FORTY-EIGHT DRIVERS LOSE LICENSES IN MAY.

Driving while intoxicated brought 45 persons into the courts in Oregon in May and cost them their right to operate motor vehicles for a year. Reports from the office of Earl Snell, secretary of state, show that three other drivers lost their licenses for an additional year due to driving while their licenses were revoked.

In addition to the revocations there were 36 suspensions of licenses, of which 21 were on charges of reckless driving. Other causes for suspended licenses were: Failing to give right of way, 1; unsatisfied judgment, 1; hit and run, 1; driving while license suspended, 1; adjudged as incompetent, 3; violating basic rule, 2; failure to appear, 5; and physical disability, 1.

Of the 45 revocations on drunken driving charges, three only were results of convictions in Portland courts, and of the 36 suspension orders, four only were based on recommendations from Portland courts. Many infractions of the motor vehicle law are reported to the secretary of state, in addition to the convictions resulting in the revocation or suspension of the driver's license, and such offenses are noted on the license record of the operator involved. Including these convictions of a more minor nature, a total of 465 convictions were reported to the state department in May.

RESERVOIR WATER SUPPLY FALLS SHORT OF LAST SEASON

The storage reservoir for irrigation water falls 9000 feet short of normal supply at the same time last year, making the irrigation season at least two weeks short of normal. E. D. Martin, district manager, says that with careful cooperation of farmers with the district ditch rider and manager, it is possible to conserve on reservoir storage water by using the river water whenever possible. Because of this the service may be a little slow but will be more apt to assure a longer irrigation season.

Late crops such as corn and melons will need irrigation water in the fall to mature.

COLUMBIA PARK DECLARED OPEN TO PUBLIC USE

Some confusion seems to exist as to whether or not Columbia park is a public park. It is in the fullest sense of the word. The park is maintained by the Farm Bureau and at all times is open to individuals or organizations wishing to use its facilities. Last year an outdoor stove or fireplace was added, but organizations wishing to use the facilities of the club house, should make arrangements with the Farm Bureau Auxiliary. The club house, property of the Auxiliary, is separate from the park.

Outside of a man who does the irrigating and cutting of the alfalfa, there is no caretaker, and individuals or organizations holding picnics at the park are asked to see that grounds and tables are left in a clean condition. Members of the Columbia park board issued the above statement.

HOME WEDDING UNITES YOUNG COUPLE SUNDAY MORNING

Baskets of regal lilies, holly hocks and garden flowers against a background of green foliage made a charming setting for the marriage of Miss Marian Henderson, daughter of Mrs. Wallace Wesley Henderson, and Howard Eugene Pettit, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Pettit of Oregon City, Oregon.

The service was read by Rev. Cecil Warner, pastor of the Hermiston Union church, at 9:00 o'clock Sunday morning, on the lawn at the home of the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Baker, in the presence of relatives and intimate friends.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, was lovely in a white georgette crepe gown fashioned with a bolero jacket. She carried a garden bouquet of pastel shades and wore a coronet made of white begonia blooms.

Miss Dorothy Straw of Portland, who acted as bridesmaid, wore a gown of blue lace, and little Shirley Garret of Oregon City, acted as flower girl carrying a basket of roses.

The bridegroom was attended by Stephen Coleman of Corvallis.

Preceding the exchange of vows Miss Shirley Brownson of Hermiston played Lohengrin's wedding march.

An informal wedding breakfast was served from a table covered by grape leaves and centered by a ship "Sally Forth" placed on a reflector. The wedding cake was of two tiers surrounded by four small cakes and was decorated with silver leaves, lilies of the valley and topped by a white dove.

The couple left at noon for Oregon City where a wedding supper had been prepared by the groom's sisters. Later they left for Oregon beaches on a wedding trip and will be at home in the Riverview Apartments at Oregon City, July 10th.

For traveling the bride wore a white suit with yellow accessories and a corsage of roses.

The bride is a graduate of Eastern Oregon Normal school at La Grande and attended the University of Oregon. For the past year she taught at Duncean, Ore. The groom is a graduate of the University of Oregon and is now employed on the staff of the Oregon City Enterprise.

DUAL POULTRY MARKET BECOMING MORE POPULAR

NORTH HILL DISTRICT IDEAL FOR POULTRY.

Turkeys, Fryers and Laying Hens Assure Definite Year Around Income to Farmers.

The business of raising fryers for the market at regular intervals during the year and turkeys for the fall and winter market is definitely becoming more popular in the Hermiston territory where the climate and soil conditions are ideal for the poultry industry. W. A. Sanders in the North Hill district and Mrs. Marvel Allen of Columbia district are carrying out this procedure.

In March Sanders sold 500 fryer cockerels and later put in 400 turkey poulets. In February they purchased 800 White Leghorn pullets from the Henacres Hatchery, which will occupy the laying house, now being cleaned and disinfected. In May the Sanders sold their 500 laying hens in order to allow time to clean and disinfect the houses for the young pullets coming on for fall laying. In this way their income has been steady and will be assured this fall with the laying hens in the houses.

Sanders realizes at least a $2500 gross income each year from both chickens and turkeys. The chickens pay their way and what is made from the sale of turkeys is considered profit or extra income.

The young cockerels are force fed and ready for the fryer market from six to eight weeks and after they are out of the brooder house and off the range the chicks intended for the laying house use are placed in the brooder house. Later the turkey poulets are put in the brooder houses as soon as the pullets are old enough to range, without the need of brooder houses, and in this way the brooder house equipment is utilized nearly every month in the year.

The Sanders have invited a market for turkey broilers sold at the age of from two to three months which comes before the turkey market and a little later for fryers. At this time the birds are fat and tender and perfect for broilers and the meat used in chicken sandwiches served in many restaurants now is known to be turkey meat. It is believed that this market can be developed.

Sanders Veteran Producer.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanders have been in the poultry business for the past ten years, starting first with 1200 turkeys. Later they put in chickens and built a 24x50 house with concrete floor, sliding window glass, roof ventilators, running water, and straw between the rafters held up by tar paper. Later another similar house was built making a capacity for more than 800 laying hens. They have 40 acres of the North Hill region which is very sandy land. They regard this soil condition as excellent for poultry growing. About their place are many shade trees and the poultry, both turkeys and chickens are allowed to range, but are kept apart in widely separated fields. They raise some corn but buy practically all their feed, except green alfalfa or grain.

Allen Enters Field.

Mrs. Marvel Allen is another grower who has sold 2000 cockerels on the fryer market this spring after feeding for six weeks at which time each bird weighed an average of two pounds, sold at 16 cents per pound. Purchased from Henacres Hatchery in March the birds were all sold by the second week in June at top price with only 18 culls showing up out of the 2000.

Two thousand strong and healthy turkey poulets now occupy the Allen brooder house. Mrs. Allen hopes to make the Christmas market with these late birds and will add 500 Rhode Island Red chicks soon to feed for the fryer market, another way of keeping the brooder houses in use during the major part of the season.

Mrs. Allen leased the place she now occupies in Columbia district early this spring and with the help of her daughter Beverly looks after the birds and investigates prospective markets.

Cooking Club Meets.

The Happy Hour Cooking club of Umatilla met in regular session Thursday of last week at the community hall, at which Miss Frances Clinton, county home demonstration agent, was present. Members of the sewing club and their leader and some of the members' mothers were present. The girls answered roll call by giving information on salad making. Miss Clinton gave a talk on various topics and taught the girls two new songs. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served.
