LOCAL TURKEY MEN TO SALT LAKE MEET

TURKEY MARKET OUTLOOK GOOD

A delegation of four turkey growers from Hermiston motored to Salt Lake City, Utah, last week to attend the annual meeting of the Northwest Turkey Growers' association, leaving here Tuesday noon and returning late Sunday. The group included A. E. Bense, H. G. Rankin, Logan Todd and Chas. Keller, prominent turkey men on the project.

The majority of turkey growers on the project are members of the Eastern Oregon Turkey Growers' association which is affiliated with the Oregon Turkey Cooperative, Inc., with headquarters at Roseburg. These two groups are also affiliated with the Northwest Turkey Growers' association and in this way are able to employ field men who keep in constant touch with market points, and who contacts both grower and consumer.

Officials of the association believe the market looks good for this year. Reports given at the convention show that all frozen turkeys in the Pacific northwest have been moved and unless there is too great a pre-season movement of turkeys, the market should hold good.

J. C. Leedy, field secretary for the Oregon Turkey Cooperative, Inc., was also present at the meeting, and was accompanied by Mrs. O. C. Brown, turkey producer of Dixonville, Or., Mrs. Nutley of Redmond, and Henry Domes, producer of White Holland turkeys of Rickreall, Or.

The Northwest Turkey Growers' association started with an original membership of seven states, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Idaho, Utah, Colorado, and Montana, but now has seven associate members in Wyoming, Nebraska and Texas. Plans are being perfected for these and other states to be accepted officially as members, it was brought out at the meeting.

Enroute to Salt Lake the Hermiston delegation stopped at Boise, Idaho, the first night, and the next day visited the sunken farm in Buell, Idaho, where approximately five acres of land have literally dropped into a hole, the cause not being determined. At Twin Falls they visited what is said to be the highest suspension bridge in the world. They were impressed with the farming country in the Twin Falls valley.

While in the city they made their headquarters at the Utah hotel and all banquets during the meeting were staged in the Newhouse hotel. Some of the group visited the Mormon Tabernacle, and others the Paleman Hatchery, which has a turkey egg capacity of 300,000 in Jamesway incubators. They also went through the Utah Poultry Cooperative association which manufactures 5000 sacks of feed a day.

CHURCH SERVICE UNITES COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Upham of Hermiston attended the wedding of their son Dick at Salem, Ore., last Saturday night, returning home late Monday. The following account of the ceremony was taken from the Oregon Statesman published at Salem:

The First Christian church was the scene of a beautiful candlelight ceremony last night at eight o'clock when Miss Juanita Walling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Walling, became the bride of Andrew Upham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Upham of Hermiston. Rev. Guy L. Drill read the service. The altar was banked with orchid and pink gladioli and palms. Miss Lourine Brietzke sang "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly" before the ceremony and Esthel Benner played the wedding marches.

Miss Dorothy Walling, sister of the bride, lighted the candles wearing a white organdy dress with blue dots and trimming.

The bride wore a gown of white taffeta fashioned with square neck, puffed sleeves and embellished with tiny buttons. She wore a fingertip length tulle veil which fell from a coronet of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of pink rosebuds, bouvardia and sweet peas.

Miss Genevieve Walling was the honor attendant and wore blue taffeta. The bridesmaids, Miss Marian Walling and Mrs. Thelma Fisher, sisters of the bride, wore orchid and green embroidered organdy, and all carried colonial nosegays. Miss Lucille Hackett cut the bride's cake and cutting the ices was Mrs. Eva Purvine. Assisting in the serving were Mrs. Elton Bond, Mrs. Carroll Hunt and Mrs. Marjorie Gallagher.

PARENT EDUCATION VERY NECESSARY

Mrs. Maude Morse, extension specialist on parent education from Oregon State college, in a talk here Monday night gave reasons why a parent education program was being conducted, in discussing the topic, "Why Parent Education." The meeting was sponsored by the Parent Teacher's association with Mrs. G. W. Ripley acting as chairman for a short business session, and introducing the speaker.

Mrs. Morse believes it is necessary for both parent and child to learn to cope with the changes which have taken place in the past eight years in the family life, environment outside the home, religion, family relations, and the standards by which morals are based. The child must be trained to meet these changing conditions to give a feeling of security in the home, in the school and in the business world. Guidance over the adolescent age is highly important in the development of a child, Mr. Morse stated.

Parent education conference are being held in Pendleton this week and the security theme is being carried through all future meetings conducted at regular intervals by Mrs. Morse, assisted by Miss Frances Clinton, county home demonstration agent.
