President and Umatilla Dam.
 President Roosevelt will deliver the principal address of his western trip at Bonneville Tuesday. Of course he will talk about the Bonneville dam with a unit of power now generating electricity and the great structure almost completed. He, no doubt, will say something about power and the yard stick of prices, and the spread of electricity to common users within reach of the plank. He also, doubtless, will talk about further development of the Columbia as to navigation and power. It might be that he will say something about Umatilla rapids dam and other dams on the Snake.
 Since the last May report of Colonel Robins, division engineer, recommends that the Umatilla rapids dam be the next major improvement in the Columbia region, it is reasonable to suppose the president may give us something definite, or hopeful. A close reading of the Robins report leaves scarcely a doubt that the Umatilla dam is set for construction. It is fortified with argument for justification. The date, when, is left out. It will be before congress this winter in a general bill. It can be built without congressional action. The President knows all about it. He knows about the completion of the barge canal from Celilo to Umatilla. He knows about the contents of the Robins report and its line of argument. The time may not be opportune for him to speak definitely, in his judgment, but he can hardly escape saying something about further work on the Columbia, and between his lines, or hanging to his words, he will give us something more than we know now.
 The hunter in the mountains who shoots at moving brush which shields a fellow man, presuming it to be a deer, may not be excused for the injury or murder. No red-hatted hunter looks like a deer. There should never be presumption when shooting at such a target, there should be certainty. No deer is worth the price when paid in human life.

The Umatilla Project fair board has made a permanent improvement to the Hermiston Community park grounds in the construction of the half mile race track which will be a source of income and pleasure to the community for years to come. Coming in one year as it has, makes a decided drain on the finances of the fair board but arrangements are being made to spread the expenditure over a period of years.
If Your House Catches Fire—
 (From Industrial News Review)
 If your house catches fire—keep your head. Follow a simple but vital routine and your chances of escaping safely will be tremendously increased. Succumb to panic and thoughtless activity and your next stop may be the hospital or the morgue.
 Writing in McCall's, John J. McElligott, New York Fire Chief, points out that two-thirds of our annual fire deaths occur in dwellings, mainly because the occupants don't know how to get out. And three-fourths of these victims are trapped on top floors, because they fail to recognize the danger signals of heat and pressure on bedroom doors.
 The first thing the householder should do if awakened by fire, is to feel the bedroom door panel. If the wood is hot, don't open the door unless you want to sign your death warrant. If there is an exit via a window or roof, take it. If not, stay in the room with the door closed and call for help.
 If the door is relatively cool, open it an inch, with your body braced against it so it can be instantly slammed if a rush of hot air follows the opening. If the heat outside is bearable, move with the utmost speed. Don't try to save belongings. Fire travels a thousand times faster than the uninitiated realize. A stairway that is passable one minute, may be a roaring inferno the next. And once you're outside—stay out! Many a life has been lost because someone rushed back inside a burning building.
 Chief McElligott recommends that every family hold periodic fire drills especially if there are children. The experience these drills provide may be a life saver if fire eventually breaks out—a mind and body trained in the technique of escaping a burning building, are not so susceptible to the deadly delay and panic.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
 "FATHER" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 19.
 The Golden Text was, "Turn ye not unto idols, nor make to yourselves molten gods: I am the Lord your God" (Lev. 19:4).
 Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon" (Matt. 6:24).
 The Lesson-Sermon also included the following correlative passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "We must not attribute more and more intelligence to matter, but less and less, if we would be wise and healthy. The divine Mind, which forms the bud and blossom, will care for the body, even as it clothes the lily; but let no mortal interfere with God's government by trusting in the laws of erring, human concepts" (p. 62).
