RED CROSS AGENCIES SAFEGUARD HEALTH

First Aid, Life Saving, Nursing Care, Promote Health and Safety

Five outstanding services make up the health-conservation program of the American Red Cross, according to the annual report just issued in Washington. These services are first aid and life saving, which together have trained more than a million persons; nursing, with an active enrollment of 36,133 registered nurses; Public Health Nursing, conducted by 750 nurses in 424 chapters last year; and Home Hygiene, which has taught more than 700,000 men and women simple ways of caring for the sick at home.

"The achievements of the Red Cross in public health nursing place it among the leaders in this field," said James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations. "This service was organized in 1919 to meet needs developed by the World War and the ravages of the flu epidemic which in 1918-1919 took so great a toll of life."

"Since that time Red Cross nursing services have been pioneers in more than one half of the counties in the United States. Many services we established were taken over later by civic, state and federal agencies, and the Red Cross continues to establish services in other new fields. Red Cross nurses made more than a million visits to patients last year, and 629,025 children in schools were inspected."

"Red Cross courses in home hygiene and care of the sick are especially important in times of depression, because they teach families to maintain hygienic conditions in their own homes and to recognize symptoms of illness early enough to prevent serious consequences."

"Our courses in first aid have been instrumental in saving lives of the injured; in safeguarding the accident victim until the physician arrives, and in reducing time lost by workers in factories, mines and other industries. We are also giving the course extensively to police and fire departments throughout the country, and to state highway patrols."

Everyone is invited to join the Red Cross during the annual membership roll call which continues from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving, to have a part in the health program and the other humanitarian services of the Red Cross.

An Army of Goodwill

When members of the Junior Red Cross learned that schoolbooks had been destroyed in the Kentucky floods last August they gave $100 from the National Children's Fund to buy new textbooks for use in the schools. The maximum membership for the Junior Red Cross last year was 7,350,280, an increase over the previous year of more than 250,000. They carry on civic and service programs in their own communities which each year bring comfort and pleasure to thousands of needy and unfortunate people. An international friendship is built up through correspondence with Junior Red Cross members in foreign countries.

To Teach Water Safety

Life saving services offering training in first aid methods for swimmers have been carried on by the Red Cross for two decades. In 20 years, life saving certificates have been awarded to more than a half million people who are interested in water sports. Last year chapters issued 72,503 life saving certificates.

The Red Cross enrolled 3,302,354 members in last year's roll call. Join in the 1934 roll call—Armistice Day to Thanksgiving.

club was organized at Umatilla. Livestock clubs had not completed many projects but reorganization of the clubs this year was said to be on the program.

In explaining the diseases more prevalent in animals on the project Dr. Theo. Beletski expressed the belief that blackhead, which is infrequent in turkey flocks on the project, was due to severe chilling while the turks were small. He warned against improper feeding of stock which might result in an attack of rheumatism, and against allowing young ewes to feed too frequently and for too long a period upon cheat grass. He expressed the belief that this was an accredited tuberculosis free area, but that contagious abortion was still quite prevalent.

A report on the Umatilla Project Fair was given by the secretary, Enos D. Martin, and two directors elected to represent the organization on the board. They were J. Jendrzewski and L. C. Dyer.

Vegetable Men Like Short Course.

An average attendance of more than 100 growers daily made the first vegetable growers short course at Oregon State college a distinct success, those in charge report. Truck gardeners attended from such widely separated sections of the state as Astoria, Hood River and Grants Pass. Many attending expressed the desire to have such a course made an annual event and this step will be seriously considered, says A. G. B. Bousquet, professor of vegetable crops at the college. Lane county led in total attendance at the sessions.

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. IRELAND
Director, Physical and Health Education
New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

Study Time

Though the home work required by many schools is questionable, the fact remains it exists and parents should make the best of it by providing the best conditions for studying. Quiet is one essential. Shut off the radio during the study hour. If possible give the child a room to himself, and keep other children away.

As the workman needs good tools, so the child needs a comfortable chair and a table of the right height. Good light is important, but this does not mean an excessively bright light. By all means avoid glare, thus the table top should be polished and the light should be placed so that it does not shine directly into the child's eyes. The best location for the light is to the left and slightly to the rear of the child, or the right in the case of left handed children.

It is desirable to have a regular time for study, and insist that the schedule be kept. But don't let it come in the child's after-school playtime. Let that be his own time. An hour or so after the evening meal is usually satisfactory. Insist upon concentration and application during study time. Discourage "fooling" and interruptions.

Dr. Ireland will discuss next week the important problem of parents and teachers - the causes of communicable diseases.
