Voters vs. Prejudice.
 If Joe E. Dunne wins in the primary gubernatorial race Friday there will be many people who will draw their criticism of E. P. Dodd of Hermiston for dropping out of the race and joining the Dunne camp, and again, if he loses in the race these same people will strengthen their prejudice.

 Mr. Dodd entered the race on a platform that is decidedly popular with up-state and inland empire people—that of the development of the Columbia river and its tributaries, Willamette and Snake, to limit navigation and power; cheap electric lights and power; and freight rates reduced one-half. On this program Mr. Dodd would have gone far in the eastern part of the state had he campaigned extensively enough to become known by voters outside his own community. He went into Portland and Multnomah county where the campaign was the hottest, and the smoke from the wheels of the Martin and Dunne campaign machine set-up rolling thick. Mr. Dodd apparently saw where he stood in this turmoil and when the opportunity came to join the Dunne camp, he accepted without previous announcement to the "home guard."
 Such a move may have been the only proper one, politically, but there was a principal involved. This must be weighed and considered in its elements, knowing that many people had confidence in his ability and courage in carrying his program to a finish, giving both moral and financial support. The political strings are intricately woven and one in direct touch with the machinery many times considers the political element first, leaving the principal for the voting public to unravel.
 There is one main consideration for every voter before casting his vote Friday, and that is, which of the remaining five candidates is the best man for the job, casting aside all prejudices. Whatever your personal opinion is about Mr. Dodd's action in joining the Dunne camp, it should not influence you in casting your vote on the ballot Friday.

Why Parole Kidnapers?
 The three kidnapers of W. F. Gettle were apprehended in California, brought before the court, where they entered a plea of guilty, and were sentenced to life terms in prison.

on. The criminals were apprehended in such a short time after the kidnaping that it almost constitutes a record.
 The pronouncement of sentence from the bench carried a curious comment. For the court told the trio that it might presently apply for parole as a means of exit from the penitentiary. To the citizens who have commented upon the justice that has moved with commendable swiftness against the kidnapers, it seems a very ill-timed statement. But there is a kidnaping law in California which provides that the death penalty shall apply "only in cases where the kidnapers use violence beyond that necessary in carrying out their plans." Gettle was not harmed before he returned to his home. A state which authorizes the death penalty for such an act, however, surely does not recommend that the court should instill a hope for clemency in the criminal by reminding him that he may later apply for parole.
 Is a parole desirable to any criminal? It many times means a continued menace to society, and against public life and property. The Dillinger reign of terror may be written in scarlet, and it began with a parole. It cannot be denied that law-enforcement officers have taken advantage of the parole system and that criminals consider it as a loophole in planning their crimes.
 The soundness of the parole system when applied to kidnapers still hangs in the balance.

EXTRA LAYER OF GOLDEN RUBBER RESISTS RIM CUTS
NEW KIND OF INNER TUBE
TOUGHER, BLACK TEAR-PROOF RUBBER TOP
WONT EVEN TEAR WHEN RUN FLAT AFTER A PUNCTURE
Here's Proof Look at this test!
 Goodrich made a lot of special tubes. One half of each tube was made of the new Gold and Black construction; the other half of the best old-style compound. Then they put them on cars and purposely ran them flat.
 The old-style construction was torn to shreds. Ripped and cut to pieces in less than a mile.
 Yet the Gold and Black half was sound and unharmed by this terrific punishment.
 Here's positive proof that this new tube is many, many times tougher. Put these new tubes on your car today.
