

FARM CO-OPERATIVE DIVISION

A MESSAGE TO EVERY MEMBER.

POULTRY BRANDING WILL AID IN PREVENTING THEFT.

The activity of poultry thieves on the project is apparently on the increase. This increase for 1936 is in line with predictions of people who have been making a study of poultry theft. Already reports of thieves have come in from various parts of the Umatilla Project. These reported losses are in no case extremely large, yet of enough importance to cause some thought and concern.

Poultrymen and turkey growers over the project are urged to make use of the tattoo brands which have been registered with the State Department of Agriculture. There are at present about 88 registered brands, and within the past two or three weeks about six new ones were registered. The cost of registering brands with the State Department of Agriculture is one dollar and the cost of the branding equipment runs about $2.50.

The fact that poultrymen have their flocks branded is not positive insurance against loss by thieves, but the possibility of apprehending such thieves is greatly increased if poultry can be positively identified. Those who suffer losses are asked to report such to H. A. Pankow, chief of police of Hermiston and deputy sheriff of Umatilla county, to a state police officer, to the county sheriff, or to the assistant county agent's office, who will in turn pass the reports on to the proper authorities. The State Department of Agriculture is extremely anxious that all reports be turned in as soon as possible after detected so that the activities of poultry theft gangs can be followed, and so that early investigations may be made.

It is rather profitable for a farmer to have a small notebook in his pocket, and each time a stranger calls at his place, jot down his name and the license number of the car he is driving. In a great number of cases this information will be the important evidence needed for conviction. This does not mean that every stranger coming to your place has connections with poultry theft rings, but should thefts occur on your place or in the neighborhood, officers may then be able to check all people calling at your place prior to the theft. Information of the kind stated just above would come in very handy now in locating the salesman of a poultry product which apparently has no value and which was purchased by a number of poultrymen on the project at a cost of between one and two hundred dollars.

O.S.C. EXTENSION SERVICE REPORTS BUSIEST YEAR.

County extension agents have experienced a year of greater activity than ever before measured both by statistics on requests for services and results of work accomplished, according to the annual report recently submitted by F. L. Ballard, vice director in charge of the federal cooperative extension service at Oregon State college.

Recorded calls at the offices of county agricultural agents alone by persons desiring information or assistance of some kind reached a total of 163,601 for the year, an increase of more than 67,000 in the past two years, the reports show. This represents an average of 4,512 calls per county. Meetings held by county agents total 4,222 or an average of 124 per county, many of these being demonstration meetings where methods and farm processes were shown. In addition to the meetings and calls at the offices, county agents averaged 762 visits to farms and wrote an average of 3,213 letters for the year. No record is made of the thousands of telephone calls received monthly.

The AAA expects to give full cooperation in enforcement of marketing agreements, according to H. R. Tolley, administrator of the Triple A, who was in California recently studying the working out of the market agreement program there.

"California deciduous tree fruit growers under the terms of their agreement and order are showing a determined spirit in meeting the problems of their industry," said Tolley. "They deserve the full support of the AAA in their efforts to have recourse to the courts if necessary to get enforcement of the plain and reasonable terms of the agreement. It is our intention to give them such support."

Farm Bureau Auxiliary.

The meeting of the Farm Bureau Auxiliary scheduled for July 3d has been postponed until July 17th, because of conflicting activities coming before the Fourth of July. The next meeting will be held in the Hermiston Union church with Mrs. Orval Dawson, Mrs. Waldo Dyer and Mrs. E. E. Rainwater acting as hostesses.

MORROW COUNTY POMONA GRANGE JULY 11 AT LEXINGTON

The Morrow County Pomona Grange will hold its quarterly meeting in the Lexington Grange hall, Saturday, July 11th. The contest in ritual work will take place at the forenoon meeting with contestants from the subordinate granges of Morrow county participating. A program to which the public is cordially invited, will begin about 1:30 p. m.

Ray W. Gill, Master of the Oregon State Grange, will be the principal speaker on the program, and there will also be interesting numbers given by the granges of the county.

Ice Cream Sale.

The We-Can Canning club and the Kookie Cooking club are sponsoring an ice cream sale Saturday, July 11, in front of the cooperative cannery.

GIRLS' 4-H CLUBS HOLD JOINT MEETING RECENTLY.

The We-Can Canning club and the Kookie Cooking club held a joint meeting at the home of Marie Skovbo, Wednesday, July 1, with Esther McMullen presiding. Progress in club work and plans for making money were discussed. The club members decided that their clubs would enter the Hazel Atlas Jar Company canning contest, held in Chicago annually.

Among other business the clubs decided to sponsor an ice cream sale Saturday, July 11th. A committee consisting of Eleanor Dawson, Nina Rae McCuller and Rebecca Pierson was appointed by President Esther McMullen to arrange a program to be given in the near future before the Westland Grange.

After the business meeting, refreshments were served by Jane Jackson and Margaret Clarke. Mrs. H. J. Ott was an honor guest.

AAA WEED CONTROL RULES REQUIRE PROMPT FILING.

Utmost speed in filing the location and description of land to be included in weed control projects under the new agricultural conservation program will be needed to qualify for soil building payments this year, according to announcement by the Oregon State college extension service. Detailed rules governing weed control operations as a soil building practice have been received for Oregon and distributed to county agents.

These rules provide that in order to qualify for the $5 per acre payments for clean cultivation control, and $10 for chemical control, description of the plots must be filed with the county committee before work is begun and within 15 days from the date the regulations were issued, which was on June 20.

This will make the deadline for filing about July 5 or 6, depending on whether Sundays and holidays are counted. In any event, prompt action is urged. Actual work on cultivation projects must also be started by that time, though chemical projects may be begun between now and the fall rainy season. In some cases growers have started cultivation control of perennial weeds in advance of the receipt of the rules. In that case the description and location are to be filed anytime within the 15-day limit mentioned.

Minimum area of a wood control project is a quarter acre, though this need not be all in a single patch. Chemicals may be applied dry or as a spray.

WHICH WAY AMERICA—COOPERATION OR COMMUNISM.

A most noteworthy conclusion was reached by E. Stanley Jones in his book "Christ's Alternative to Communism" when he rejected Capitalism without detailed discussion as a dying economic order, and declared that the issue of the future was between a spiritual or a material collectivism—in other words between Cooperation and Communism.

Cooperation is a method of retaining and extending democratic liberty and achieving economic justice; Communism destroys democratic liberty in its attempts to produce economic justice. The primary elements of economic justice might be defined as each one having ownership, employment and equality of income.

There is practically no farm tenancy in Denmark. Cooperation has resulted in the recovery of farm ownership in Denmark, which demonstrates that Communism is not necessary to eliminate tenancy. Furthermore, Cooperation has produced widespread individual ownership of farms rather than collective ownership. Individual ownership of farms is the foundation of greater cultural development than collective ownership. (See Denmark Agriculture, 1935, published by The Agricultural Council, Copenhagen, Denmark, for the facts.)

There is almost no unemployment in Sweden. Cooperation has resulted in the widespread distribution of jobs to everyone, which demonstrates that Communism is not necessary to eliminate unemployment. Furthermore, Cooperation has given everyone employment without compulsion as under Communism. (See "Sweden; The Middle Way" 1936, by Marquis W. Childs, for the facts.)

There is no widespread difference between standards of living in Finland. Cooperation has resulted in less difference between the standard of living of the well-to-do and the poorer classes in Finland than in Russia. The well-to-do live no higher than the Soviet officials and the poor live better on the average. Communism is not necessary to produce economic equality. (See series of four articles in Christian Science Monitor, August 19-22, 1935, for these facts.)

Political, educational and religious liberty have been preserved and extended in Scandinavia. Cooperation has retained all the values of democratic liberty in Scandinavia while producing economic justice, which proves that it is not necessary to destroy liberty in order to achieve justice as Communism has attempted to do.

America is far more like Scandinavia than Russia. America has a background of 150 years of democratic liberty in political, educational and religious fields. Scandinavia has likewise had long years of democratic development. Russia never knew what democratic liberty was.

By the use of their democratic powers as consumers, citizens and producers, the Scandinavians have achieved economic justice and preserved democratic liberty. Scandinavia is the example for America to follow—the way of democracy and Cooperation. Under dictatorship, says Gustav Cassel of Sweden, "what stands to be lost is nothing less than the whole of that civilization that we have inherited from generations which once fought hard to lay its foundation and even gave their lives for it. What they have accomplished and handed down to us is a precious inheritance, placing upon the present generation the commanding responsibility of maintaining such treasures intact for the benefit of future generations."

Scandinavia is rapidly developing consumers' cooperatives, public utilities and producers organizations. These are the three types of economic organizations for America to develop. Will you help reorganize your own little corner of creation in these three ways?
