PIERCE CONFIDENT RIVER DEVELOPMENT

Congressman Walter M. Pierce expressed the belief that "If the big Public Works program is put over, I mean the six year idea, I think then we will get an allotment of money, with an executive order to build the Umatilla dam," in a letter received here today by E. P. Dodd.

Mr. Pierce also stated that he rather favored a bill for the general development of the Columbia and Snake rivers, but is not willing, in that bill, to say that the Army Engineers shall have exclusive say as to which place shall be developed first. Mr. Pierce will support a bill only that states that the Umatilla dam will be built next, and says that he knows how the President feels about it.

THOUGHTS FOR WOMEN BY ANRAH

Mistakes may be made by editors, but occasionally others than editors make mistakes, and the contributor is taking the blame for the mistake made in last week's article when the word "instinct" was used instead of "instinct".

"In the good old days mother instinct was considered sufficient and an adequate substitute for knowledge."

To pursue the subject farther, Benjamin Franklin decided there was no such thing after returning to his mother's home where she kept boarders (having been absent during the years of change from boyhood to manhood), and asking for supper and a bed for the night, because it was snowing badly and he claimed to be a stranger in town, she finally consented to let him dine with the boarders, where he charmed them with his rare conversational powers to such an extent, they plead for him to remain the night.

Mrs. Franklin finally consented and gave him a bed on the front porch, but before going to bed, she hid all her silverware! Evidently her mother instinct was slumbering, since she did not recognize her son Ben.

Motherhood is a real job and if we expect to make a success of this most important of all jobs, we must apply thought, effort and time as we do to less important ones.

What job pays better or brings more returns than that of rearing a family who live honestly and decently, and contribute something toward the betterment of humanity.

INSURANCE DEPT. GIVES WARNING

Salem, Ore., Feb. 9—Hugh H. Earle, insurance commissioner, has received word from R. E. O'Malley, superintendent of insurance for the state of Missouri, of the precarious condition of the Manufacturing Lumberman's Underwriters, a reciprocal exchange of Kansas City, Missouri. So serious are the financial difficulties facing this insurance organization that Superintendent O'Malley has advised holders of policies or contracts to cancel their policies and properly protect themselves with other insurance.

A recent examination of the affairs of the exchange disclosed that during the first ten months of 1936 its losses exceeded a million dollars due largely to charging inadequate rates. Large additional losses have more recently occurred by fire, flood and water damage in the Ohio valley region against which this exchange carried substantial coverage.

Reasons advanced by Commissioner Earle for following the advice sent out by the Missouri official are based on the following facts:

First, the members or policyholders of the exchange are, under the Oregon law, responsible for the losses and expenses of operating the exchange, and this responsibility continues until their policies are canceled either by the member or policyholder, his attorney-in-fact, or by a court of competent jurisdiction. Neither the attorneys nor any court has canceled these policies.

Second, recent reports on the financial condition of the exchange are very discouraging and losses occurring under these policies will in all probability not be paid for many months and possibly for years.
