The new Columbia and Snake river bill is now before congress and it, in the main, passes the buck to the board of army engineers in Washington, D. C. The people of the region affected, if the bill passes, must then plead their case, in each instance, before this high court at long range.
The measure, however, provides for an expenditure of $15,000,000 a year on river development. It does not name any project for first consideration. Where this money is to be spent is left to the discretion of army engineers. They may spend it down river or up river, and the Umatilla rapids may again be sold down the river.

It has been a perfect spring for farming and the farmers are taking advantage of such a favorable season, in doing GOOD farming.

The turkey business is picking up. Many are not going in, but the established poultrymen who are properly financed are not afraid. They grow 'em right here and competition in other less favored places must give way to our prime birds.

The story of steamboating on the upper Columbia and Snake rivers is well told by the diary of Captain Arthur Riggs, kept almost 30 years ago. The Captain knew 'Old Man River' like few men did in those days and like none of them know now. This statement might be applied to engineers, politicians and public administrators or distributors of public funds.

Be careful and don't drop your fish line into the tree tops of Boardman, bye and bye.

Days fly by so fast that you may forget to plant those flowers, shrubs and trees. There is no better time than the early morning or the flaming sunset.

Golf Club Meeting.

A meeting of the Hermiston Golf club has been called for Friday night at 8:00 o'clock in the library. The president, Curtis Simons, urges that everyone be present to make plans for the opening season tournaments and take care of other business.
