once per year, and the executive committee shall meet at intervals to be fixed by the congress.

Incorporate Association.

Eighth, that this body designate a group to consist of at least six full power to consummate the incorporation of the association along the lines herein stated. The group so designated shall have power to make changes as they may find necessary to conform with legal requirements and practicability of operation. They shall be selected with the thought in mind that they will constitute a first board of directors with the power to select three additional members as the board of directors to represent any other state coming into the organization.

Following adoption of the organization report the Oregon and Washington delegations conferred to select their committeemen. The Oregon men chose Judge Sweek, of Pendleton, L. A. Duncan, The Dalles, and Roy Kunsman, Arlington, as their representatives, and the Washington men selected Ivan Plette, Yakima, Dorsey M. Hill, Walla Walla, and John McEwen, Goldendale, as their committeemen. The executive committee held a session immediately and selected Judge Sweek as the president during the coming year. Arrangements were then made for incorporating the association after which a formal meeting of the board will be held.
