IMPRESSIONS AND EXPERIENCES ON WORLD'S FAIR TRIP RELATED

In the following story Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Rohrman, who returned last Friday night from a visit to the 'Century of Progress Exposition' at Chicago, have related their impressions and experiences of the trip.

Mr. Rohrman is local Ford dealer and manager of the Rohrman Motor Company. At 6:40 A. M. Saturday, September 8, we left Hermiston under a lark sky and arrived in Spokane at 9:20 A. M. By noon, we were in the Pend Oreille Lake region of Idaho and what a lake it is. On the trip it is just another lake but in Western United States it is a 'Great Lake.' We passed through Mrs. N. R. Mueller's home town on the border of this lake. For sunset scenery on that day we had beautiful Flathead Lake near Kalispell.

It was part of the purpose of our trip to get a broader perspective on the Ford business and to determine if our chief problem of selling or not selling a V-8 because it has the name Ford on it, is a national problem. Of our findings on the problem, we shall inform you as we go. In Kalispell, we visited the Ford dealer who has a less elaborate set-up than the one here. He informed us he has put out 90 V-8s this year, outselling all others. He says he sells most easily to people who have heretofore been driving Packards and other large cars.

Early Sunday morning, we left Kalispell for Glacier Park having breakfast at the Belton entrance. Taking the 'Going to the Sun' Highway we enjoyed some beautiful scenery but were able to obtain few good pictures owing to a hazy sky. Somewhere just out of Glacier, Chas. Bartholomew had invited us to dinner in his sheep camp, but not knowing which way was his, we relinquished that bit of local color. Instead, the sheep on those mountain slopes are atmospheric with varied light on their fleeces. It was a great thrill on the long slopes of Glacier as well as elsewhere, to let the V-8 step out past everything without losing its breath in the east. We decided to buy one. Mountain driving in a V-8 felt so sure.

Arriving at the east entrance of Glacier, we joined Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Rohrman, Sr., F. A. Alma and Charles Rohrman and the two brothers annexed us to their party to Chicago, while the others returned to Pendleton. Leaving Glacier at noon Sunday, we arrived at St. Cloud, Minnesota, Monday about three, taking turns at the wheel during night driving. At Glasgow, where we ate that evening, the town was bustling and brimming with activity and men. Our glass booth in the cafe wore shattered glass, mute evidence of more local color work. Our orders for chicken pie and beef roast could not be filled. Rooms were $25 per month. The town is near the new Fort Peck Dam project; hence the boom.

We were thankful to have passed through the worst drouth area in the night. From Fargo, North Dakota to Chicago and to Cincinnati, Ohio, we had paved roads all the way.

Visiting Mrs. Rohrman's parents in Minnesota, we also gained a night's rest arriving in Chicago early the next evening.

The Stanley Field Museum, Travel and Transport Building, Ford, General Motors, and Chrysler Building, Hall of Science, Firestone, Sinclair, Model Homes and beautiful fireworks on the lagoon were our chief points of contact at the fair proper, seeing that much between noon and midnight, having procured the new V8 in the morning off Michigan Boulevard. The night lighting effects of the grounds and buildings were paradoxical. The General Motors exhibit was more beautiful than Ford's but there was much more going on in the Ford building and all so well explained. We especially enjoyed watching a glass motor work. With aching feet we trudged past the roads of the world at the Ford exhibit. The Ford exhibit had the largest crowds, probably owing to the manufacturing activity.

Is driving in Chicago traffic a thrill? In Hermiston, we had not learned why they stress the V-8's pick-up for traffic. There is no looking behind or slowing up in Chicago traffic. It is a matter of speeding up to get out of a jam of flying cars and he who gets there first gets the driving space.

The next evening, driving into Cincinnati via the wealthy residence route, we noted V-8 cars parked in the driveways of several palatial homes. Some one said something about the appeal of being a Cincinnati Ford dealer.

In Cincinnati, we visited the magnificent arc-shaped new Central Railroad station. Its beauty surpasses that of any station either of us has ever seen.

We met many convoys transporting Dodges, Plymouths, Buicks, Chevrolets, Pontiacs and other makes of cars carrying as many as four on a convoy. In Cincinnati where there is a Chevrolet assembly plant, we were told few are exported by railroad.

The capital at Indianapolis was not as beautiful as the one at Madison. After an over-night stop at Elgin, Illinois, famous for its watches and road races, on the procedure to Minnesota, we inspected the famous Mayo buildings at Rochester. There are hundreds of doctors in the Mayo Clinic building and patients are handled through a system of metal number and letter plates. There are 'abyriths of halls and offices and

In each of these there may be from fifty to one hundred patients in line to see a given specialist. We were especially interested in a system of constantly moving apparatus in the walls used to carry patients' records from one department to another. Here we also toured the Curie Hospital, famous for its X-ray and radium treatment. (Concluded next week)
