portance is going on in the restoration of genealogical books and records, many of great age and of priceless value, but which have fallen into decay and, without this intervention, would be lost forever to the country. To this, as in many up-to-date movements, the Oregon Chapter is contributing, the most recent being the purchase of flags for the new citizens who are to be received on Washington's birthday to the number of 500 and more, in Portland alone.

Mrs. R. S. Stearns read her report as delegate to the last General Court and delegates were elected to the next one. Oregon was the 24th state of the 48 to organize, a fact of which the chapter has good reason to be proud, preceding by years many of the older and fuller states. The organization was effected in 1926 by Mrs. J. L. Soule of Baker, who is now Honorary President. Though terms of entrance are difficult, a large number of eligibles have been found in Oregon. The conditions are "that one's father or mother, in direct line of descent, bear the same surname as that of the Patriot of the American Revolution, and he, in turn, of the Founder who must have arrived in the Colonies between May 13, 1607 and May 13, 1687."

On the occasion of the coming State Conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution, at La Grande, in March 26-27, Mrs. J. K. Wright, the La Grande D. F. P. A. member, plans to entertain this society at a tea in her home; for all of this latter organization are D. A. R.'s by terms of membership. Other nearby members in Hermiston, Baker, and Boise, will attend, as well as former Bakerites, including Mrs. J. H. Gallagher, who was born in Baker, and whose grandfather, Robert P. Yantis, was a pioneer of Baker County, and whose father, Charles M. Kellogg, was an early mayor of this city. She is now recording secretary of the society. Others are Mrs. Earl C. Brouaugh, Jr., who has been treasurer, president and chairman of important committees, who was born in Baker, as her parents were before her, and Mrs. Oscar T. Tinkle, for years the skilled registrar and genealogist. These three women were all charter members and all are now residents of Portland. Mrs. J. L. Soule, organizing president and now Honorary President, Mrs. T. B. Perkins, both of Baker, Mrs. A. A. Christley, Mrs. J. H. Reid and Mrs. J. E. Borders of Hermiston, and Mrs. David L. Fourt of Boise, are local members.
