COLD STORAGE REFRIGERATION PROVES ECONOMIC IN USE

The word is being passed around that the cold storage lockers will not be practical for various reasons. The same thing happened when the Walla Walla plants were first started, but most of the people had courage enough to try this system, with the result that within a year, a waiting list of applicants became so long that more lockers had to be built to accommodate them all.

The Hermiston plant has been built just like the most modern type now in service and every locker is guaranteed to keep meat in good condition for several months, if it is handled according to rules and regulations which are very simple.

Anyone who is skeptical as to whether it will pay to rent a locker for a year, may rent by the month for a period of three months. Patrons who do not take a locker for a year will run the chance of being left out. The plant will be opened to all comers if the farmers fail to take advantage of having first choice. There will be room for 350 lockers or more, depending upon the number of large lockers installed.

There is no way of telling how long it will take to finish building the lockers as it is a new experience for local people. However, the work is half finished and it is safe to say that it will take longer than the fifteenth of May to complete the lockers.

The announcement of the opening day will appear in the next issue of the Herald.

STUDENTS ON FARM CROP FIELD TRIP VISIT PROJECTS. Hermiston branch agricultural experiment station and the Green project near Stanfield were visited Saturday morning, May 5, by a group of Oregon State college students who are majoring in farm crops and were on their annual farm crop field trip.

This station along with four others, Hood River, Moro, Pendleton and Union stations, was visited on a four day trip, starting Thursday, May 3. The purpose of such a trip was to acquaint the students with the problems of experiment stations and to see the work carried on there.

Also numerous wheat, range and irrigation projects were visited and stops were made at various points of special agricultural, scenic and historical interest in Eastern Oregon.

Stanley Green and his father showed the group the implements used in grubbing sage brush and explained the method used. Included in the itinerary were Portland, Hood River, Maupin, Tygh Valley, Moro, Arlington, Hermiston, Pendleton, Union, Baker, Redmond and over the McKenzie pass.

A PLEA TO THE VOTERS FOR A NEW DEAL. By David F. Graham, Republican Candidate for Congress.

I beg you to read my statement in the Voters Pamphlet before going to vote. If you do, I feel that you will decide to take a chance on me, to represent you there in Washington. I believe I have the ability and the personality, with the nerve, to do so with credit to you, the District and myself.

My opponent promises you lots: what could he do? One man amongst 434 others? I'll bet I could do as much, and probably a little more.

My opponent asks for credit for the various laws he helped put on the Statute books but does not ask that he be given credit for being the leader in the fight to put the Sales Tax there, or for having refused to allow the people a chance to vote on it, oh no—he forgets about it, entirely. If he were sincere and believed it was a good thing for the people of the State, why does he not mention it and demand credit for it? He is afraid—that is the reason. Do you want that kind of man to represent you? I should think not.

I believe we have too many lawyers in public life and political offices right now, and that if we had less, we would be better off and have less trouble. People who know me will tell you I am not afraid to work; and that I have had a first-class training for the job.

Please give me an opportunity to show you what I can do; I'll guarantee you won't regret it and will be glad you did, in the long run.—Paid Advertisement.

"CAROLINA" ON SCREEN FRIDAY AND SATURDAY.

"Carolina," Fox film version of Paul Green's celebrated play, "The House of Connelly," with Lionel Barrymore and Janet Gaynor in the starring roles, plays at the Oasis theatre Friday and Saturday.

"Carolina" deals with a decadent but aristocratic southern family which for a hundred years has lived in the grand manner and ruled a plantation of thousands of acres. The family, as the story opens, is represented by a venerable, regal mother (Henrietta Crossman), her brother (Lionel Barrymore), a spinster daughter (Almeda Fowler) and an intellectual son (Robert Young). Into this setting comes Janet Gaynor as a clear-minded girl from the outer world to upset tradition, and through a romance with Robert Young to alter the destiny of the house of Connelly.

Important supporting roles are played by Richard Cromwell, Mona Barrie and Stepin Fetchit, negro comedian.
