Farm Bureau Auxiliary.

The Farm Bureau Auxiliary will meet Friday, August 20th, in the club house in Columbia park with Mrs. Elmer Ryland, Mrs. J. Jendrzewski, and Mrs. Baxter Hutchison as hostesses.

NOTICE TO CREDIT UNION MEMBERS.

All members are requested to leave their pass books with Mrs. Henderson at the Farm Bureau Co-operative for audit purposes, not later than Monday, August 23rd.

E. H. DUNNING, Secretary.

CO-OP. SURVEY NEARLY COMPLETED

With field work almost completed, facts obtained about the north-west farmer cooperative movement will soon be ready for tabulation, it is announced by A. C. Adams, president of the Bank for Cooperatives at Spokane which is conducting the survey as part of a nation-wide research program.

"More than 2000 cooperative associations have been contacted," Mr. Adams explains, "and have wholeheartedly supplied information about their operations which should be of much practical value after being compiled and reflected back to the participating groups."

"This is the first comprehensive survey of the cooperative movement that has ever been undertaken, giving at accurate register of business volume handled cooperatively, total farmer membership, forms of organization, operating practices and methods of financing. The Bank for Cooperatives has been glad to assist in gathering this long wanted data."

Many cooperative organizations in the four northwest states are financing through the cooperative bank, obtaining funds on a favorable business basis to finance their operations. At present they have facility, working capital and commodity loans of approximately $5,500,000 outstanding, and commitments for nearly $5,000,000 more.

CO-OP LEADERS TO BROADCAST

New York (CLNS)—For the first time in history the American public will be able to hear reports directly from Europe on the deliberations of the World Congress of Co-operators. According to plans just completed the Columbia Broadcasting System will make an exclusive broadcast from Paris, Wednesday, September 8, the third day of the 14th Triennial Congress of the International Cooperative Alliance. The broadcast will be carried by the entire Columbia network, 6:15 to 6:30 P. M. EDT.

The speakers will be Howard A. Cowden, president of Consumers Co-operative Association, North Kansas City, Mo., leader of the American Delegation and Vianno Tanner, president of the International Co-operative Alliance. Mr. Tanner is also Minister of Finance in the present Finnish government and is president of the gigantic Elanto Co-operative Society in Helsingfors.

The I.C.A. Congress will draw together delegates from cooperative associations in 39 countries representing more than 100,000,000 individual members of cooperatives.

Shrubs Tested at Hermiston.

HERMISTON — More than 200 species of ornamental plants and shrubs are being tested on the Umatilla branch experiment station in actual use as plantings around the buildings. They are being watched primarily for hardiness, as many of the ordinary plantings common to Oregon will not survive the occasional severe winter temperatures of this region. The plants have been growing now for several years and are of an age when their general characteristics may be seen by visitors to the station.

Clubbers to Pendleton.

A group of 4-H club boys and girls left Thursday morning in company with Jay T. Pierson, assistant county agent, for Pendleton and the annual 4-H club day program. Some of the group will remain over until Friday to attend the annual ram sale. The delegation included James Barber of Stanfield, Otho and Floyd Whitsett, Bill Corpe, Harry Lewis, Eugene, Richard and Jim Rugg, Joe Cooney, Bob Jackson, Kenneth Benschel, Leo Rueber, Chas. Kik, Henry Sommerer Jr., Lois, Irene and Wilbur Hunt.

Alfalfa Seed Threshed.

H. F. Lindner, five miles north of town, has threshed his alfalfa seed, and from ten acres he harvested 2000 pounds of good clean seed. Theodore Krause of Stanfield did the threshing and has moved to Mrs. Gretchen Purdy's place to thresh 25 acres, and will then go to the W. English place for eight acres more. This seed crop is all on adjoining ranches. The price of seed now ranges upward from 30 cents a pound. Lindner says he paid for the land on which he grew the seed with this one crop. Before coming here he had been engaged in seed production.

4-H CLUB NEWS

By GRACE BENSEL.

The ever busy Happy Hour Cooking club met August 12, at the Community Hall in Umatilla, and again August 17, on the Umatilla beach. The latter was a swimming party celebrating Maxine Thompson's eleventh birthday.

The girls are working on posters which will be exhibited at the entertainment to be given at the close of the club year. Some of the girls are making scrap books.

Jean McKenzie and Grace Benschel were chosen as members of the demonstration team to represent the club at the Umatilla Project fair, September 2-3-4.

With fair time so close at hand the girls are completing their report cards and practicing on their exhibits. Mary Margaret Kennedy is the first girl to have completed her record book and cards.

Mrs. Hrrriet Forq, Fay Roberts and Agnes Kennedy were visitors at the meeting.

POULTRYMEN NOW PLANNING YEAR'S GREEN FEED NEEDS.

Practically any section of Oregon where poultry is produced is also capable of growing a year-round supply of green feed for chickens or turkeys, if a well-planned rotation for this purpose is followed, says Harry A. Scoth, federal agronomist, in a new state college bulletin entitled, "Green Feed and Pasture for Poultry."

The bulletin contains a list of seven suggested planting tables for the different sections of the state, which under normal conditions will give a year-round supply of green feed. For example, a planting table for the well-drained lands of the Willamette valley, not irrigated, consists of crimson clover and domestic rye grass, small grains, and vetch planted in the fall, red clover, corn or sunflowers, rape or summer cabbage, kale, roots and Sudan grass. Not all of these are necessary on any one farm, as the seasons of use overlap considerably.

Alfalfa is also suggested in many of the rotations, as it produces an abundance of spring, summer and early fall green feed, and a good stand will last from three to seven years or more.

FOWL POX PROTECTION IS EASY, SURE, PROFITABLE.

Frequent occurrence of fowl pox in unvaccinated flocks last winter has emphasized the fact that it pays to take this certain precaution regularly against this wholly preventable disease, says H. E. Cosby, head of the poultry department at Oregon State college.

"Fowl pox is likely to reappear each year after its first appearance, unless controlled by immunization. It does not necessarily reappear each year, but it may," says Cosby. "In this day of farm visitors, rodents, birds, used crates, feed sacks, purchase of new stock, and dozens of other possible carriers of virus, it just isn't good head work on the part of any producer to place the welfare of his flock on the gambler's wheel of chance."

The accepted method of immunizing young birds against fowl pox was developed by Dr. W. T. Johnson, poultry pathologist at the Oregon experiment station. It is much more simple and certain than older methods.

Farm Bureau Auxiliary.

Mrs. W. B. Foster will be chairman of the committee for the next Farm Bureau Auxiliary meeting Friday, August 20th, at the club house in Columbia park. Other members of the committee were Mrs. Elmer Ryland, Mrs. J. Jendrzewski and Mrs. B. Hutchison.

OHIO CO-OP BUSINESS UP 50 PER CENT

COLUMBUS, Ohio (CLNS)—With business nearly a million and a half dollars greater than the same period last year, the Ohio Farm Bureau Cooperative association finished its first six months of 1937 with a volume of $4,416,719. This was a gain of 50.1 per cent over sales for the first half of last year when $2,941,656 worth of commodities, the record volume at that time, checked through the Columbus office.

The Ohio Farm Bureau Co-op association serves 79 county-wide farm bureau co-ops in the state. In 1936 the co-op wholesale rolled up a total business of $6,781,000.

Beef Fattening Trials Made.

DALLAS—Fattening livestock on irrigated pasture may develop into one of the important farm enterprises in the Willamette valley, if trials conducted on various farms in Polk county are an indication, believes County Agent W. C. Leth. It is not unreasonable, he says, to expect a production of 1000 pounds of beef per acre from good, well-managed irrigated ladino pasture, which based on market prices for beef this season, would mean a return of from $50 to $90 an acre. Considering the fact that very little is involved in a beef production program, this would be considered a satisfactory income, he says.

Canada Thistle Control Reported.

ALBANY—Keeping Canada thistles constantly below the ground surface through cultivation is the principal factor in controlling this pest by the summer fallow method, says County Agent F. C. Mullen, after surveying the results obtained by Linn county farmers last summer. Farmers who obtained satisfactory control cultivated their land an average of 16 times, while those who got poor results cultivated an average of eight times. Starting cultivation early in the season also seemed to give better results than where it was delayed until late June or early July.

DR. TRIPPEER TESTS BANG'S DISEASE

Dr. H. A. Trippier of Walla Walla, Wn., district veterinarian, will be in this area again Tuesday and Wednesday, August 24th and 25th, to test 4-H club calves and also brand reactors of Bang's disease from his recent test.

Anyone contemplating showing at the local fair should have stock tested. The fair board is anxious to safeguard against possible transmission of the disease at the local fair to stock free of the disease. It is only fair to those who have clean herds that precautionary measures be taken against possible spread of infection. Rule 13 in the premium list states that "all cattle of breeding age must be tested and found free from infectious abortion to be admitted to the grounds. A certificate showing said test must accompany the cattle."
