TURKEY GROWERS VIEW FLOCKS

The Eastern Oregon Turkey Growers' annual tour and picnic was held Saturday, starting at the Umatilla Field Station, where H. K. Dean, superintendent, explained the advantages and costs of a portable range house used for housing birds after they are taken from the brooder. The range house is not being used extensively at present.

Dean stated that experiments worked into the program recommended by J. C. Leedy, field manager for the state association, in that it was economical to produce large market birds as small birds. Dean favored the standard grain and milk rations for birds as shown by experimental results.

At the A. E. Benson farm visitors viewed between 900 and 1000 fine birds ranging in a corn field and studied brooding and raising methods. At the H. B. Darlin' farm 1500 large birds were seen and the brooding and raising methods studied.

A large group gathered at Columbia park at noon where dinner was enjoyed. A program followed later consisting of violin numbers by Miss Edna Ott, accompanied by Mrs. Zona Benson Rogers, a solo with piano accompaniment by Donald Heliker of Ione, and Donald DeMoss of Hermiston, a reading by Mrs. P. A. Power.

John Jendrzewski, who acted as chairman, introduced H. J. Larson of Portland, and Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Barnett of Richland, Wn., who issued an invitation to the Pennekick, Wn., turkey tour Sept. 3rd.

Among the main speakers on the program were N. L. Bennion, Herbert Byers and J. C. Leedy, whose pictures appear opposite this story.

Farm Bureau Will Close.

The Farm Bureau Cooperative will close on Labor Day, which is Monday, September 7th. The plant will also be closed Friday and Saturday afternoons, September 3 and 4, during the Umatilla Project fair, opening again about 5:00 o'clock each evening. Patrons are requested to note this arrangement.

FOUR GRANGES WILL PICNIC SUNDAY

State Grange Master Ray W. Gill will be the main speaker at a picnic to be held Sunday, August 29th, in Columbia park by four granges in this district. They are Westland, Stanfield, Echo and Columbia whose members and friends are invited. Everyone attending is requested to bring their own basket lunch and table service. Ice cream will be served free by the granges. An all day picnic is planned with games and a program.

Regular Pomona Meeting.

An unusually good program will be presented at the regular Pomona meeting at White Eagle Grange hall, Thursday, September 2. Mrs. Maude Morse and State Master Ray Gill are speakers. Mrs. Geo. Woodward of Adams will give readings. A one-act play "A Good Nurse" will be presented by Stanfield Grange, and musical numbers will be given.

MANY AWARDS FOR 4-H CLUBBERS

More than $6000 in prizes and scholarships will be offered for boys' and girls' 4-H club work at the State Fair September 6 to 12, in addition to numerous purebred animals, poultry and other special awards, according to the 4-H premium lists now available for distribution from the state club office at O.S.C.

Entries in all 4-H divisions, including livestock, crops, home economics and others, are expected to greatly exceed even the high mark set last year. Boys and girls all over the state are busily bringing their projects up-to-date, completing record books, and grooming their animals. A full carload of animals is expected from both Union and Umatilla counties.

WEED ERADICATION UNDERWAY

It is now the time of year to carry out the weed control program according to a statement sent out by Jay T. Pierson, assistant county agent, to farmers in this district last week. Farmers are asked to cooperate with the assistant county agent in completing a survey to locate the various kinds of weeds from which a map may be made to furnish definite information to present the county court for allocation of funds from county, state and federal government in a program of control.

W. T. Reeves of Stanfield was appointed to represent this district on the county weed control board and is directing the work here. Plans are underway for a series of meetings when a man will be appointed to various areas to assist with the weed survey.

Many years of experimental work done in this county and elsewhere lead to the conclusion that at the present time sodium chlorate in the dry form is the best chemical to use for Morning Glory control. For White Top, Russian Knapweed and purple blossom Milkweed, it is suggested that the rate recommended for Morning Glory be doubled.

For Morning Glory there should be applied at least 3 or 4 pounds to the square rod in infested areas, being sure that the chemical extends three or four feet outside the boundary of the patch. Where one plant is treated it is safest to spread the chemical in a circle about two feet in diameter. It is very important that the one applying the chemical know rather accurately how much is being put on the plants or the ground, as guess work has resulted in many failures. The best results are being obtained where the area of weeds is being measured or estimated very closely and then the proper amount of the chemical weighed or measured to cover that area as evenly as possible.

Sodium chlorate is poisonous to livestock and they should not be permitted to graze over treated patches until after a good rain. The chemical is also highly inflammable and one should be careful to wash it out of clothing or shoes that might be used while applying it. In the dry state it is largely harmless so there is little to fear from handling it if the above precautions are followed. The container should be kept tightly closed when not in use and should be stored in a dry place. Those wishing to spray the chemical may do so with equally good results as far as the kill is concerned, mixing it at the strength of one to two pounds of the chemical to one gallon of water. Again it is important to note that it is the amount of chemical on the plant or ground that counts and not how strong the solution may be.

The effective time to apply the sodium chlorate is in the late fall just ahead of the fall or winter moisture. It seems to be equally effective on green or dry plants.

As the chemical penetrates deeper into the soil the kill seems to progress so that one should not expect the plants to be destroyed to any great depth until the spring following the fall application. The chemical may be broadcast by hand much in the same manner as in seeding grain or it may be spread with a sifter. Umatilla county has ordered four small, portable, one-man dusters, which will be loaned to interested farmers when the dusters are available. Delivery of them is not expected until about the middle of September. When applied as a dust, the chemical should be as finely ground as possible.

FARM NAMING PASSING FANCY

Twenty-five years ago the custom of naming farms was carried out on the Hermiston Project by 66 farmers, and a record of the names and places were then published in the Herald. The only farmers who now live on the farms they named are R. C. Barham in Columbia district, Frank Allen near town, and F. B. Pennock, southwest of Hermiston.

The Barham place was called "The Locust," Allen's place, "Allendale," and the Pennock farm "Woodbine."

Pleasant View is now occupied and owned by A. Buhmann, and was named by G. A. Cressy, who erected a sign that still stands.

Del Christley now owns Buena Vista, named by W. A. Leathers. The place where Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Best now live was named Orchard Home by G. H. Root. The A. W. Agnew place, west of town, was called Hazel-Burr. The George Davis ranch, on the Butter Creek road, was long known as Roselawn. The John Leek, homestead on North Hill South View. Where Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hanby now live, the late H. G. Newport named the Old Homestead.

The L. H. Pearson ranch in the northeast corner of the project drew the name of Fairview Farm. The Briggs place, now the Dixon hop yard, was called Four Sisters. The P. P. Sullivan ranch was called Sweet Spring ranch, and the place where Dr. Theo. Beletski now lives was Sunset. A number of the ranches were on North Hill, and have since been abandoned. Other names and places would not be familiar to anyone living here at present.

JUNIOR FARMERS RECEIVE PUBLICITY

Oregon's junior farmers, both those in 4-H club work and those in Smith-Hughes agriculture, received some notable national publicity through two trade publications recently.

A double-page spread in the current bulletin of the agricultural commission of the American Bankers' association is devoted to the agricultural work of the bank of Albany. The work of C. E. Williamson, president of the Oregon Bankers' association, and in charge of the agricultural program of the Albany bank, is featured, as is that of O. E. Mikesell, county club leader. (Mr. Mikesell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mikesell of Hermiston.)

Numerous illustrations show the activities of club members and Future Farmers in projects sponsored and supported by the bank. Oregon has for years ranked high in national standings in banker-farmer cooperation.
