AMATEUR HOUR IS FEATURE COMEDY SUNDAY AND MONDAY.

The current national popularity of radio amateur nights is presented for the first time on the screen in "Every Night at Eight," the musical comedy showing Sunday and Monday at the Oasis theatre.

With George Ratt, Alice Faye, Frances Langford, Patsy Kelly, the Three Radio Rogues and Walter Catlett, the film musical introduces brand new hit songs by Dorothy Fields, James McHugh, and Ted Fio Rito. Alice Faye, Frances Langford and Patsy Kelly, telephone operator, stenographer and bottle-packer respectively, quit their jobs to sing on the radio. They fail but are given a chance for success by George Ratt, an egotistical, yet sympathetic, orchestra leader. He signs them as members of his radio hour, and they rise to become the nation's foremost radio entertainers in a dramatic, humorous climax.

MOTOR 'SINGS' OWN SONG IN UNUSUAL FILM COMING HERE

Although automobile owners long have commented on the "song" of the motor in their car as it hums merrily along the highway, it has remained for a well-known composer to write a symphonic tone poem portraying the music of the Ford V-8 motor, and to present this musical theme in a novel motion picture, "Rhapsody in Steel," which will be shown here Friday and Saturday, September 27-28, at the Rohrman Motor company garage.

The symphonic song of the motor is called "Tone Poem of the V-8 Engine," and is a part of the composition of Edwin E. Ludwig, who wrote the remarkable score for "Rhapsody in Steel," the Ford company's newest motion picture. The V-8 engine, as set to music presents a lilting, smooth melody, gay and carefree. Composer Ludig studied the purring sounds of the V-8 motor, and set down in black and white notes the music he found in the motor's operation.

The film which will be shown here depicts the assembling of a Ford

V-8 engine in the River Rogue, plant of the Ford Motor Company, visioned in the dream of a workman after his day's task is completed. In the picture the entire car is assembled as if by magic, under the direction of a tiny imp which materializes from the famous V-8 insignia.

Symphonic music, especially composed, portrays the sound of the great machines as they build the car.

Along with "Rhapsody in Steel" will be shown "Honeymoon V-8," "Fair in the West," and "Ford Helps Harness the Missouri."
