FURIOUS DRIVE IN FINAL 15 MINUTES BRINGS VICTORY TO WAITSBURG ELEVEN.

Football Schedule.

October 10—Condon at Hermiston.
October 16—Athena at Athena.
October 23—Arlington at Arlington.
October 30—McLaughlin at Milton.
November 6—Touchet at Touchet.
Nov. 11—Heppner at Hermiston.

Driving furiously to overpower the Bulldogs in the final 15 minutes of the game, the Waitsburg Cardinals turned in a 9-0 victory over Hermiston last Friday afternoon on their home field.

The Bulldogs held the ball in their own territory during most of the first half but lost their grip after the first points which came on a safety late in the third quarter when a Hermiston lateral from the Bulldogs' own three-yard line was knocked down and slapped across the goal line by one of the Bulldog players. This was ruled an automatic safety and the Cardinals moved ahead.

The touchdown came in the final period, with three men deserving full shares of the credit for the score.

A Hermiston punt from the Bulldog 18 was blocked by big Andrew Keve, hard-hitting Cardinal tackle, and recovered on the Hermiston three-yard marker by Bob Rhay, sophomore end. Two plays later Joe Brooker dashed through right tackle and over the line. Keve calmly pickpocketed the extra point.

Hermiston almost scored in the second quarter, with a touchdown drive being halted by the whistle. Taking the ball after a Waitsburg punt on the 50, the Bulldogs moved up to the 35 when the Cardinals were penalized 15 yards for piling.

A one-yard dash by Alstott, left half, a 13-yard gain by Stewart Rankin, right half, another six yards by Alstott and six more by Rankin put the ball on the Cardinal nine-yard line for a first down. The half came before another play could be attempted.

A spectacular aerial offensive by Waitsburg in the third quarter saw three straight passes click for 34 yards. A fumble by a Cardinal player enabled Hermiston to recover on their own 11-yard line, however, and Jeppu punted out.

Keve, Rhay, Hays, Joe Brooker, La Mott and Neace were standouts for Waitsburg, although the entire team played stellar ball. Hermiston's leading lights were S. Rankin, Alstott, Jeppu and Stewart. Stewart, 200-pound tackle, stood out in the line, making a large percentage of the tackles.

Waitsburg punted seven times for an average of 32 yards; while Hermiston punted six times for an average of 30 yards. Hermiston made six first downs, while Waitsburg made five. Waitsburg attempted 10 passes and completed four for 49 yards, while Hermiston tried six, completing four for 28 yards. Each team intercepted one pass.

The Bulldogs will meet Condon here Friday on the field at the fair grounds, starting at 3:00 o'clock.

MORNING GLORY EXPERIMENTS

In 1936 the Umatilla County Agent's office established rather extensive morning glory control experiment plots. Almost 40 different kinds of treatments were made at various seasons of the year. After six years, it seems desirable for the farmers of the county to have an opportunity to see the results of these experiments. Some plots are entirely free of morning glory now, on the basis of but one treatment.

Beginning at 2:00 P. M. Friday, October 9, there will be a field meeting at these plots which are located on the Grace Sievers farm, northwest of Pendleton. To reach the plots from Pendleton, follow to the top of the Nelson grade and turn left at the first cross road beyond the top of the grade. Go west about one-half mile. The public is invited.

TOWNSENDITES HEAR SPEAKERS

W. A. Sellwood, district organizer from Portland, was one of the speakers at the regular Townsend club meeting Tuesday night at the Union church. Mrs. Alta Brown, president of the Heppner club, who is in charge of women's activities in the club, was also a speaker.

Mrs. Brown is organizing ladies' clubs within the Townsend clubs and arranged for a meeting here Tuesday, October 13th, urging all the ladies to be present. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. F. E. Earnhart, at 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon and all interested ladies are urged to be present.

A large group of Townsendites represented the local club at the meeting Tuesday.

CLUB JUDGING TEAM PLACES

The livestock judging team from the west end of Umatilla county won third place in the state, and sixth in the northwest, with 50 teams competing, at the Pacific International Livestock Exposition in Portland last Saturday. Members of the team were Bill Jackson, Hermiston, Eldon Saylor, Echo, and Leo Rueber, Stanfield.

Other prizes won on stock exhibits were taken by Chas. Kik, eighth on Hereford beef; Eldon Saylor, eighth on Shorthorn; Bob Jackson, seventh, Bill Jackson, eighth, and Bernard Jendrzejewski, ninth, on fat hogs.

Douglas Carter, Umatilla county boy, won first in the Senior Angus division, first in the Junior Angus division and the grand championship over all breeds of senior steers, at the Portland show. This is the first time in the history of the exposition that one boy has so completely monopolized the blue ribbons in the steer competition. Carter swept all first place honors in the steer division at the annual Umatilla county 4-H club fair held at Pendleton recently.

A more complete report of the winnings at the Portland show will be given in next week's Herald.

PIONEER HONEY HISTORY

The history of honey in this locality is about as long as the time white men have lived here. The largest producers, before thirty years ago, were the Thom brothers, Bob, John and Craig. Bob Thom kept 100 hives or more on his place near Hinkle Siding, and when he died several years ago his sons, Richard, Fred and Bob carried on. On Upper Butter Creek, A. Wattenburger also kept a large apiary.

When large alfalfa fields became common the bees were increased and until ten years ago this was the principal honey producing center of the northwest.

J. Skovbo entered the business in 1911, and has maintained an apiary of about 600 hives since that time. He has an extracting plant in Hermiston and has been president of the state association three times. E. R. Sires of Stanfield is president of the Umatilla county association now and W. G. Rodda of Hermiston is state inspector.

At one time there were 4000 hives of bees in the west end of Umatilla and northern Morrow counties. As much as 300,000 pounds of honey have been shipped annually from here, frequently in car lots to distant points. Eber D. Mossie, who took prizes at the project fair this year, formerly kept his bees here, but has transferred them to Pilot Rock. It is estimated that this year the output will be 175,000 pounds.

The bee business dwindled as bee pasture became less through the growth of nature which took the place of alfalfa fields. There is a large amount of bee pasture here among wild plants and other cultivated crops, but production is largely controlled by the volume of alfalfa growing. As this increases the honey business will grow. All other conditions are excellent for heavy production of honey and the business is well established.

In addition to the above, others who were in the business are: R. H. Stockard, J. C. Tillery, R. H. Davison, Frank Otto, Nels Christensen and Bob Mitchell of Boardman; New Madden, A. Buhmann. Several others have a few hives. The Buhmann Brothers moved their bees to Fort Rock, Montana, where they now operate a large apiary.

MORROW COUNTY POMONA MEETS AT WILLOWS GRANGE OCT. 3

Morrow County Pomona Grange met at the Willows Grange hall at Cecil October 3, for its regular quarterly meeting.

About seventy-five were in attendance at the lecturer's program in the afternoon, the morning session having been taken up with the usual business of subordinate grange reports, etc.

The program, in charge of Mrs. Vida Heliker, Pomona Lecturer, was exceptionally good and thoroughly enjoyed by those present. After a song by the audience, Mrs. Hiney of Rhea Creek gave a very fine resume of her summer vacation trip east, giving an interesting account of how New York City and other notable places "back east" as we term it, appear to an Oregonian.

Mr. Corson of the Grange Bulletin recalled a very interesting council meeting he had attended at Rhea Creek more than two years ago. He commended the granges on the work done in this county in the Bulletin advertising work as shown by the prize money received by the different granges for slips sent in.

Miss Helen Ralph of Ione very beautifully rendered two vocal solos, "Sweet Mystery of Life," and "The Old Spinning Wheel." In the latter, she was assisted by Opal Cool and Marian Krebs, who followed the solo with a demonstration. They first gave an explanation of how wool is processed and made into yarn by our present machinery, and then demonstrated the method by the old spinning wheel, one of which they had on the stage and which had been brought from Sweden many years ago.

The State Lecturer, Mrs. G. W. Thibsen, spoke briefly, commenting on the wonders of our state as they appear to her in the state wide trip made by the state grange party for Babies Born Same Day.

Two babies born at the Hermiston General hospital last week arrived on the same day, September 30th. Their mothers, Mrs. Tom Lenhart and Mrs. Chas. Duval, were born in the same year and were classmates in the Hermiston high school. Both the mothers have always lived in Hermiston. They will leave the hospital for their respective homes Saturday. The babies were girls.

LADIES AUXILIARY ELECTS OFFICERS

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Farm Bureau elected Mrs. Alice Wells as its president at the regular meeting last Friday at the Union church. Mrs. E. C. Hughes was elected vice president, Mrs. C. L. Upham, secretary, and Mrs. Henry Sommerer and Mrs. W. A. Mikesell members of the executive committee.

The ladies voted to hold all meetings in the Columbia park club house instead of one every month at the Union church. The next meeting will be held Friday, October 16. The committee, which is composed of Mrs. H. J. Ott, Mrs. H. A. Hooker and Mrs. Lathrop, asks that all ladies planning to attend bring pieces for a wool quilt.

ANNIVERSARY COMMENTS

To fittingly observe the 30th anniversary the Hermiston Herald appeared last week as a 32-page edition, every page finely executed. Besides a liberal amount of advertising the paper contained an excellent review of Hermiston and vicinity since the town was founded. The Herald is owned by Pauline M. Stoop and Alfred Quiring.—Auxiliary.

Hermiston Herald Celebrates.

The Hermiston Herald, published by Alfred Quiring and Miss Pauline Stoop, both formerly of Dallas, celebrated the 30th anniversary of the founding of that paper on September 17, with a 26-page special edition boosting for the irrigated district that surrounds Hermiston. The paper, with its printings and enlivened with numerous illustrations, required an enormous amount of work and is a credit to the community and to the enterprising young publishers.

Hermiston, which proved to be one of the most stable communities in eastern Oregon during the depression period, is rapidly forging to the front with its diversified agricultural industries. Poultry raising, both turkeys and chickens, is one of the newer enterprises which is proving profitable to settlers of the district.

The editor of the Itemizer-Observer feels a personal pride in the Hermiston Herald for both of its publishers received their first newspaper and printing training in his employ, and were aided and encouraged in their publishing venture by him. They went to Hermiston just at the start of the depression, buying the paper in December, 1929. They have known what it is to go through real hard times as beginners—an experience more valuable than delightful.—Itemizer-Observer.

BOARDMAN FUTURE FARMERS WIN

The stock judging team from the Boardman chapter of Future Farmers of America won fourth place in judging beef cattle, eighth place among 21 Oregon teams in judging beef, sheep and hogs, and 24th place judging the same classes of animals with teams from Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana, at the Pacific International Livestock Exposition in Portland last Saturday.

Pat Healy of the Boardman team tied third place among 138 boys in judging Duroc-Jersey hogs. The Boardman team included Stanley Partlow, Pat Healy and Ralph Skovbo, with Ted Wilson as alternate.

The F. F. A. boys operated three concessions at the North Morrow county fair, held at Irrigon, from which they cleared $20 to finance the stock show trip.

The boys report the international is a wonderful show of fine stock. They were especially pleased with the horse show and rodeo, including performances by the army officers and horses just back from the Olympic games in Berlin.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The first of a series of four programs on experiments on liquid air was given in the high school auditorium Thursday of this week. The experiments were on electrical and magnetic accompanied by a lecture.

A hilarious time was had at the Freshman-Sophomore initiation Monday night in the auditorium during the annual event of ushering the freshmen into high school. The girls were required to wear old fashioned costumes, and the boys to wear pajamas. A series of initiation stunts were put on. Refreshments were served following the stunts.

A notice from County School Superintendent J. A. Yeager announces there will be a joint teachers' institute held at Baker, Ore., October 22nd and 23rd, in which teachers from Malheur, Umatilla, Union, Baker and Wallowa counties will participate. School will not be closed here Supt. Kersbergen said.

The grounds between the high school building and the side walk is being prepared for sodding to lawn this week. The road grader equipment is also moving dirt to complete the street on Ridgeway and grading Second street past Gladys avenue. Shrubbery will be planted in the spring to complete the landscape about the school building.

Dr. D. V. Poling, representing the Oregon System of Higher Education will talk to high school students Monday, October 19th.

The Womens' Auxiliary to the American Legion supported the primary grades with play ground equipment consisting of play balls and indoor baseballs. This is in addition to keeping up the first aid room which they equipped and have kept up for several years.

ONE DISTRICT 100 PER CENT FOR TURKEYS FLOCKS INCREASED

MANY FARMERS RENEW TURKEY FLOCKS: OTHERS ADD TO NUMBER OF BIRDS.

Farmers in the Minnehaha district have gone in for turkeys in a big way with small new flocks cropping out this year and the growers of long standing raising the same number of birds as previously or increasing their flocks. Eleven different growers are raising flocks of between 400 or 2000 birds.

E. L. Jackson is raising his first commercial flock of 400 birds purchasing the poults from H. G. Rankin early in June. Until two years ago the Jacksons had raised a few birds with turkey hens. This year they turned their chicken house into a brooder which has a capacity for 750 poults.

Dry mash is kept before the birds at all times but a wet mash, moistened with milk, is fed at noon, and grain twice daily. The Jacksons believe that the additional milk adds to immunity from disease, but the main reason for feeding the wet mash is to increase the weight of the late birds as rapidly as possible for an early market.

Other New Producers.

Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Casseday are also new growers with a flock of 500 bronze birds. They came from Walla Walla and purchased what is known as the Silvery place on the Butter Creek highway. Mrs. Casseday is a sister of Mrs. A. E. Bessel. They also maintain a flock of White Minarca chickens and expect to put 100 pullets in the laying house this fall.

The Cassedays secured poults from Mitchell in Washington. These are a duck breasted, short legged, bronze bird. They expect to keep 250 toms and 100 hens for breeding stock, and will sell some of the toms to other producers as breeding stock.

A 20x60 brooder house was built this spring which has a concrete floor, heated by a hot water system, arranged with the hovers over the pipes.

Growers from Kansas.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Keller came here two years ago from Reno County, Kansas, and increased their turkey flock from 234 last year to 900 this year. In Kansas they raised a flock of 100 birds at a much greater cost and effort than they raise 900 birds here, they say. Mr. and Mrs. Keller and their son, with occasional help from a hired man, take care of the birds.

They have a 12x46 brooder house with a hot water system. The hovers are above the pipes to produce the effect of warmth as from the turkey hen, believed the most satisfactory system of brooding.

The birds have ranged on alfalfa consuming the third crop and eliminating the necessity of feeding chopped green feed. The poults were purchased May 21st and now the largest toms weigh 20 pounds and the poults between 11 and 13 pounds.

The Kellers have a turkey story 2000 miles long—running between Kansas and Oregon.

Flocks Gradually Increased.

Two years ago the Cleve Clarks who live on the Butter Creek highway, turned their dairy barn into a brooder house and concentrated their efforts in the turkey business. In the near future they expect to build an addition to the present house. They do their own custom hatching in three Master and one Never Fail incubator, having fair luck until a year ago when the eggs were allowed to get too dry, causing a decrease in percentage of hatches.

Last year they kept 80 hens for breeding stock and expect to keep 150 this year. The first turkeys were raised almost exclusively on milk in the year when butterfat was 13 cents per pound. This was not satisfactory, however, because of the necessity of changing the formula for feed later in the season, causing a loss in time and a check in weight advance on the birds.

The Clarks plant corn early, in April if possible, which brings it to early maturity and allows feeding in the fall during the finishing period. Corn is one of the best feeds but requires more labor than wheat.

The birds range over a large area and this is arranged by moving the roosts daily to clean ground. The birds are now gradually being moved toward the corn field where they will range.

Flamo brooders are used in the brooder house which is equipped with a hot water system. The house is divided into five sections, each with a sun porch.
